KENNEDY BACK BROKEN –'IN FAIR CONDITION'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP)—A medical bulletin today on the condition of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) injured in a plane crash Friday night, said that although he suffered a broken back, he has complete use of his legs and arms. (See story, photos, page 14.)

The hospital bulletin said:

"Senator Kennedy is in fair condition. He has improved considerably since his admission to the hospital and is resting comfortably.

"X-rays showed fractures of the fifth and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and fourth lumbar vertebrae (the lower back) and fractures of the second, third and fourth transverse processes which give the spine support.

"There are no head injuries and no neurological complications. He has complete use of his legs and arms. He has cuts on both legs and the right hand."

Motorist Shot In Midnight Fracas Beside Highway

A highway brawl over driving manners erupted into a near-fatal shooting today as two drivers struggled over a 22-caliber revolver at the side of Highway 101 in Terra Linda.

One driver, Joseph J. Immel, 19, of 1722-A Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was wounded in the stomach, the bullet lodging in his body.

The other driver, James Warren Baxley, 19, of 116 Ward Street, Larkspur, was charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

Immel was rushed to San Rafael General Hospital where a team of doctors performed extensive surgery for more than three hours.

At one time during the operation, Immel's heart stopped momentarily, but the hospital explained it was not a critical stoppage. Immel was reported in good condition today at the hospital.

The sheriff's office reported Immel's version of the shooting as follows:

Immel was driving southbound along Highway 101 at the bottom of St. Vincent's Hill at 12:10 a.m. when a car driven by Baxley followed, blinking its bright lights on and off.

Immel pulled into the slow lane to let Baxley pass but Baxley cut in front of him, forcing Immel to stop on a shoulder, opposite the California Highway Patrol weight station.

Two passengers in Immel's car, Lawrence A. Maydole of 1722-A Lincoln Avenue, and Wynn T. Lattore of 87 Robinhood Drive, climbed out of the auto.

Fast Civil Rights Action Promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders today attacked the last barriers to final enactment of civil rights legislation broader, tougher and more controversial than any since north and south fought over slavery a century ago. (See also stories, photo, page 2.)

The leaders promised that the Senate bill, approved last night by an historic 73-27 vote, would be the law of the land by July 4. The Justice Department already was making plans to enforce the sweeping measure, even though it forecast general voluntary compliance.

Because the Senate bill is, in effect, an amendment of a House-passed measure, the House must now vote to accept or reject the Senate's changes. The House leadership's plan was to get the fastest possible acceptance of the Senate version, with Republican help.

Parliamentary maneuvering will begin about an hour after the House meets at 11 a.m. Monday. Hopes were for a vote by July 1.

The big question among House members today was whether Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater's vote against the bill last night would drain away some GOP support in the final House test.

Goldwater is far out in front for the GOP presidential nomination in San Francisco next month. His "no" vote sent shockwaves through Republican legislative ranks whose support was crucial in passage of the house and senate rights bills.

President Lyndon B. Johnson praised senators of both parties who had worked long and hard for passage. The bill, he said in a statement issued in San Francisco, "is the product, not of any man or group of men, but of a broad national concensus that every person is entitled to justice, to equality, and to an even chance to enjoy the blessings of liberty."

Negro civil rights leaders joined the president in lauding the Senate action, but many cautioned that there would be no letup in their drive for full equality.

The bill was passed one year to the day after it was requested by the late President John F. Kennedy.

President Ducks His Security

COMBINED UPI & AP

SAN FRANCISCO — President Lyndon B. Johnson yesterday had the tightest security shield in the history of San Francisco — and calmly walked out from behind it.

The city massed more than 500 policemen—about one third of the entire force — along the procession route on Market Street to the new Federal Building where the president spoke.

But twice the chief executive left his motorcade to shake hands with members of the crowd. And the second time he walked over to crowds on Market Street, which surged around him to the dismay of the presidential bodyguards.

The crowd of well-wishers was held back on the sidewalk by police, who would not let them onto the street despite signals by Johnson.

So the president stopped his open convertible and went over to the crowd to shake hands. The crowd converged around him while police tried to keep order.

Then the president returned to his car and resumed his ride.

Democratic Party unity in California was the main topic during Johnson's rapid-paced visit to the city.

But, in a way, it was "Pierre Salinger Day."

Salinger, who beat out State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination in a hotly contested primary campaign June 2, was at the president's elbow most of the time.

One sour note in the party harmony came at the end of the banquet when Cranston denied reports he was dropping his two-million-dollar libel suit against Salinger.

Today in Irvine, Johnson said he will press forward with a plan to provide city dwellers with an extension service similar to the one long offered farm folk by the Agriculture Department.

Johnson made the announcement as he directed his unofficial California vote-wooing campaign at the area that gave Sen. Barry Goldwater his possibly crucial victory in the state's Republican primary.

The president is scheduled to return to Washington tomorrow.

'MISS CALIFORNIA' — Jeanne Venable, 23, of Carmichael last night was named "Miss California" in Los Angeles last night. She will represent the state in the "Miss Universe" contest in Atlantic City on July 21. Sharon Christofferson, "Miss Sausalito," was a runner-up. (AP Wirephoto)

Hotel Registry Like U.N. List

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Fairmont Hotel registry read like the United Nations membership list last night.

Registered were President Lyndon B. Johnson, Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies, and Anatoly Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

President Johnson spent the night at the Fairmont after dedicating a Bay Area rapid transit district and attending a $100 a plate dinner in his honor. Dobrynin was here to start a two-week Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain vacation, and Menzies was en route to Washington.

Johnson Aide, Unruh Fly To Kennedy Side

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant to President Lyndon B. Johnson, and Jesse Unruh, speaker of the California Assembly, left the presidential party today to fly to the bedside of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Northampton, Mass.

White House staff members said they knew of no plans for the president also to go to Northampton where Kennedy is hospitalized for injuries suffered in a plane crash last night.

College Grads Told Ethics Key To Life

College of Marin graduates were urged to step out into the world wearing their ethics on their lapels yesterday at the college's 37th annual commencement exercises.

Guest speaker Dr. Paul F. Lawrence, state associate superintendent of public instruction speaking on "The Goals We Seek", told the neophytes that "if Hitler and Lincoln were graduating today, Hitler might walk away with more academic honors."

"Both men," he said, "were alike in many ways, but Lincoln was guided by a code of ethics and a sense of justice."

Analogies stressed between Lincoln and Hitler were "proficiency in public speaking, language skills, and a firm understanding of social psychology and social sciences," said Lawrence—rather than political tendencies.

The educator concluded by urging graduates to give life "more than the demands of justice require."

"It costs more to behave in an ethical fashion," he said, but this is the way to character building."

Lawrence was followed by student speaker Richard P. Coburn of San Anselmo, former editor of the Tower Times, college student newspaper.

Coburn entitled his talk, "The Challenge of Non-Conformity." He praised his alma mater as an institution where a student may find his identity.

"There is at this campus," said Coburn, "an atmosphere which encourages contact and communications between and among stu-

Novato Rodeo Opening At Western Weekend

The snorts, bellows and thudding hooves of ornery horseflesh and irate bulls, will resound from the Novato hills as the sun sets tonight, during the first round of the two-days rodeo competition at Novato's Western Weekend.

Cow-hands from all over the West will be striving to avoid pulling leather, outguess the balky calves, and show their skills in other events this evening, for glory and $600 in prizes.

The rodeo will open at 5:30 p.m. in the Novato Horsemen's Assn. area, part of the busiest day yet for the annual Western Weekend that opened Wednesday.

Earlier today, thousands of visitors thronged Novato's streets to watch 163 floats, bands, drum and bugle corps and other entries march in the most colorful parade in the festival's history. Many of the crowd were fortified for the hours of parade-watching by the Buckaroo Breakfast which opened the day at 7 a.m.

Novato's Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the five-day celebration, made sure there was some attraction suited to everyone, today. In addition to the parade, breakfast and rodeo, today's features included Western Weekend's first cross - country marathon race, a comical donkey race, a well-attended post-parade barbecue and the popular repetition of the annual firemen's water-ball battle.

All attention last night centered on the stage of the Novato Community House, where due homage was paid to beauty and beards in the best Western tradition.

Long-tressed, petite Jeanie Bergala was crowned Queen of Western Weekend, while a full-house audience cheered. Chosen her Princesses were Linda Heape and Carolyn Powell. The beauties presided over today's parade and accorded their regal presences to other events.

Turning from beauty to beards, hirsute examples of Novato manhood were judged critically for their chin-foliage efforts. Winnowed from the nearly four-dozen contestants after appropriate tugging and other verification, was Lyle Adin, whose full-style adornment won "best in show honors."

Other category winners were Frank Antonio, youthfully sporting an Abe Lincoln style; Bob Rankin, mutton chops; Angelo Mirabella, novelty, and Laurel Forwood, longest beard.

Stealing the evening's spotlight, in terms of popularity with the crowd, were "Don & Moe," Don Klapperich and Moe Sparrow, whose folk-singing drew repeated encore demands.

Lusty boos, hisses and cheers rank out from the audience as Novato Communiity Club players presented "And The Villian Still Pursued Her," in the best tradition of "mellerdrammer." Director was Scott Wright.

Paul Fry, president of the Novato Jaycees, welcomed the audi-

Supervisors Get Tough On Budget

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK

The Marin County Board of Supervisors began to get more hard-nosed yesterday in budget hearings, with the effect that the expected property tax rate inched downward two mills, to $2.353 per $100 assessed valuation.

But the board members received a shock at seeing the medical department budget, which, including medical care, has about doubled in the past two years and will total about $896,000 next year, virtually all of which will come from the county property taxpayers directly.

The budget was approved as recommended, but only after repeated queries, especially by Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker, about why there has been such a sharp increase.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said part of the cost was carried before in a separate budget for the hospital and farm, which has been discontinued.

Medical Director Michael Scholl added that the caseload has jumped and medical costs have risen sharply. He said an increase in the number of nursing home beds in the county would help because persons now being held in hospitals for expensive care could be moved out.

One part of the medical budget came in for a particularly careful check, and is expected to generate heat again on Monday, dur-

Corbett's Girl Friend Tells Of Cynical Laugh On Phone

By ROSS DAVIS

The green-eyed, 27-year-old girl friend of murder victim Donald G. Corbett Jr. testified yesterday she became anxious when he failed to confirm two weekend dates and telephoned him, only to hear, instead, a "kind of cynical laugh" from a strange voice.

Rosalinde Estes, divorced mother of three who said she had known Corbett about five months, said in the Marin Superior Court slaying trial that they had previously arranged for a dinner date in her San Francisco home the evening of March 28—the day after Corbett was murdered—and for Easter dinner at his Sausalito apartment the following day.

The red-haired woman added that Corbett, usually considerate in telephoning of additional arrangements, failed to phone again following a March 25 call and that about 9:15 p.m. March 27 she became worried and telephoned him.

She said a strange voice answered, but she asked to speak with "Don" (Donald Corbett).

"Don?" she said the male voice replied. She said the voice then informed her that "Don" wouldn't be back "until 3 p.m." He "gave a kind of cynical laugh," she added.

It was later established that Corbett, 30, products executive for Foremost Dairies in San Francisco, was slain by icepick and bludgeoning that day, but his body wasn't discovered in the apartment until the following Monday.

Mrs. Estes, who said she is German and employed by an advertising agency with which Foremost is a client, testified she had been dating Corbett "regularly." She said the Easter dinner at Corbett"s was to include his brother, Dr. Robert Kendall Corbett, 28, and the latter's wife.

She added she also tried without success all day, Saturday and Sunday to reach Donald Corbett. Another employee of the advertising agency, Robert Urban, testified earlier yesterday he and two acquaintances became worried about Corbett on Monday, March 30 and went to his apartment, finding his body there.

The telephone answer by a strange voice coincided with a report of Corbett's blonde ex-wife, Karen, a model, who told police shortly after discovery of the murder that she had telephoned from Tucson, Ariz., the same day, March 27, and someone identifying himself as "Nielson" told her Corbett was not there.

"He is downtown going on a toot," she quoted the voice as saying. She, too, had become worried, and flew to San Francisco, reached Sausalito, and knocked

Nikita Drops By Stock Exchange

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev won a hearty three cheers from Denmark's top business men at Copenhagen's Stock Exchange today and then went to a shipyard where employees gave him a shout of "hurrah for Russian workers!"

The premier, on the last full day of a five-day visit, was equally good-humored at both places, first exchanging quips with some of Denmark's top capitalists, then plugging his co-existence line in a speech to 3,000 workers at the giant Burmeister and Wain Shipyards.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Security Council voted unanimously today to extend the stay of the U.N. peace-keeping force in Cyprus for a second three months ending Sept. 26.

Sponsors of the resolution were Bolivia, Brazil, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Norway, which had also sponsored the council's March 6 and March 13 resolutions on Cyprus that it reaffirmed.

Scare Delays Lynda Bird Flight

HONOLULU (AP)—A man was detained today in connection with the postponing of a jet airliner flight that was to have taken Lynda Bird Johnson, the president's daughter, to Los Angeles.

The Secret Service refused to let the plane take off after learning that the man, booked on the same flight, made a shooting threat in the lobby.

After Miss Johnson was taken off the plane and back to her Waikiki hotel, the Pan American World Airways Flight 824 was permitted to leave.

Airport sources said the man taken into custody set up a loud disturbance in the Honolulu International Airport lobby and threatened to shoot a woman who once scorned him. The woman was with her husband. None of the three was identified.

Engle Whispers His 'Aye' Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Clair Engle, recuperating slowly from two brain operations and almost unable to speak, was taken to the Senate in a wheelchair yesterday to vote in favor of the civil rights bill.

The California Democrat whispered his "aye" vote as his name was called. An aide was at his side prompting him when the time came for Engle's reply.

Engle, who is retiring from the Senate, also had voted in favor of shutting off the long filibuster. His cloture vote was made by lifting his left arm.

President Challenges Nation To Follow Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans of every race and creed faced a challenge from President Lyndon B. Johnson today to join in making the provisions of the newly passed civil rights bill "the customs of our land."

The president, on a speechmaking trip to the West Coast, issued a statement from his traveling White House in San Francisco shortly after the senate approved the controversial measure last night, exactly one year after it was first requested by the late President John F. Kennedy.

Johnson hailed the action as "a major step toward equal opportunities for all Americans," and said that while no law can eliminate prejudice, the bill will go further "to invest the rights of man with the protection of law than any legislation in this century."

Looking forward to the day, "which will not be long forthcoming," when he signs the bill into law, Johnson described it as a "challenge to all of us to go to work in our states and communities in our homes and the depths of our hearts to eliminate the final strongholds of intolerance and hatred."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, one of the leaders in the fght to get the bill passed, said in a statement the vote "must hearten and encourage President Johnson and all Americans. I know how President Kennedy felt a year ago today and I know how pleased he would be now."

The statements came as congressmen from both sides praised the Senate action and House leaders promised speedy consideration of the compromise measure passed by the Senate.

Speaker John W. McCormack (D-Mass.) said approval of the bill was "a decided step forward" and predicted the House would give its approval in time for President Johnson to sign the bill by July 4.

Rep. Emmanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) and Rep. William McCulloch (R-Ohio), House managers for the bill, said they would ask the House to accept the Senate's version without asking for changes.

"We accept the Senate version," they said. "We believe that the House membership will take the same position."

The two representatives said there were portions of the Senate bill "not to our liking," but they felt a House-Senate conference committee could "fatally delay" enactment of the measure.

"The cause of civil rights can best be moved forward by enactment of the bill now," they said.

Civil rights leaders were quick to acclaim the action of the Senate and said they will test its provisions in the South as soon as it becomes law.

A dissenting voice came from Sen. J. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), one of the group of Southern Senators that filibustered against the measure for 83 days. Thurmond said in a statement that passage was a "tragic day for America."

"I predict that the American people will see that this legislation is repealed when it is enforced," he said. "It will be enforced if the political figures in positions of leadership in this country continue to be cowed by Negro agitational efforts which have been promised."

Johnson congratulated senators of both parties in his statement for working together to pass the bill.

Wallace Lashes Rights Bill; King Called Kennedy Tribute

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama called Senate passage of the civil rights bill "a sad day for individual liberty and freedom." Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro integration leader, hailed it as "a lasting tribute to the late John F. Kennedy."

The bill's passage yesterday brought gloom to Southern opponents and joy to integration leaders and moderates.

"It will bring practical relief to the Negro in the South and give the Negro in the North a psychological boost that he sorely needs," said King, in St. Augustine, Fla., for an integration crusade. King said Negroes would spend the summer testing compliance with the law and that St. Augustine would be a good place to start.

Wallace, a determined opponent of the bill and avowed candidate for president, predicted that Americans would remove from office those responsible for its passage. "I predict that the American people will rise up in indignation when they realize the awful consequences of this legislation," he said.

Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida said he had hoped the Senate would be more temperate. "It seems to me they have done a great injury to national unity," he said.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. of Atlanta hailed passage as "another major step in the elimination of racial discrimination," but Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.), who voted against the bill, asked, "How can it be called civil rights and grant special privileges to special citizens and take away constitutional rights of all citizens?"

Harry Carbaugh of Chattanooga, Tenn., state Republican chairman, praised GOP presidential candidate Sen. Harry Goldwater of Arizona for voting against the bill and said he was sorry "that there were not more like him."

The Rev. Sam Dodson, chairman of the Governor's Commission on Human Relations in Tennessee, said, "I think this will go down in history as one of the great days of our nation."

But Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.), called yesterday "the blackest day in the United States Senate since 1875." That was when Reconstruction era civil rights laws were passed.

Local Government Interest Is Urged

A panel discussion of local governmental problems yesterday afternoon concluded Dominican College's week-long seminar on "California—Present and Prospect."

Moderated by former Marin supervisor and current State Senate candidate Mrs. Vera Schultz, the panel included State Sen. Joseph A. Rattigan of Santa Rosa, chairman of the State Senate Committee on Local Government; Kent D. Pursel, chairman of the Alameda Board of Supervisors and president of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments, and Mrs. Bernice Hubbard May, member of the Berkeley City Council.

Each of the panelists stressed the need for the public to interest itself in local government. Pursel told of the budget meeting this week of his board which was attended by only two people of a population in Alameda County of about one million.

"Our budget is about 110 million dollars, and we advertised the meeting by law to inform the public of its time and place. Yet just two people showed up.

"Most people only know their courthouse as the place where they got their marriage license or where they have served on a jury. They always manage to find it when they get their tax bill, but they won't interest themselves in the budget enough to come to our meetings and tell us their views."

Mrs. May urged the audience to "find out what your planning commission is like and what your master plan is like; find out whether your local officials are supporting the Assn. of Bay Area Governments.

"Your planning commission must have adequate power. It must have a capable staff and adequate financing."

Asked if pressure groups had a debilitating influence on local government, the panelists agreed that generally they did not. Mrs. May and Pursel felt that these groups serve to inform public officials and widen their comprehension of their problems.

Rattigan said that while the state could enter the field of recreation, he thought that it should not involve itself in this area, which is more efficiently run by local government.

Rattigan and Pursel voiced the warning that the public must interest itself in local government if it hopes to retain control of those public activities controlled by local government.

"The city government," Pursel said, "is just as close to you as you want to make it."

Dinner Meeting

Muir Woods Park Improvement Assn. members held a dinner meeting at the association's clubhouse last night. No business was discussed; the group's schedule calls for business meetings to be held only every other month. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. July 17 at the clubhouse, according to E. Margaret Hardy, president.

The first Memorial Day was a military, not a public, holiday.

Classrooms, Library Contract Is Awarded

Contract for construction of 34 classrooms and a library at San Rafael High School was awarded to Pacific Coast Builders of San Francisco by the school district board last night.

The board passed a resolution permitting withdrawal of the low bid of $846,980 from Olsen Construction Co. of Santa Rosa in which a $50,000 error was made, Supt. Bert C. Corona said today.

Included in Pacific Coast Builders' contract for the $917,400 project, the second lowest offer of the seven bids received on the building, is demolition of the old library and seven adjacent undersized classrooms on the site where the new building will be constructed.

The contract will be reviewed by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency next week. Site preparation is expected to begin July 1, Dr. Corona said.

The new complex is scheduled to be ready for occupancy in Sept., 1965.

119 Ward Street, Larkspur, got out of Baxley's car.

Maydole and Vardon got into a fight over the driving episode and Immel went over to Baxley who was seated behind the driver's wheel.

As Immel started to talk, he heard a "click-click" and saw the muzzle of a gun pointed at him by Baxley.

When Baxley told him to "get out and leave us alone," Immel tried to grab the gun and it fired. The bullet hit him in the right side.

Immel's friends then came to his aid, wrestled the gun away from Baxley and took Immel to San Rafael General Hospital.

While sheriff's deputies were gathering reports of the shooting, Baxley and Vardon voluntarily arrived in at sheriff's headquarters.

They said they thought they shot and wounded someone, the sheriff's office reported.

Baxley claimed he was harassed while driving and said he was watching the fight when Immel reached into the Baxley car and attempted to take the gun — Baxley grabbed for it and it discharged.

Baxley was booked on the charge and then released under $550 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

TRIAL

on Corbett's door Saturday. Getting no response, she departed.

An earlier prosecution witness, Claire Salop, 207-B Valley Street, Sausalito, testified she resides next door to Corbett's apartment house, and was asked on March 27 to his apartment to help rearrange new and old paintings he had acquired. She said she and Corbett were in his apartment about 10 minutes, then drove to the beach where they discussed his planned Easter dinner and a present he was giving his 7-year-old daughter, Julia, in Tucson.

Miss Salop, a student advisor with the Dean of Students' staff at San Francisco State College, said they returned later that evening and before separating, she gave him back a grey sweater he had loaned her on the beach.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales at that point introduced as evidence a sweater taken from a black suitcase bearing the initials "DGC" and which the two defendants, Robert Lee Jones and John Lee King, allegedly later had in their possession.

Miss Salop identified the sweater as the one Corbett loaned her.

She said she never saw Corbett alive again, but noticed his porch light was on the following day—Saturday — Easter Sunday and Monday.

First afternoon witness yesterday was C. William Friedrichs, assistant products manager with Foremost. He confirmed testimony of Urban that they had lunched with Corbett in a Sausalito restaurant March 27, and said prior to the meal they had gone by Corbett's apartment because Corbett wanted to show them his new paintings.

Two of the paintings, introduced as evidence, allegedly were later found in a Sausalito houseboat occupied by the defendants.

The trial adjourned yesterday until 10 a.m. Tuesday, when cross-examination of Mrs. Estes by defense attorneys is scheduled.

Truman: Rights Bill Passage Is 'Proper'

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry Truman today voiced approval of the Senate's passage of the civil rights bill.

"It's the proper thing to do, it should have been done long ago," the former chief executive said.

BUDGET

ing discussion of the health department budget.

This item was the bedside nursing program, which has been in the health department and which was curtailed sharply several months ago by the board when it ran out of money.

The proposal, which was approved, is to transfer the function July 1 to the medical department, and to create in integrated program of nurses, homemakers, housekeepers and other workers, supervised by a doctor and a public health nurse, for home care.

Scholl said such a program would coordinate many services now being given by the county, using them more efficiently. However, he added, the program could not be used for patients of the type who have been carried now as part-pay patients.

Those part-pay patients now in the program would be continued, however, he assured the board. It is the new cases which would have to find help elsewhere. He said the Babcock Foundation is studying the idea of paying for such a service.

Supervisor Leydecker said that the county should not fill the gap if a private agency could do so. Florence Scott of the Marin Council for Community Services said other counties had home nursing care associations, but that Marin did not.

The budgets for the probation office and juvenile hall were approved, with the board turning down a plea for a speed-up in hiring of a supervisor for deputy probation officers. The budget for the family rehabilitation center was approved with a shuffling of hiring dates on new personnel for the new facility.

The shuffle was made at the request of Probation Officer Walter H. Busher partly on the assumption that the center will not open its doors until June 1, rather than April 1, 1965, as now scheduled.

At the same time the board approved immediate hiring of a unit supervisor for the project, who is now being paid for a pilot project from a grant by the Rosenberg Foundation. Quick recruiting was also approved for the center's top position, the clinical director.

The board approved the budgets of the sheriff's office and district attorney's office with little comment, holding back on the starting date for a new deputy district attorney and on new furniture for the offices of four attorneys.

dents, faculty and administrators."

"Unlike some of the four-year colleges and universities, teachers are not hampered by pressure to do research," he said. "They can spend their time working directly with students out as well as inside the classroom. Graduates are, as a result, better equipped to go on to the four year schools."

The ceremony's welcome was given to some 300 spectators by David Lehman, class president. Top student was Robert de Brecht, of Novato, who completed his course work with just under an A average (all A's except for two classes).

De Brecht will continued to major in Physics at the University of California, Berkeley. He has also been named a Regent's scholar there.

The class gift, an AM-FM radio for the college's marine biology station at Bolinas, was presented by class secretary, Wylma Black.

Dr. C. A. Pulskamp, retiring head of the physical sciences department, was awarded a plaque to honor 37 years service by college Trustee Chairman Robert E. Rogers. Pulskamp, who lives at 12 Inman Avenue, Kentfield, was given a standing ovation.

The outstanding Alumnae award went to Joel F. Gustafson, class of 1937, for "outstanding service to college and community." He is president of Point Reyes National Park Development, former president of the Marin Conservation League, and former associate director of the Academy of Sciences in San Francisco.

Included among the 183 graduates was adult education secretary, Mrs. Louise O'Connor, of 28 Loring Avenue, Mill Valley, who worked for her Associate in Arts degree during off hours.

Senate Must Get Working

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate will begin on Monday to try to cut down the backlog of work accumulated during the 83-day civil rights debate.

Either on Monday or later in the week, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said last night, it will take up the only two appropriations bills approved in committee and ready for floor debate—the Interior and Treasury-Post Office measures.

The House has passed 11 of the 12 money bills needed to run the government in the fiscal year beginning July 1, but none has cleared the Senate.

TEA FOR HAMILTON DEBS

Necrason are seen chatting with Joanne Ramstad and Janet Brill, two of the 36 debutantes who were honored at the club's tea at Hamilton yesterday at the Officers Club. Evening Gowns Still Glittering

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those evening dresses beaded from neck to hemline are fewer in the new fall and winter clothes collections. But there still is no shortage of opulence.

It just is taking some different directions with fabrics worth a king's ransom and furs showing everywhere for trim or linings and for the garment itself.

DEBUTANTES M. Danielle Starkle, Barbara Keller, Christine Box, Cynthia Harrell and Joann Jacobs, who have returned from a year of college to Hamilton Air Force Base, are served punch by Mrs. William S. Harrell, wife of Col. William Harrell. Thirty-six debutantes, daughters of officers at Hamilton, were honored at the tea.

Consider, for instance, the floor length ball gown with matching jacket from the designer, Ferdinando Sarmi. It is made of an embroidered coral and silver patterned fabric—and the silver was sterling.

OR, THERE were dresses at Pauline Trigere's made of either black or white mink gills. The designer said they'd retail for between $900 and $1,000, but she pointed out they were dual purpose. The mink dresses, sleeveless and with a v-throat, could be worn over blouses or turtle neck sweaters as day costumes. Without sweaters or blouses and with rhinestone or other jeweled belts, they became short evening dresses.

Or, there were one of a kind formals, floor length, at Adele Simpson's, made of fabulous saris she bought in India. When the sari border was not used in the dress, it was turned into a matching evening bag.

Sarmi used silk chenille, fluffy as a bedspread, for floor length evening coats. Actually, the chenille is hand-embroidery on net to give a three dimensional puffiness.

CHANTILLY LACES re-embroidered so that they look sculptured show throughout the collections from the higher priced houses. So do the sculptured brocades. And the velvet touch is everywhere. Some velvets are smooth, some hand-cut so that the floral patterns are raised.

Harvey Berin showed quilted white silks in wide-skirted floor length formals.

Oh, not all the beads are gone.

AS THE STYLE-SETTING firms on Seventh Avenue continued their previews for buyers, it was apparent that jeweled treatments for late day and evening have a good future.

But there was no wave on wave of long slinky formals with bugle beads, rhinestones and other sparkle from top to floor as in previous collections. Designers like jeweled belts, jeweled cuffs, jeweled lace jackets topping chiffons or silks, jeweled blouses for theater suits.

THESE OTHER trends in evening wear developed:

—The waist length jacket and the knee length coat accompanying either short or long gowns.

—A strong resurgence of black for late day and evening.

—Long slinky gowns with hoods.

—Continued dominance of the slim silhouette but with a smattering of the dramatic full skirts showing.

—Lots of neckline and shoulder exposure.

SEW SIMPLE

The Bare Neckline Is Saved By The Adaptable 'Dickey'

By EUNICE FARMER

So many jackets and dresses have lapels right now, and they are usually buttoned so low, I never know how to fill in the neckline. One can always wear the proverbial pearls, but sometimes the neckline is cut too low for these. Any answers? Mrs. M.M.E.

Dear Mrs. M.MBE.:

A clever filler for this type of neckline can pep up your garment and serve as a delightful contrast and accessory. Make your dickey out of a fairly large square, completely finished on all edges. Make several, one out of lace, one in a contrasting color, one braid-trimmed, or whatever. Position it while you have your garment on, and mark the correct place for the snaps you will place on each end of the dickey at the top. You will place the other half of your snap inside your garment, and in a mere matter of seconds, you can change the entire look.

Tailor Trix Winner: I finally found a way to anchor (inconspicuously) the belt to the skirt or dress. Just attach a small piece of Velcro to the back of the belt, and another small piece to the right side of your garment, at the spot where you want the belt to stay. Peace of mind!

Mrs. Grady Dalton, Richlands, Va., is this week's winner of our tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Necessity is sure the mother of invention. My daughter broke her arm early this spring, just before some of the most important dances of the year. At first we all cried for her, then decided to make the best of the situation and in a joking mood, decided to slipcover her cast. We made matching covers that fitted perfectly, closing them with a zipper for an extra close fit.

She was the center of attention, and what could have been a sad catastrophe turned out to be the highlight of the dance. This has proved to me again that instead of giving up, there is always an answer. Your Faithful Reader.

There is no sewing center within miles of our little town, so I am using my limited amount of knowledge to help some young girls learn to sew. I understand two of them are left-handed. Can I possibly teach them Mrs. R. T.

Dear Mrs. R. T.:

I have often had left-handed women in my classes and find out that they are used to adapting methods for themselves in this right-handed world. I always have them sit directly across from me and then they can see the correct position for holding fabric, etc. From here on out they are on their own. I'm so proud of you for taking your time for this project (I know the girls are excited about it) and I only hope the other mothers remember to give you a big vote of thanks.

Your Sewing Glossary: Backstitch. When I use this term, I refer to back tacking or double machine stitching for the last few stitches to keep the stitch from pulling out. This is usually not necessary at the beginning and end of a seam if your tension has been adjusted perfectly.

Do you girls have questions about sewing? If you do, send for my booklet which answers 20 of your questions. To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Twenty Questions" to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal.

Special Tax Seminars Slated For Women

Mrs. Edmond Gross has organized a series of four tax seminars for women that will start Thursday.

The other three seminars of the series "Who Pays the Bill?" will be on July 2, 9 and 16. All will be held at 10 a.m. in the Mill Valley School District offices.

Speakers and topics will be: Mill Valley School District Supt. G. R. McConnell, "School Finances"; Mill Valley City Manager Bert Balmer, "City Finances"; County Auditor and Comptroller Michael Mitchell, "County Finances"; and Carroll A. Snyker, executive secretary of the Marin Development Foundation, "Additional Sources of Revenue."

Explaining her reasons for organizing the series, Mrs. Gross, who is a member of the Mill Valley district school board, said, "So many civic organizations are doing units on planning for growth in the county that I felt there was a need for study of tax structure, since you need to understand it to make intelligent decisions as to what growth is desired.

"Since the county is growing so rapidly, there are decisions to be made by individuals as to whether they want the property tax to remain the base for revenue or if not that, what. It cannot be done on emotion.

Such great interest has been shown in the series that enrollment is almost full already. We want to keep the group small so that questions may be handled after each presentation."

HONORED AT TEA

Marin debutante Mary Hamilton and her mother, Mrs. William Hamilton of Mill Valley, admire the "orchid tree" trimmed with notes of donations to favorite charities, including the Marin Charitable Foundation which sponsors the December Ball, in lieu of the usual floral gifts. Mary was feted Thursday by Mrs. Harrison McNear Leppo at her Mill Valley home. Pouring tea were Mesdames Fred Drexler, Fred Herrington, L. P. McNear, Jordan Martinelli, Wallace Scott, D. The Topless Bathing Suit— Eyeful, Awful Or Unlawful?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's all according to the viewpoint whether the nudest thing in women's swimwear fashion—that topless wonder—is quite an eyeful, just awful, or unlawful.

Opinions differed sharply this week as Rudi Gernreich's daring design for feminine sunworshippers was bared for buyers across the country after a bracing introduction here a few days earlier.

SOME BUYERS stocked it to keep up with the trend toward over-all suntans, an Associated Press survey showed. Others snubbed it because the mode did not suit the moral mood of their clientele, or the town.

Lord & Taylor's in New York canceled an order because the style is "not in taste conforming to standards of the store."

"That's indecent exposure. Why, you'd go to jail," exclaimed a spokesman for Filenes in Boston.

"THEY'LL NEVER sell in Seattle" said a spokesman for Bon Marche in that city.

"I can't see this fashion becoming popular in Michigan for several years—if ever," declared Robert Emmet of Jacobson Shops, Detroit.

"It isn't in keeping with our store image," contended a Jordan Marsh spokesman in Florida.

In many cases the customer who does find a seller will be handled surreptitiously, as though she were buying bootleg booze.

"We will have them for people who ask, but we have absolutely no plans to display them," said Katherine Robinson of B. Altman's in New York.

MOST BUYERS not buying the not-quite-a-bikini, such as one at Carson Pirrie & Scott in Chicago, sniffed at it as "unimportant fashion-wise—a gimmick."

A San Francisco buyer has already taken the plunge in one. And actress Pamela Tiffin said she'd go along with the prevailing mood," like at spots on the Riviera.

"But I'd never wear such a revealing suit if I were the only woman in the party so exposed. That would be just plain exhibitionism."

THE PREVAILING mood of the Seattle Police Department is to arrest immediately the wearer of such a garment on a public beach. A test case would have to decide the lawfulness of such a suit on public beaches in Milwaukee, said County Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr.

In Chicago a police official referred the question to the Parks Department, claiming "We do not set standards for beach attire." But a Parks Department spokesman passed the buck back by claiming, "We only insist the suits be clean. The morals of the situation are for the police."

SOME BUYERS who bypassed the bare bosom bathing suit believe the timing is not right for it, but the day will come, they say, recalling early reaction to the bikini.

EYEFUL, AWFUL or Unlawful? There's a wide difference of national opinion about the topless bathing suit introduced in New York by designer Rudi Gernreich. An Associated Press survey showed some buyers are stocking it while others are snubbing it. Most police departments reported they would arrest any woman wearing it in public. (AP Wirephoto)

The bridegroom is the son of William E. Rickets and the late Mrs. Rickets of San Anselmo and the brother of Mrs. Jon Kilpatrick, Linda Rickets and William E. Rickets Jr.

His brother was his best man.

The new Mrs. Rickets was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended San Francisco State College. She is a student nurse at Mt. Zion Hospital in San Francisco. Her husband is a graduate of Sir Francis Drake High School.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

The Editor's Notebook

Journeying Journalist Sees More Litter, And San Rafael

BARSTOW—Litterbug season is in full swing. And this must be an especially favorable year for the species. U.S. Highway 466 between Mojave and Barstow must be the world's most littered.

Once you cross the line into Arizona —where there are large litterbug warning signs along the highway—the situation improves.

Since Needles is a main entry point for touring motorists visiting California, our state surely must give most of them a bad first impression.

We have a litterbug problem of considerable proportions in Marin County. We can be thankful it apparently is less than that along U.S. 466.

It may even be that a little bit of litter takes away more from the beauty of the scene on the desert than among Marin's rolling, tree-studded hills.

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. — Judging from license numbers, there are more Californians in Grand Canyon National Park than there are representatives from any other state. But Californians, while they have a plurality, do not constitute a majority. You get the feeling that if you wanted to make a project of it, you could spot license numbers from all 50 states of the Union within a day or two here.

Unlike Californians who flock to their own national parks, like Yosemite and Mt. Lassen, Arizonans seemingly avoid the Grand Canyon—unless they have some favorite spot where they congregate unbeknown to the rest of us. Arizona license plates are among the rarest on Grand Canyon National Park highways.

Goldwater stickers?

The senator is running for reelection to the U.S. Senate from Arizona at the same time he is pursuing the Republican Presidential nomination, but Goldwater bumper strips and campaign signs are conspicuous by their absence all across northern Arizona. And if he has any opposition, there is no visible sign of it hereabout.

Most incongruous bumper sticker observed thus far: SALINGER, on a car with an Indiana license plate.

VIEWING THE MIGHTY Grand Canyon for the first time seems to produce totally different reactions in different people.

"Doesn't it make you feel small and insignificant when you realize how little you are compared to the totality of time and space?" asks one.

"How can anyone accept the Biblical account of the miraculous creation of the earth when here in the geology of the Grand Canyon is all the evidence anyone should need to accept the plain fact of evolution?" asks another.

"How can anyone NOT believe in God when he beholds such wonders of God's creation as this?" asks still another.

The agnostic college professor who ordinarily scoffed at religion probably came closest to reality when he observed, "It is all just too complex to have happened by accident: there just had to be some grand plan and design by some kind of omnipotent being.

GALLUP, N.M.—There is something impersonal about traffic accident reports. They tend to be statistical. Even seeing demolished automobiles leaves one less than "shook." Within minutes, or less, one can become as careless as ever in driving habits.

But when you arrive on the scene of an accident while the injured are still lying helpless in the roadway, lying in the hot desert sun miles from the nearest town and not knowing when medical assistance will arrive, it is a sobering experience. It makes one a far more cautious driver.

And when you see a family whose worldly possessions have just been smashed to bits in a trailer accident, it is sobering, too.

But the people who drive along Arizona and New Mexico highways are different from those in the news recently in metropolitan centers.

Remember the recent news reports of dying persons pleading for help in public places while hundreds of people hurried by, ignoring the pleas?

Not so in the Southwest desert. On a lonely road almost every motorist stops to render what aid he can when it is needed, after the fashion of the Good Samaritan of Christ's teachings.

After seeing a series of stories reporting gross unconcern of people for their fellow man, it is reassuring to witness some striking instances of the opposite.

SAN RAFAEL, N.M. — It could be said, until recently, that this town had everything in common with its California namesake in Marin County — perhaps 100 or more years ago.

That is, San Rafael, N.M., of the 1960s had considerable in common with San Rafael, Calif., of 1860 and before.

St. Rafael's Church was the central edifice in both towns. Outside of a handful of handsome residences belonging to the grandees, the structures of both towns were in large part just falling-down adobes.

Some shack like structures were inhabited by barnyard animals and some were inhabited by people. One couldn't tell the difference. In fact, some of the structures appeared to be inhabited both by barnyard animals and people.

More Spanish than English was spoken on the street and in the homes.

And there wasn't a paved street in either San Rafael.

But, alas, progress has come to San Rafael, N.M.; the main street has been surfaced. The old place will just never seem the same again.

TAOS, N.M.—If you think you have grown too sophisticated and too mature to experience any patriotic emotion, perhaps you would be surprised should you pay a visit to this tiny town in the mountains of northern New Mexico.

Go to the tiny town square where the flag pole at first glance looks too big for the square, and the town.

Note that the flag isn't hauled down at sunset as American custom and tradition requires.

The flag flies perpetually to commemorate the valiant action of Taos' most famous citizen, Kit Carson. In 1861 when the Confederates threatened Taos, Carson and a Capt. Smith Simpson nailed Old Glory to a pole in the plaza and pledged their lives, if necessary, to keep it there. It stayed.

And before you leave the 300-year-old plaza, take a long look at the bronze memorial plaque there, honoring the 32 young Taos men, members of the heroic New Mexico Coast Artillery unit which distinguished itself on Bataan, who gave their lives for our nation.

Note that only two of the names are what might be called Anglo-Saxon. All the rest are Latin-American names borne proudly by Taos Americans of Indian and Mexican and Spanish lineage.

DEFAMATORY LETTERS ON THE RISE

Writers of "poison pen" letters are more active than ever, according to a report made to the American Society of Criminology.

These anonymous authors who seek to destroy reputations, careers and families are usually persons who have failed to live up to their own expectations.

Consequently, the report stated, they ascribe their failures to a widespread plot against themselves. They derive satisfaction from attempting to destroy persons of stature in the community, the investigators added.

Envy takes many forms, from "poison pen" letters to uncharitable or downright slanderous gossip. In such ways, reputations, careers and entire families suffer from the nameless threat of suspicion without the possibility of self-defense.

Rather than just avoid harmful statements, go out of your way to give credit where it is due. This is one way to assure that when you stand before the just Judge, your own sentence will be a favorable one.

"We therefore ought to support such as these, that we may be fellow-workers for the truth." (3 John 1:8)

Help me to use my powers of expression, O Lord, to spread Your love and truth, not distort it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Wanted: Definition Of 'Far Leftist'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In answer to the remarks made by reader Sam Hanzel in his recent letter to the editor (June 17), I would like to point out that those Americans on "the right" (we sometimes use the term Constitutionalists), or to quote Hanzel, the "Far-Righter," are not fascists, Nazis, or in favor of dictators. We are only sick and tired of the give-away and sell-out programs exercised by the U. S. Government during most of the past 30 years. We believe only in the principles upon which this great nation was built, and we defy those persons who would change and undermine these principles. . . .

Just for laughs, I would like to hear his definition of a "Far-Lefter"; also his version of the Leftist Manifesto!

Use Speed-Space As Driving Safety

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial on Wed., June 17, describing the "Ten Commandments" of safe driving was timely and appropriate. Vacation time is here and our highways and thoroughfares will be more congested than ever before. At least most of the commuters like myself, continually tell one another that the traffic problem worsens by the day.

I would like to add an extremely important to one of the 10 commandments of safe driving you listed. Number 6 states, "keep your distance; allow at least a car length between you and the car ahead. Make it two lengths at night." If you followed this advice and were traveling 60 miles an hour, you would very likely be California's next fatality if the car ahead stopped all at once. This item should be amended to say: Keep your distance; allow at least a car length between you and the car ahead for every 10 miles an hour you are traveling. In simple terms, if you are traveling 50 miles an hour you should be at least 5 car lengths behind the car ahead. Twice this distance at night would be appropriate.

We in the Pacific Telephone Company are extremely conscious and very proud of our safety record on or off the job. The above rule is one that we are taught, believe in and practice.

Office Of County Clerk Gets Cheer

Editor, Independent-Journal:

. . . Last week I had occasion to obtain information from the county clerk's office and was amazed at the courteousness and helpfulness of both Mr. Gnoss and his staff.

From my observation over a period of several hours, it was a smooth-running operation with everyone working in a diligent and efficient manner.

For Father's Day, A Father's Prayer

As an observance of Father's Day, I send you the late General MacArthur's prayer for his son.

"Build me a son, O Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak, and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid; one who will be proud and unbending in honest defeat, and humble and gentle in victory.

"Build me a son whose wishes will not take the place of deeds; a son who will know Thee—and that to know himself is the foundation stone of knowledge.

"Lead him, I pray, not in the path of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenge. Here let him learn to stand up in the storm; here let him learn compassion for those who fail.

"Build me a son whose heart will be clear, whose goal will be high, a son who will master himself before he seek to master other men, and one who will reach into the future, yet never forget the past.

"And after all these things are his, add, I pray, enough of a sense of humor, so that he may always be serious, yet never take to himself too seriously. Give him humility, so that he may always remember the simplicity of true greatness, the open mind of true wisdom, and the meekness of true strength.

"Then I, his father, will dare to whisper, 'I have not lived in vain.'—Amen."

Supreme Court Makes Historic Decision On Reapportionment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has now taken three historic steps in two years in a field it had timidly avoided: voting in the states. The third time was Monday.

The court got biting criticism for all three decisions, and high praise. The country quickly adjusted to the first two and reacted quickly to the third. This is an ABC on what happened and why, starting with the federal government as background:

IN CONGRESS each state, under the Constitution, is entitled to two senators. Size or population doesn't count. It is different with the House of Representatives. There each state is entitled to at least one representative.

But any more than that must be based on its population in relation to the population of the other states, since the total number of representatives for the 50 states is limited now to 435.

Every ten years, after a census, the number of representatives is reapportioned among the states according to their population. So, while each state has two senators, the number of representatives varies by state populations.

THE SAME GENERAL idea operated in the states, or was supposed to, in picking members of their legislatures.

Forty state constitutions required rearranging their legislative districts every ten years or so to provide voters equal representations. But for generations some state legislatures ignored their constitutions. Examples: Tennessee and Alabama.

At the beginning of the century, rural areas dominated states legislatures. Then populations shifted from farms to cities, but there was no redistricting. Rural areas were still in control and would do nothing to lose it.

An example of what this could mean: 10,000 people in one rural legislative district would have one state representative, while 100,000 city people would also have only one. This meant one farmer's vote was equal to ten city votes.

THIS MEANT UNEQUAL representation. But the rural-controlled legislatures would not change it. Appeals were made to the Supreme Court. It ducked, saying it didn't want to get involved in politics. It said this last in 1946.

In 1962, in a Tennessee case, the court reversed itself and said federal courts would step in if necessary to order redistricting to provide citizens of a state more equal representation in legislatures.

It laid down a rule which has guided it since: One voter, one vote. Then on Feb. 17, 1964, the court went further, stepped into state arrangements for election of representatives to Congress from states' congressional districts.

MONDAY THE THIRD step came when the court said state senators must also be elected on a population basis instead of by some old, fixed rule of state senatorial districts that gave unequal representation.

How could the court say state senators must represent, more or less, equal numbers of a state's population when on the federal level each state is entitled to two U. S. senators, no matter how big or small the population?

Chief Justice Earl Warren, in a lucid opinion, reasoned this way:

The federal system—two senators, regardless of population —was never intended to be a model for the states. It was a compromise between large and small states when the country was created.

BIG STATES, with more representatives, would have a larger voice in the House; but every state was to have two senators.

But, Warren said, whereas each state is a so-called sovereign entity, the various subdivisions of a state can't be so considered. They are just subordinate instruments created by and within a state to carry out its functions.

He said the idea of equal representation in a state legislature for citizens would not mean much if it was equal in the House but unequal in the Senate, since then one house could cancel out what the other wanted.

AGAINST EACH OTHER

Scranton, Goldwater Voting Is Compared

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. William W. Scranton were members of the 87th U. S. Congress—Goldwater in the Senate, Scranton in the House.

The scorekeepers report that Goldwater and Scranton, both Republicans, voted against each other more often than not. The liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) rates all members of Congress each year on the basis of their votes on what ADA considers to be liberal proposals.

FOR THE FIRST session of the 87th Congress (President John F. Kennedy's first Congress, 1961), ADA rated Scranton as voting right 40 per cent of the time. Goldwater scored zero with the ADA.

Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA), is conservative and sponsored by such persons as former President Herbert Hoover; former New Jersey Gov. Charles Edison, who was one of FDR's Navy secretaries; former Rep. Howard Buffett of Nebraska; retired Adm. Eben Moreell, USN, and Loyd Wright, Los Angeles, past president of the American Bar Assn.

ACA ALSO RATES members of Congress on the basis of their voting records. One rating is called the consistency index, which ACA defines as representing votes "for safeguarding the God-given dignity of the individual, and promoting sound economic growth by strengthening constitutional government; and votes against group morality and a socialized economy through centralization of government power."

Goldwater's consistency index score was 100 per cent. Scranton's was 52 per cent. ACA also rated House members in such general areas as sound money, competitive markets and such. Scranton's scores were as follows in support of:

Sound money, 58 per cent; private competitive markets, 67 per cent; local self-government, 54 per cent; private ownership, 75 per cent, and individual liberty, 100 per cent.

SCRANTON'S VOTING record seems well to fit the pattern of the soft-boiled Republican sought by the Eisenhower wing of the party to lead a stop-Goldwater crusade. Scranton is safe in the Eisenhower political area. Hostile for him will be the areas of hard-boiled Republicanism where, if the conservatives are not a majority within the party, they may be numerous, well organized, enthusiastic and determined.

State Sweepstakes Tickets 'Sell Like Hotcakes' In East

New Hampshire Lottery Is Big Attraction To Outsiders

By ALLAN PRIAULX

CONCORD, N. H. (UPI)—Sweepstakes tickets are selling like hotcakes in New Hampshire, the only state in this century to authorize a sweepstakes. But hardly any Yankees are buying them.

More than 1.3 million dollars worth of tickets have been sold so far at $3 apiece to persons willing to gamble on prizes which range up to $100,000.

Most of the buyers appear to come from surrounding states and a few cars from as far as Oregon are seen parked in front of the state's green front liquor stores, the only place besides race tracks they are sold.

"We haven't even started yet," sweeps director Edward J. Powers claimed. "Wait until the summer tourists pour into this state, we'll at least triple our business."

The first tickets will be drawn from plastic drums in Salem, N. H., at Rockingham Park sometime in July.

There will be 332 tickets out of the first one million dollars' worth drawn, and each person holding a ticket that is drawn will win some sort of prize, from a few hundred dollars to a top of $100,000. The series will be repeated for each one million dollars' worth.

(California voters will decide at the Nov. 3 general election whether this state should have a lottery—operated by a private corporation dispensing tickets through vending machines, but controlled by the state.)

New Hampshire authorized a sweepstakes to raise money for education in the state, which has no sales or income tax.

The proposal passed the legislature last year after heated debate and was approved by Democratic Gov. John W. King. The voters gave it a thumping endorsement last March in a referendum.

Here's how it will work:

Each of the 332 three-year-old horses entered in the race will be assigned a ticket in a small rotating drum.

A larger drum will hold 333,333 tickets representing one million dollars.

A horse ticket and a sweeps ticket will be matched two-by-two. Tickets on horses that actually run the race and the ones that win will be worth the most after the Sept. 12 race.

The name and address of the ticket buyer or beneficiary are on all tickets, which the store keeps, and buyers are given only an "acknowledgement" which they are not required to present to collect. Prizes will be paid on the basis of names and addresses.

The tickets are sold through electronic devices much like a receipt-giving machine in a retail store.

The tickets go into the machine and are picked up each evening by an armored car and stored in a bank vault in Manchester.

Most of the tickets are being sold at liquor stores on the state's borders.

Keene, in southwestern New Hampshire, caters to chance takers within an easy drive from New York state, Massachusetts, Vermont and even further away.

Gus Bailey, manager of the Keene store, said, "We started with one machine and now have five. We sell more tickets than any other store. Most of the buyers seem to be coming from Connecticut and New Jersey."

Powers, a former head of the FBI office in Boston who is making $20,000 a year directing the sweepstakes, feels thousands more tickets could be sold if he could advertise out of state.

The sweepstakes commission is dancing a minuet around the strict federal gambling laws which hamper the lottery.

New Hampshire's two senators and two congressmen co-sponsored bills in Washington to exempt the state's program from a steep 10 per cent federal excise gambling tax.

The state is believed to be the only one in the nation paying a direct tax to the federal government and the lawmakers feel the sweeps should be exempt, just as pari-mutuel tracks and other programs are.

Going by the book, the Internal Revenue Service has even ruled that the clerks selling the tickets must have $50 federal gambling tax stamps. Both taxes are paid under protest.

Radio stations fear adverse action from the Federal Communications Commission because of a ruling that they must limit their broadcasting to "legitimate news" and air nothing of "a promotional nature."

Newspapers face a similar ruling from the Post Office Department, which issues them their important second-class mailing permits.

The federal criminal code sets a fine of $1,000 and up to two years in jail for persons convicted of using the mails to transport lottery items. Whether sweepstakes "acknowledgements" or requests from friends in another state for tickets fall into this category is moot.

"We're just creating a state of law dodgers with this program," said attorney Robert Eaton of Manchester. He represents a would-be "sweepstakes ticket agency" that has never gone into business. He would like to operate like a theater ticket agency does.

Sweeps commission chairman Howell Shepard takes a dim view of such agencies and there are reports they may soon be outlawed by the commission.

"A fear that "big-time gamblers and racketeers" would move into the Granite State was expressed by opponents of the sweeps.

"We've had no complaints or reports whatsoever as of the present time," said State Police Criminal Division Head Capt. John Conti. "But we're keeping our ears open."

Because the tickets are sold only in the liquor stores and at Rockingham Park and Hinsdale race tracks, the sweeps commission is itching to liberalize the laws.

It has urged hotels and motels to provide a "ticket buying service" for their guests the same way they provide a laundry service.

The law will be in for some amending at the 1965 legislature.

The original sponsor, Rep. Lawrence M. Pickett of Keene, says he will propose amendments to allow tickets to be sold at the New Hampshire exhibit of the World's Fair in New York and at the state's turnpike toll plazas and even state parks.

Highway commissioner John Morton is cool to the idea of machines at his toll plazas, claiming his men "have enough to do already just taking quarters. Anyway, where would we put all the cars?"

LOTTERY LINEUP—Buyers—mostly from out of state—flock to the electronic ticket dispensing machines offered in New Hampshire, site of this century's first legal lottery in this nation. California voters will decide on the Nov. 3 election ballot whether their state will have a similar lottery operation. (UPI Telephoto)

Crisis-Plagued Nasser Now Enjoying Sweet Successes

Nehru's Death, Nikita's Visit Bolster Egypt

By RAY MOSELEY

CAIRO (UPI)—Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser is a man who seems bedeviled by crises even when he isn't creating them. But suddenly, for Nasser, everything is coming up roses.

In the past six months he has enjoyed a string of almost unparalleled successes, beginning with the Arab summit in January and ending with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit in May and a unity agreement with Iraq.

As he approaches his 12th anniversary in power next month, Nasser's prestige in the Arab world is higher than at any time since the peak year of 1956, the year of the Suez war.

And with the death of India's Nehru he may emerge more than ever as a pivotal figure leading the developing nations in a policy of noncommitment to either East or West.

But at the same time, hostility toward Nasser seems to be mounting in Britain. Some of the old questions about him remain and new ones have come along.

Whose side is he really on? Does he really intend to make war on Israel? Are the German scientists working for him secretly concocting an atomic bomb?

Not so long ago, questions about Nasser had lost some of their urgency, for his star seemed to be a falling one.

The widely trumpeted union with Syria collapsed ignominiously in 1961. The Yemen revolution in which he committed his troops was not going well. Last year's attempt at a union of Egypt, Syria and Iraq fell flat.

But then Nasser produced a master stroke, the Arab summit. Almost literally overnight, he composed his differences with kings and monarchs whose regimes he had vilified for years.

He got all Arabs to agree on working together to try to counter Israel's plans for diverting the Jordan River, and in the meantime to cease attacking one another.

Since then the Arabs have done nothing concrete to counter the he is becoming more friendly toward Russia and more hostile toward the West.

To the extent that he feels the Soviet Union is more sympathetic to his aims, this is true. But most observers think he is just as determined as ever to keep communism out of the Middle East and to avoid entanglement in East-West conflicts.

His relations with the West have been exacerbated by his growing quarrel with the British and his employment of German scientists.

Nasser is just as determined to rid the Arab world of all vestiges of British colonialism as he is a big new Soviet loan and the agreement laying the basis for unity with Iraq.

Behind The News

Nasser topped all this off by leaking a report that he plans to orbit an earth satellite this summer.

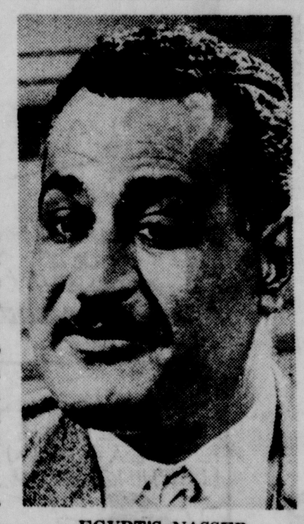
Three more summit conferences — African, Arab and nonaligned—are to be held in the United Arab Republic this year, further attesting to Nasser's prestige abroad.

Some of Nasser's recent moves have created an impression that Israeli water diversion, but the psychological effect of the summit was enormous.

There followed Nasser's call to Libya to rid itself of Western military bases, a new constitution assuring to his own people civil liberties and greater participation in government, a trip to Yemen to incite rebels in the South Arabian Federation to step up their warfare against the British, the Khrushchev visit that produced to keep the Communists out, but at the same time he scoffs at British charges that his real aim is to grab their oil interests.

As for the moral issues involved in employing some Germans with a Nazi past to develop weapons for potential use against Israel, Nasser views this somewhat differently from the average Westerner.

His quarrel is not with the Jewish religion, but rather with the state of Israel, and to him there is a profound difference.



EGYPT'S NASSER
His star seems rising

Will he some day make war on Israel? At the Arab summit, he restrained the firebrands who wanted to declare war, but this may have been only because he felt the time wasn't ripe. Some diplomats in Cairo are convinced he will never attack Israel, however.

The question remains the most vital, and the most difficult to answer, of the many that surround Egypt's enigmatic leader.

REAPPORTIONMENT

North's Water Safeguards Might Be First Casualties

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Worried Northern California water leaders today speculated that California's venerable county of origin act would be one of the first casualties of a state Senate reapportionment, if ever carried out along the lines of the Supreme Court decision ordering senates to reapportion on a population basis.

A companion law, the watershed protection act, probably would fall by the wayside at the same time, they fear.

The county of origin act, passed in 1963, prohibits the assignment of state-held water rights which would take away water needed for the future development of the county in which the water originates.

Similarly, the watershed protection act, passed in 1933, prohibits diversion of water from its watershed in amounts greater than those needed in the watershed. It was adopted as a part of the original Central Valley Project Act.

Southern California interests long have sought to repeal or change the county of origin act, but the present make-up of the Senate has kept it on the books.

This law became an issue of the 1959 legislative fight which ended with passage of the Burns-Porter Act to authorize financing for the state water project.

It also was a central issue in an abortive attempt through initiative measure to reapportion the Senate in 1960.

Southern California water leaders held that they should not financially underwrite a state water project if the north could recapture the water under terms of the county of origin act.

Northern California water people say that the act is far from a dead issue, even though the state water project is under way.

They point out that the state water rights applications, under which the act comes into play, cover all of the water remaining on the North Coast, or about 20 million acre-feet.

Millions Packing For Annual Vacation Journeys

By JORIE LUELOFF

A. P. Newsfeatures Writer

It's vacation time again and more Americans than ever are planning trips. In 1963 a record 2.5 million Americans traveled overseas. Original forecasts for 1964 predicted an increase of 10 per cent, but that figure has already been raised to 15 per cent. It may have to be jumped again.

The major domestic attraction will be the World's Fair which, one travel agency reports, is expected to double the number of tourists headed for New York this summer. By mid-June, New York hotels were overwhelmed by people seeking space, and were turning away even those with "reservations."

Hawaii is another popular attraction. Approximately 371,540 westbound travelers arrived in Honolulu in 1963, and even more are expected this year. American Express reports that sales of its package tours to the islands are already treble what they were a year ago.

The national parks will continue to be popular, along with the Western dude ranch country, New England and Cape Cod, and the lakes of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Unprecedented numbers of Americans are going overseas. According to the U. S. Passport Agency, which received 1,026,027 applications in 1963, this year's first quarter applications were 15 per cent above last year's. Some officials predict second quarter applications will show an increase of 20 per cent.

Several unique attractions are luring Americans overseas this year — the Olympic Games in Tokyo this fall, the Swiss National Exposition in Lausanne and Britain's Shakespeare Festival. The 20th anniversary of the Normandy invasion is drawing many World War II veterans and their families to the battlefields. Pope Paul VI's trip to the Holy Land has aroused wide interest in that area.

Canada, which played host to 9,800,000 U. S. visitors last year, will continue to receive the largest number of American tourists. But Europe expects more Americans than ever — an estimated 1,305,000. Bookings on one popular tour to Europe are already seven times greater this year than they were for all of 1963.

Rome, Paris, Vienna and London will continue to attract the most visitors, with Athens, Madrid, Copenhagen and Lisbon running next.

Tourist traffic to the Pacific and Far East is increasing more rapidly than that of any other region. This area expects approximately 260,000 travelers from the United States in 1964. Japan, Hong Kong and Tahiti will be the most popular.

Many Americans — especially "repeaters" who have been abroad at least once — are searching for unusual, exotic places to visit. This will swell the tourist flow to Africa and the Middle East. One California travel agency is even investigating the possibilities of offering tours to Outer Mongolia.

Victory Comes On Civil Rights

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Victory came for civil rights forces in the Senate this week.

The strongest civil rights legislation since reconstruction times was expected to gain House approval soon. There were hopes it would be the law of the land by July 4.

The longest Southern Senate filibuster in history was ended by a 73-27 vote. Federal regulations to end discrimination in voting, schools, employment, unions, public places, public accommodations and dispensing of federal funds were finally in sight.

But the rights bill victory left Republicans with a knotty problem. Its front-running candidate for the presidential nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, was among only six GOP senators who voted against it.

Rep. Melvin Laird (Wis.) chairman of the GOP National Convention Platform Drafting Committee immediately underlined the graveness of the situation by asserting the platform should endorse the rights bill.

Working hard to derail the Goldwater bandwagon on the rights bill issue, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton sped from state to state, calling on the Arizona senator to repudiate his stand as opposed to the "traditional Republican philosophy of equal opportunity for all."

The Pennsylvanian had some help in his campaign from New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who pulled out of the campaign and declared he was backing Scranton for the nomination.

Around The World Around The Clock

Washington — Faced with a steadily deepening crisis in Southeast Asia, the government was understood ready to meet the possibility of a major conflict to block further Communist advances.

Copenhagen — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev toured Scandinavia and indicated a favorable attitude toward a world summit conference.

Washington—FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover reported that U.S. crime increased 19 per cent in the first three months of this year.

Ankara—Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu won a slim victory in a confidence vote and was reported ready to push now in talks with President Lyndon B. Johnson on the Cyprus situation.

Washington—The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that both houses of a state legislature must allocate seats on an equal population basis.

Geneva—There was progress at the international disarmament talks as the Soviet Union and the United States agreed on a schedule of priorities for discussing various proposals.

Niigata—Twenty-five persons were killed and more than 200 injured in an earthquake that rocked Japan's largest petroleum and natural gas producing center.

Today is Saturday, June 20, the 172nd day of 1964 with 194 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1782, Congress adopted the Great Seal of the United States.

In 1837, the Victorian Age began as Princess Victoria learned her uncle, the king, had died and she was the new British ruler.

In 1898, the United States seized Guam, in the Spanish American War.

In 1931, President Herbert Hoover proclaimed a one-year international moratorium on all payments of government debts.

A thought for the day—English writer Jonathan Swift said: "How vain an attempt it is for a man to endeavor doing himself honor among those who are out of all degree of equality of comparison with him."

Unusual Discard Presents Problem In Bridge Game

Some bridge hands present situations that constantly occur in play. Others are unlikely to occur even if you played twelve hours a day for the rest of your life.

Perhaps the unusual hand is more entertaining than instructive, but men (and bridge players) do not live by bread alone.

West leads the ace of diamonds and continues with the queen. Dummy ruffs, and East discards whatever he doesn't need.

EXAMPLE

For example? Name a card that East doesn't need.

Well, at that, maybe East has a problem. When this hand was played in the 1964 Intercollegiate Championships very few college students solved the problem correctly.

If East discards a club, declarer can cash dummy's ace and king of clubs to set up the nine of clubs as his twelfth trick. (South might muff this in actual play, but there's no denying that the club discard is dangerous.)

ON THE HORNS

If East discards a spade, South can draw trumps, cash three high spades, and ruff a spade. Then dummy's last spade is good for the twelfth trick.

East is caught on the horns of a dilemma. If he discards a spade, dummy's last spade will be good; and if East discards a club, dummy's last club will be good.

Fortunately, this hand has three horns. East can discard a trump.

EVIL DAY

This strange discard postpones the evil day when East will have to weaken one of the black suits. More important, that day is not evil when it does come.

If South leads out four rounds of trumps to force a discard from the East hand, he must first discard from dummy. East discards the same suit as dummy, and this does declarer no good at all.

Don't bother to file this away in your little lesson book. The next time you have to discard a trump will probably occur in June, 2064. You should live so long!

QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, opens with five diamonds.

You hold:
♠ A Q 10 8 4
♡ Q 9 8 7
♦ K
♣ A K 9

What do you say?

Answer: Double.

You will be delighted if your partner bids, but this is a penalty double. You cannot afford to let the dealer get away scot-free with his shutout bid.

WROUGHT WITH TRADING STAMPS — Father Matthew J. Killion, foreground, Roman Catholic chaplain for Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch, N.Y., looks at nearly completed chapel of "St. Jude Within The Walls," with Warden Charles L. McKendrick. (AP Wirephoto)

Trading Stamps Build Chapel Within Walls Of Grim Prison

NAPANOCH, N.Y. (UPI) —A prison chapel that trading stamps built was dedicated here today—"a symbol of love surrounded by walls of distrust."

The beautiful chapel of brick and rough-hewn wood stands within the prison yard in stark contrast to the concrete and steel walls that form its background.

"It's a dream come true," smiled Father Matthew J. Killion, Roman Catholic priest at the eastern correctional institution.

"Even the iron bars and machine gun-carrying guards on the walls above seem a little less severe with this place of God here," Father Killion said.

The strikingly handsome chapel-in-the-round mostly has been financed with 45,000 books of trading stamps that were received from all parts of the world.

"We still need some 20,000 books of stamps, but people have been good to us, and I'm certain they'll send us the rest," he said.

Father Killion, who has been ministering to the needs of about 500 Catholic prisoners at this maximum security prison for the past seven years, conceived his unique trading stamp method of financing two years ago when he discovered the state could supply no funds for construction of a chapel.

"We had to use the gymnasium," he said, pointing to a grim brick building with bars covering its windows.

Workers, including prison inmates and civilian workers, are busy putting the last finishing touches on the chapel, which cost about $175,000, including furnishings.

"It would have cost a lot more, except for the wonderful work that some of the inmates have done," Father Killion said.

He said that many inmates and former inmates had "certainly profited spiritually and emotionally" from working on the project.

Several of them who are "doing wonderfully" since their release have helped the priest locate used building supplies in New York City and aided him in transporting them to this lower Catskill Mountain prison.

"They'll be back Saturday for the dedication," smiled the priest.

Federal Agents Catch Suspect In San Rafael

A Sacramento man wanted on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for abortion was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in San Rafael yesterday.

Henry F. Jackson, 41, was picked up at the home of a friend at 1545 Fourth Street. He was held at the Marin County jail for San Francisco police.

Jackson was indicted in April by the San Francisco County Grand Jury on two counts of abortion. A complaint charging unlawful flight was filed by the FBI when police received information he had left the state.

Inspector Walter H. Kracke of San Francisco police said the unlawful flight charge would be dropped, since Jackson was picked up in this area.

Jackson was indicted on charges of performing abortions on two women in San Francisco motels, Kracke said.

Case Continued

The case of Farrell Eugene Kissinger, 38, former manager of the Black Market in San Anselmo, charged with embezzlement, was continued in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to Monday at 1:30 p.m. for plea. He is charged with embezzling $16,000 worth of merchandise and money from the store.

Dam Disaster Cause

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A special State Board of Inquiry yesterday blamed the Baldwin Hills dam disaster on earth movements at the site caused mainly by nearby land sinkage. The earthfill dam holding water in the big hilltop reservoir in Los Angeles burst last December. The flood took five lives and caused damage estimated at 15 to 50 million dollars.

Deborah, 17, a Tamalpais High School graduate, will be a freshman at Reed College in Portland, Ore. in September, where she is planning to be a pre-medical student.

She is a life member of the California Scholarship Federation and Honor T. She received a National Merit Scholarship Foundation letter of commendation and was chosen best female thespian at Tamalpais High School. Deborah won the Labor Council's award.

During high school he participated in many athletic events and was on the first string football, basketball and track.

SAN FRANCISCO ((UPI)—The U.S. District Court of Appeals yesterday declared unconstitutional the section of the Landrum-Griffin act that bars Communists from holding a union office. The court split 5-3 in reversing the earlier conviction under the act of Archie Brown, an admitted Communist Party member and member of the executive board of Local 10 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

Battery Nets Suspended Term

Isaac Arthur Sanchez, 22, of 1822 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, was sentenced to a one year suspended term in the county jail yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a charge of battery.

He was placed on probation for three years, and as a condition of probation, must serve 90 days in jail, with credit for 30 days already served. He is already on probation for a failure to provide charge.

Sanchez was arrested May 11 after he struck Jerry Douglas Gillette of San Mateo in the back of the head with a soft drink bottle.

There's Talk Of Pennant For Phillies — Already

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Gene Mauch has his heart dead set on three ideals.

He wants to dance at his daughter's wedding, get into a World Series at least once in his life and go to heaven when he dies.

Those are the only three things he says he wants and the Philadelphia Phillies appear on their way toward making at least one of their manager's dreams come true.

They have won seven of their last eight games and ballooned their National League lead to 2½ games, their biggest margin yet, by sweeping the New York Mets, 2-1 and 7-2, in last night's twi-night doubleheader.

When and if the boyish-looking, 38-year-old Mauch does get into a World Series with his Phils, he should, and probably will, extend a heartfelt vote of thanks to his general manager, John Quinn, for helping to make it all possible.

Two players Quinn obtained in separate deals with the Chicago White Sox ● outfielder John Callison and first baseman Roy Sievers — played prominent roles in last night's two victories over the Mets, who now have lost eight in a row.

Callison's eighth home run of the season with one on in the sixth inning proved to be the Phils' margin of victory, although it represented only a small part of his night's work.

Callison also had a triple, a single, a walk and a stolen base in the opener as well as a pair of singles in the nightcap. Sievers accounted for three runs in the finale with a two-run homer and a double.

Art Mahaffey recorded his seventh win in the first game although Ed Roebuck had to come in from the bullpen and get the last man out. Larry Bearnarth (4-4) was the loser after relieving starter Carl Willey with the score tied in the sixth inning. Ray Culp held the Mets to five hits in the nightcap for his third triumph.

The St. Louis Cardinals ran their winning streak to four games with a 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants, while the Cincinnati Reds crushed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 11-1, and the Houston Colts came from behind to defeat the Milwaukee Braves, 9-7. Rain washed out the game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs.

Johnny Edwards led the Cincinnati attack with four RBI on a double and two singles. Vada Pinson also had three hits, including a home run, while Leo Cardenas homered for the Reds.

Jim Maloney struck out 11 Dodgers and gave up five hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Colts, down 5-3, scored six runs in the eighth inning and held on against the Braves. Joe Gaines, acquired from Baltimore last Monday, ignited the outburst with a home run. Lee Maye and Frank Bolling homered for Milwaukee.

DEAD HEAT—West Point's Bill Straub (left) and the Air Force's Jim Murphy broke the tape in a dead heat at yesterday's NCAA 5,000-meter championship at Eugene, Ore.
(AP Wirephoto)

National Open 'Tiger' Loses Its Teeth

WASHINGTON (AP)—The heat made a toothless tiger out of the tiger course that was supposed to devour the world's best golfers in the National Open Golf Championship, Robert Trent Jones said today.

"The rough dried out and played much easier than anybody had expected," added the architect who planted the perils in the Congressional Country Club course where the game's elite struggled this weekend.

Jones admitted he was surprised a the record-tying 64 by young Tommy Jacobs and two sub-par rounds by Arnold Palmer, which put them 1-2 in the fight going into today's final two rounds.

"The fact that Palmer came out of the rough seven times to get his par on the second round shows how much the course had lost its bite," Jones said.

"If the rough had been watered, or if it hadn't dried out so much, this would have cost him a stroke on most holes," Jones added.

Jones cited the fine shot Jacobs made out of the rough on the third to get his par in his record round and said this also was proof that the big, massive layout, called an elephant's cemetery by some disgruntled competitors, was not as formidable as feared.

"Still, we have had only three rounds under par and only Jacobs and Palmer are under par for 36 holes," the architect said. "I think Congressional proved itself a tough test despite the easing of the rough."

Jones said Jacobs' round might have been made on any course in the world.

"He was playing superbly, particularly on his approaches. He was putting the ball on the green and sinking his putts," Jones said.

He said Jacobs' putting, including a 60-footer for a birdie at the 18th, proved that the hump-backed greens were not unfairly severe.

As remarkable as was Jacobs' record-tying round, Jones said he thought Ben Hogan's 67 on the final round at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich. in 1951 — one of two sub-par rounds played during the entire tournament — was probably better. The late Clayton Heafner had the other — a 69.

"Oakland Hills, with a par 70, was a tougher course. Hogan's round was phenomenal."

PHOTOS CONFIRM NCAA DEAD HEAT

EUGENE (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. rules committee jury confirmed last last night that Army's Bill Straub and Air Force's Jim Murphy ran a dead heat in the 5,000 meter race.

Field judges first called it a dead heat, then decided a study of photographs should be made.

Negatives indicated it was a tie and the jury confirmed this after studying a sequence of six photographs covering the finish and the final two yards of the race.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — One of the Army's newest second lieutenants didn't really know what he could do until the final yards of a race that produced a national collegiate meet record.

"I was just trying to place third," gasped an exhausted Bill Straub after he sprawled into the tape yesterday. The judges called it a dead heat with Air Force's Jim Murphy in the 5,000 meter race at the annual NCAA meet.

The time was 14:12.3, compared to the previous record of 14:19.8 by Al Lawrence of Houston in 1960.

The American record is 13:38. by Bob Schul of Miami of Ohio, established June 5.

Murphy took over the lead with little more than a mile remaining in a race that covers three miles, 189 yards.

Straub closed in on the final stretch hoping for third place.

FINAL EFFORT

"Then I saw someone coming up to my side, and I made that final effort," Straub recounted later. The man coming up was Jim Keefe of Central Connecticut, who finished third. Straub lunged into the tape with Murphy, tripping on Murphy's leg at the line.

Straub fell to the ground. He needed help off the track, his legs rubbery and his eyes glazed.

"I'm usually sick after a fast last quarter, but not like this," he said ruefully. Straub has just completed his West Point course. Murphy is a sophomore at the Air Force Academy.

There were two other meet records cracked. Gayle Hopkins of Arizona sailed 26-9¼ in the broad jump, compared to 26-7 by Greg Bell of Indiana in 1957, and two sprinters cut a tenth of a second off a 100-meter dash mark of 10.2 seconds.

They were Trenton Jackson of Illinois and Harry Jerome of Oregon. The time equals the American and collegiate records.

West Coast teams were in a dominent position as the final day opened.

Oregon, which won the national title in 1962, the only other time this meet was held on this track, took 16 men into the finals. San Jose, leading Oregon 16-4 in points so far, has seven men left.

Fresno State and California retained slim chances at the title.

Tommy Jacobs' 64 Called Impossible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Where was Tommy Jacobs at 3 a.m.?

Sleeping soundly? Or pacing the floor?

Dimpled Tommy tore up the Congressional Country Club course — the vaunted monster — with a record-tying 64 yesterday and found himself one stroke in front of Arnold Palmer, the golfing colossus, at the halfway point of the U.S. Open.

That earned Jacobs, a handsome 29-year-old with wavy brown hair and a shy smile, a head-to-head playing spot with Palmer down the pressure cooker stretch of 36 final holes today.

Jacobs had 136, four under par. Palmer, bidding for the grand slam of golf, had 137. He wants this title so bad he would disturb anybody's sleep.

Also, this open is the 50th anniversary of the first one that Walter Hagen—the Palmer of his day—won in 1914, and had watchers wondering if Jacobs might suffer the fate of some of Hagen opponents.

There was the night, for example, when Hagen was still entertaining his admirers at 3 a.m., and was reminded that his opponent of the day was safely in bed.

"Yeah," the Haig agreed, "but he ain't sleeping."

If young Jacobs managed to nod off, visions of his dream round would settle his nerves. Shooting 64 in the U.S. Open—it has only been done once before—is a lot different than shooting 64 in the weekly whatchamacallit open.

"It would have been a 58 on any other golf course," said veteran E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, who played with Jacobs. "I still don't believe it. This course can not be played in 64.

"I played more rounds with Byron Nelson, Sam Snead and Ben Hogan than any man alive," the wandering Arkansan continued, "and they never shot a round like this."

Jacobs capped the round with a putt that traveled a measured 60 feet, 5 inches into the cup for a birdie at the 18th. Harrison had some comment about that, too.

"Don't tell me that putt was only 60 feet," he said. "I'd like to buy some real estate from the man who measured it."

Jacobs had 72 the first round, while Palmer added a 69 to his opening 68. So far there have been four rounds under par 70—and Palmer has two of them.

No other player was under par 140 for the 7,053-yard course, longest ever used in the Open.

Unlike Last Season, Giants Have Hit In Clutch In Late Innings

Jack Hanley

ST. LOUIS — Last year the Giants lost 17 ball games in which they were leading in the eighth and ninth innings. This year they already have won 13 games in the final frames or extra innings. Lucky? Perhaps, but let the record speak for itself.

April 17—Won the first of what was to become seven straight extra inning victories — a bases-loaded 10th inning walk by Ron Taylor to Chuck Hiller for a 5-4 win over the Cardinals.

April 20 — Beat Cincinnati 5-2 when Bob Skinner dropped Tom Haller's routine fly with the bases - loaded, two-out in the eighth and the score tied 2-2.

May 2—Duke Snider's No. 1 homer as a Giant came against his old Dodger teammates and tied it 4-4 in the ninth after which Jay Alou and Hiller won it in the 12th with a bunt single, stolen base and solid single.

May 4—Alou and Hiller again. This time in the 12th—a single and double for a 3-2 win over Houston.

May 7—Trailing 6-5 going into the eighth against the Cubs, Alou, Willie Mays and Haller made the final count 7-6 on three singles.

May 16 — Mays' ninth inning homer tied it 4-4 and Jim Davenport's two-run homer in the 15th beat the Mets 6-4.

May 28—Curt Simmons had the Giants shutout 1-0 going into the eighth. Mays' two-run homer prevented what would have been Simmons' second cardinal whitewash of the Giants this season. Result, 2-1 Giant win.

May 31—Who will ever forget this one? Davenport's two-out triple in the 23rd and Del Crandall's pinch double beat the Mets 8-6.

June 5 — Orlando Cepeda's eighth inning homer tied Phillies 3-3. Harvey Kuenn's two-out pinch single in the 11th knocked in the winning run and Hiller's following triple sealed it 5-3.

June 6—More heroics in Connie Mack Stadium. Haller's two-run ninth inning homer broke 2-2 deadlock for 4-2 win.

June 7—A three-game series sweep over the Phillies with another come-from-behind dramatic finish. Jim Bunning, facing the Giants for first time, had them shutout 3-0 going into the ninth. Cepeda doubled, Snider homered and then Jim Ray Hart homered to tie it 3-3. A bases-loaded walk to Haller by Chris Short in the 10th gave the Giants their seventh consecutive extra-inning win, 4-3.

June 15—Hart's ninth inning single scored Willie McCovey with the winning 6-5 run over Cincinnati.

June 16 — McCovey's two-run pinch homer in ninth beat Joe Nuxhall and the Reds 3-2.

Maybe Giant batting averages are an eye sore this season but, as the record shows, Alvin Dark's warriors sure are doing some fancy clutch hitting.

Bucs Cut Pitcher, Recall Another

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates optioned pitcher Don Cardwell to Columbus of the International League today and recalled pitcher Tom Sisk from the same club. Cardwell has been bothered by a sore arm and has not pitched this season for Pittsburgh.

Dads Club Lands Four On All-Star Lineup

Four players from the Dads Club, undisputed champs of the San Rafael National Little League minor division, have been selected on the league's All-Star team that will meet the American League All-Stars July 25.

They are Steven Friedman, Pat Parnow, Chic Watt and John Anderson. They led the Dads Club to an 11-1 championship record this season.

Reds Put Temple On Active Roster

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced last night that an old favorite with Reds' fans, second baseman Johnny Temple, has been placed back on the active list.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said that Temple, 34, who had been one of the Reds' four coaches, will at first be used as a pinch hitter. He has been taking batting practice for a week.

Oh, Oh! Giants Are Going Wrong Way

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, who came to town in a struggle for first place, today found themselves in a fight to stay out of fourth.

The Giants lost another one to the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1, last night to fall 2½ games back of Philadelphia. Meanwhile, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati have climbed to within two games of the slumping Giants.

Fire-balling Bob Gibson and young Ron Herbel both pitched well last night, but the difference again proved to be Julian Javier, the Cards' second baseman.

The usually light-hitting pivot man, who had a big night against Juan Marichal Thursday, continued his sturdy thumping by drilling a one-on homer in the seventh yesterday to decide the issue.

Jim Davenport's solo homer had put the Giants ahead in the second inning, but in the sixth, Davenport came up with the bases loaded and flied out.

A single by Willie McCovey and double by Orlando Cepeda with two down had preceded an intentional pass to Tom Haller to get at Davenport. The strategy worked.

The Cards knotted the count in the sixth when Gibson walked, was advanced to second by Curt Flood, and scored on Lou Brock's double. That blow glanced off left fielder McCovey's glove and the wall, but Gibson suffered a muscle spasm in his leg as he neared home and just beat the peg home.

Herbel left in the seventh and Ken MacKenzie and Bob Shaw finished up in a flashy style, but it was too late for the Giants.

St. Louis outhit San Francisco, 7-6 as the recently-acquired Brock and Jose Pagan led their respective teams with two hits apiece.

Hannum said he was offered a five-year contract but turned it down in favor of the two-year pact because "I think the Warriors are going to be successful and I may be in a position to

YANKS, TWINS DOMINATE A.L. ALL-STAR TEAM

NEW YORK (AP) — The Minnesota Twins and New York Yankees dominate the American League All-Star team's starting line-up announced today for the July 7 game with the National League at Shea Stadium. Mickey Mantle of the Yanks was the only repeater from 1963 in the voting of 281 players, coaches and managers.

The bold new A.L. line-up included Twins Bob Allison at first base, Harmon Killebrew in left field and rookie Tony Oliva in right field. The Yanks were Elston Howard as catcher, Bobby Richardson at second base and Mickey Mantle in center.

Jim Fregosi, the fine young Los Angeles player who is hitting near .350, won the shortstop job and Brooks Robinson of Baltimore was picked for third base.

Soundly Beaten Olson To Get Rematch With Persol

S.F. Fight Set; Bobo In Tears

OOOPS! SLIPSIES—Bobo Olson slips on canvas during third round of 10-round, nationally-televised light heavyweight fight with Johnny Persol last night at Madison Square Garden. Persol won decision, upsetting Olson's comeback plans. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson's face and words told the story of his decision defeat to Johnny Persol more eloquently than anything else.

His head was bowed and there were tears in his eyes as he sat on a table in his dressing room last night.

"I couldn't get off," he said. "I wanted to win so badly here. I wanted to look real good. I trained so hard I must have left it all in the gym. I was sluggish, real sluggish. I just couldn't put those combinations together. I'd like another shot at him."

It looks like he'll get the return crack at Persol in San Francisco's Kezar Pavilion, Aug. 28. San Francisco promoter Art Benjamin got a verbal okay from both fighters and assurance of the television time from Madison Square Garden officials.

The defeat, by majority decision, was a costly loss for the 35-year-old former middleweight champion from San Francisco. He had an unbeaten streak of eight and a victory would have iced a title fight in October with light-heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano.

This was Olson's first fight in New York since he was knocked out by light-heavyweight king Archie Moore in the third round nine years ago. And, like he said, he wanted to win so very much.

DOMINATES ACTION

Only Persol, a fast 24-year-old New Yorker with ambitions of his own, wouldn't let him get off. The broadshouldered, narrow-waisted Persol dominated the action with a stinging left jab to the head and thumping rights to the ribs and stomach. He also scored solidly with hooks, right crosses and uppercuts.

The crowd of about 2,500 for the televised 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden was pro-Olson. They cheered him every chance they could but the moments of elation were rare. Only every now and then did Bobo click with his cuffing blows.

The two judges voted for Persol. Artie Aidala had it 9-1 in rounds. Nick Gamboli had it 6-4. Referee Mark Conn called it a draw, giving each five rounds and five points. The fans, who had applauded the judges' cards, booed the announcement of Conn's vote. The Associated Press scorecard had it 9-1 for Persol. Most of the ringside writers had Persol a winner by lop-sided margins.

Knocked out in his last start by Eddie Cotton, Persol now has a 12-1 record. He is ranked eighth. Olson, the No. 3 contender, has a 87-14-2 record. Olson had the edge in weights, 176 pounds to 174. In the betting it was an even money affair.

ORGANIZED BY TELEPHONE

Tiburon's 'Instant' Team

Without much time to prepare for the Marin Semi-Pro Baseball League, the newly-organized Tiburon Sox team has been thrown into the lion's den, being matched with powerful Billings-Hutchison tomorrow in the Tiburoner's first game.

Manager Norm Kreuter wanted to get up a team, so he grabbed the telephone and started dialing. The result was a 13-man roster that is hoped to be strengthened to 18, the league limit, later this month.

The Sox will open play tomorrow against the Builders at San Rafael's Albert Park, 1:30 p.m.

Starting hurlers for the Sox will be Skip Rush and Jim Gibbs. Rush is a hard-throwing right-hander who was named to the All-Marin Athletic League team in 1963 from San Rafael High. Gibbs attends The Citadel where he is the top southpaw on the team there.

HEAD FIREMAN

Rounding out the pitching staff is John Walker who pitched this past season for College of Marin. According to manager Kreuter, Walker will be the "head fireman" and also will be used in the infield.

The catching duties will be shared by Kreuter and coach Bob Melbern. Melbern played his prep days at Tamalpais High and won himself All-League honors his senior year. "So there is no problem for Bob to play the role as coach, infielder and catcher," says Kreuter.

Pat Dundas, also an ex-Tamalpais baseballer, will hold down the first base position. Pat will be the senior of the infield and comes back to the baseball wars after four years absence.

TOP HITTER

Second baseman will be Mike Wyman who should be one of the top hitters in the league, according to his manager.

Mike Walsh, doing his studies at Stanford University, is the Tiburon third sacker. Kreuter says "he'll be one of the most feared clutch men."

Khris Kimball, a shortstop, played his high school ball at Washington High in San Francisco and was All-City there in 1958. He will miss the first two weeks of the season for Tiburon because of summer military service. "His return will be welcomed," says Kreuter.

CANNON ARM

Steve Joses, an outfielder, will also be a latecomer to the team because of military service. Joses had a brief stint of pro ball with the New York Mets organization last year. "He has a cannon arm, can run like a deer, and can hit a ton," says Kreuter.

In the starting left field berth for Tiburon will be Mike Bresnan. "He's probably the finest left fielder in the league and carries a mighty big bat," Kreuter said. He's now a senior at Fresno State College.

In the centerfield spaces will be Chip Collins, a speedster who has completed the past season of ball for College of Marin. He may drive pitchers crazy with his base stealing ability.

Denny Becker will also see quite a bit of action in the Tiburon outfield, said Kreuter, adding that Denny can handle glove and bat equally well.

ROUNDED CLUB

"I figure on having a good season, considering that we have a late start," said Kreuter. "We will have a good rounded club."

The Tiburon club will be playing the teams originally scheduled for byes in the five-team schedule. All the Tiburon games will be on the road, which will prove a hardship to the young club.

Ted Connolly Hangs 'Em Up

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ted Connolly, 32, offensive guard for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, announced his retirement yesterday.

Connolly, a nine-year veteran of pro football, was traded to the Browns by the San Francisco 49ers before the start of last season after a lengthy salary dispute with the 49ers.

He said he will work full-time with an industrial real estate firm.

Three Marin Semi-Pro Games Sunday

Now that the Marin County Semi-Pro Baseball League has expanded to six teams with the addition of the Tiburon Sox, there will be baseballs flying around on three Marin diamonds tomorrow.

DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage (1-0) will battle the Novak Builders (0-1) on the Novato High School baseball field at 1:30 p.m.; the San Anselmo Merchants (0-1) will host the Mill Valley Merchants (0-0) on the Memorial Field diamond at 1:30, and Billings-Hutchison (1-0) will initiate the Tiburon entry on San Rafael's Albert Park diamond, also at 1:30 p.m.

It will also be the first league game for the Merchants of Mill Valley who drew the opening round bye last Sunday. Senator Kennedy's Back Broken

SENATOR KENNEDY
En route to convention

JFK's Brother Survives Air Crash Fatal For Two

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), younger brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, was hospitalized with a broken back today after a private plane crashed last night in an apple orchard taking two lives.

Dr. Thomas F. Corriden, who supervised immediate treatment of the senator at Cooley-Dickenson Hospital, said the 32-year-old Kennedy suffered several fractured vertebrae. But he has the use of his arms and legs, and is listed in "fair condition."

Less seriously injured in the crash were Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) and his wife. Both were reported in good condition at the hospital.

Killed in the crash was the pilot of the twin engine plane, Edwin T. Zimny, 48, of Lawrence. Edward Moss, 41, Kennedy's administrative aide, died in the hospital of injuries suffered in the accident.

The plane was approaching Barnes Airport, in Westfield, shortly after 11 o'clock. The control tower at Barnes said it was in contact with the pilot and that he reported no difficulty. It had rained heavily earlier and was drizzly and foggy at the time.

It was believed that as Zimny approched the airport his plane may have hit the tops of trees in the fog. There was no fire.

The first witness, Robert Schauer said he heard the crash and then saw the wrecked plane 200 yards up a hillside in an apple orchard. He dashed up the hill to help.

Today's hospital bulletin said:

"Senator Kennedy is in fair condition. He has improved considerably since his admission and is resting comfortably.

"X-rays showed fractures of the fifth and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and fourth lumbar vertebrae the lower back and fractures of the second, third and fourth transverse processes, which give the spine support.

"There are no head injuries and no neurological complications. He has complete use of legs and arms. He has cuts on both legs and the right hand."

Kennedy was to have been endorsed by acclamation at the Massachusetts State Democratic Convention for the U. S. Senate seat once held by his brother.

The accident occurred less than seven months after President Kennedy was killed by an assassin's bullets in Dallas.

The word of the crash shocked the cheerful convention which adjourned, talking of postponing the rest of the sessions for at least one week.

The senators had left Washington after voting "yes" for the civil rights bill enacted by the Senate. Bayth had been scheduled to deliver the convention's keynote address.

Rose Kennedy, the senator's mother, was at the Kennedy compound in Hyannis Port with her ailing husband, former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, when the accident occurred.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and a sister, Mrs. Stephen Smith, left the compound for the hospital as soon as they received word of the mishap. After visiting with their brother they went to bed at the hospital.

The Air Force said a presidential plane carrying three Washington doctors, accompanied by an assistant attorney general, were turned back from the Westover Air Force Base at nearby Chicopee by ground fog.

A spokesman said the plane was rerouted to Steward, N.Y., AFB. He said the doctors would be taken by auto to Northampton.

Kennedy's wife Joan had hurried to the hospital immediately after the accident was reported—at 11:20 p.m. She was escorted by Gov. Endicott Peabody who rushed her out of the convention hall during the roll call which brought him the convention's endorsement for renomination.

Within minutes after the roll the shocked convention recessed. Cheers rang out when the chairman, John E. Powers of South Boston, announced that Kennedy had survived the crash.

One witness said the plane's cockpit was ripped open "like it had been cut with a can opener."

A revolving red beacon atop the plane led searchers to the wreckage.

Police Chief Robert Leveille of Southampton said he found Kennedy lying on the ground. Leveille asked Kennedy how he felt. The senator replied "bad."

A witness said Kennedy was able to talk but asked that he not be moved.

President Lyndon B. Johnson telephoned the hospital from San Francisco to inquire about the condition of the senators.

Plane crashes took the lives of two Kennedy family members. Joseph P. Jr., a Navy flier, was killed during World War II. A sister, Kathleen, died shortly after the war in another crash in Europe.

Novato

A HOUSE DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR WOMEN

A "CONTROL CENTER" KITCHEN.
. . . imagine being able to look out to the street, supervise children in the family room, oversee table setting in the dining room, watch the play in the back yard and have a look-see down the hall to bath and children's bedrooms . . . without ever stopping whatever you may be doing in the kitchen.

A "MUD ROOM."
It's the greatest home-cleaning invention since the vacuum sweeper. Kids (and their parents, too) enter the home through this convenient passage and drop off dirty clothes, muddy shoes, etc. It's a great work saver for Mom.

38-FOOT ENTERTAINING AREA.
when you want it. The entire living area of the house opens up by means of a folding wall. Or fold the wall into place and you have a formal living/dining room on one side with the children's family room enclosed to the rear.

CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS.
WE'VE GOT 'EM. A hall closet for guests; a giant linen closet; and a real "Fibber McGee" for vacuums, brooms, extra table leaves, etc. There are built-in cabinets over the laundry area, too.

THE LORD AND LADY
of this home have a most thoughtfully designed bathroom, with a private area for M'lady's primping, and a completely separated shower for "singing" by M'Lord.

FLOOR TO CEILING HEIGHT
windows and doors. Elegant . . . and wonderful for ventilation, light, etc.

4-"CAR" GARAGE!
We did it. This 21x24-foot garage actually holds four cars. We have a photo in our sales office, reprinted from the I-J, to prove it. Maybe you don't have 4 cars . . . but imagine the storage space! !

MASTER TV . . .
It's wonderful. From a master TV antenna on a nearby hill, you will receive 5 Bay Area stations "like you were next door." Also fabulous FM reception. It's all wired into the house underground. No forest of antennas to block the view of surrounding tree-covered hills. Utilities are underground, too.

WE'VE KEPT THE BEST FOR LAST

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Certain Amount Of Dreaming At Night Is Necessary, Harmless

VAN DELLEN

A certain amount of dreaming at night is necessary. Experimental studies in laboratories show that when dreaming is prevented, the individual becomes irritable and anxious and his appetite increases. It is as though a pressure builds up during these nights of deprivation. Release occurs when the number and duration of dreams are not interrupted during the next few nights.

Dreaming is a normal constituent of sleep. It takes up 20 per cent of the total sleep time. ut most of us do not remember them unless awakened immediately at the end of the dream. Recall also is less likely to occur when they take place during deep sleep.

DREAM RESEARCH is done in special laboratories where electrodes are taped to the head of a volunteer to record brain waves (electroencephalogram). Similar wires are taped just above and alongside each eye to record eye movements. The ytpical dream usually is preceded and followed by fidgeting, especially of the hands and feet.

The sleeper relaxes during the spisode except for rayid eye movements (REM). Ocular activity actually is the most signifihelps to measure the depth of sleep.

DREAMING IS NOT initiated by emotions or by outside stimuli. On the other hand, if a bell is used to awaken the sleeper several times at night, he is likely to dream about ringing door bells or talking on the telephone.

A dream is a hallucination in that the sleeping individual actually believes the experience is real. The daydream is different; the person knows it is make-believe. Hypnogogic hallucinations may occur in the period between sleeping and waking. The individual may feel as though he were drifting into space or hearing strange voices.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if cant sign that a dream is in progress. This was determined by awakening the volunteer immediately after the REM stops. He recalls the dream provided he was not in a deep sleep. The EEG stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TORN MUSCLE

R. W. writes: What can you tell me about shin splints?

REPLY

Athletes who run on hard surfaces early in the season may suffer from pain due to a torn muscle. This is brought on by the trauma of constant jarring. Heat, massage, taping, and rest encourage healing and reattachment of the muscle to the shin bone.

EAR INFECTION

J. K. writes: Does an inner ear infection leave any bad after effects?

REPLY

Complete recovery occurs in most instances, especially when the infection is treated properly. Neglect leads to deafness, mastoiditis, or chronic otitis media (persistent drainage).

PLANTAR WARTS

H. W. A. writes: Are plantar warts on the soles catching?

REPLY

Some are, especially the softer mother-daughter type, which is caused by a virus. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on plantar warts.

NATURAL IN SOME

P. B. writes: Could over-activity, including ballet dancing, bring on the period in a 9-year-old girl?

REPLY

No. The menses start in some at this age.

LUNG CONGESTION

P. A. J. writes: What are the symptoms of fluid in the lungs?

REPLY

Shortness of breath, cough, or pain in the chest (pleurisy).

Today's Health Hint — Poorly chosen sunglasses may cause headache.

Girl Rescued From Bottom Of Swim Pool

A 12-year-old San Francisco boy attending a birthday party at the Douglas Allen home in Ross yesterday afternoon jumped into the swimming pool there and rescued a 10-year-old girl who panicked when she dove into the water too deeply.

Credited with saving the life of Susan Seale, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Bryan Seale of San Francisco, were Bobby McMahon and his father, G. R. McMahon, who lifted the girl from the pool and revived her.

Six youngsters were attending a birthday party for McMahon's 10-year-old daughter at the Allen home at 101 Upper Toyon Drive.

Susan told her father from a bed in Letterman Hospital in San Francisco yesterday that she plunged more deeply into the pool than she expected and panicked. The McMahon boy spotted her at the bottom of the pool and brought her to the surface at the side of the pool.

Asst. Chief Charles Pinza of the Ross Fire Department applied an inhalator to the girl who was conscious when he arrived at the home at 2:56 p.m. A Marin Ambulance rushed her to Marin General Hospital where she was examined before being transferred to Letterman Hospital.

The youngster was in satisfactory condition today at the hospital.

Robber Thwarted In Attempt To Loot Register

An attempted robbery at the Wiltshire Motel, 3725 Redwood Highway, Santa Venetia, was foiled last night when Helen M. Wiltshire surprised the suspect at work and he fled.

According to the Marin County Sheriff's Office, Mrs. Wiltshire was at the rear of the motel office watching television at 9:45 p.m. when she thought she heard a door open.

She investigated and saw a man stooped over the cash drawer, and said "What are you doing?" He ran and she tried to stop him, but he escaped through a rear door.

Deputies said the suspect wearing a black knitted sweater had tried to pry open the cash drawer with a knife. Mrs. Wiltshire reported later that her wallet containing 30 cents and personal papers was missing.

Society Will Hear Marin City's Past

The history of Marin City from 1830 to the present will be presented by the Marin County Historical Society at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Marin City community center gymnasium.

Music will be presented by the St. Andrew Presbyterian Church choir under direction of Beverly Barnes with organ accompaniment by George Duke.

Neighbor Revives Tot After Bathing Mishap

Two-year-old Sally Moore Newsom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. I. Newsom, 21 Mount Whitney Drive, Marinwood, was given mouth-to-mouth breathing aid by neighbor Jack L. Owens, 29 Mount Whitney Drive, after choking last night on bathwater, firemen reported.

The girl's mother rushed the unconscious child to the neighbor's home; she was breathing normally by the time the firemen arrived at 6 p.m.

Auto Whirls Through Air, Two Injured

Two passengers were injured when a car swerved off San Geronimo-Nicasio Road, 1.8 miles north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, sheared off a telephone pole and overturned at 2:15 a.m. today.

John Morrison, 31, of 18-A San Quentin Village, suffered bruises of the right shoulder, and Sue Parker, 22, of Marin Stables, Fairfax, suffered cuts of the forehead and multiple bruises of the left thigh and elbow. Both were treated at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

The driver, Dee Wayne Croft, 24, of Box 144, San Geronimo, was examined at the hospital and sent home with no apparent injuries.

Croft told California Highway Patrol officers he was rounding a curve when the car struck a bank on the west side of the road, veered to the east side and skidded into the telephone pole.

The CHP reported that the car rolled end-over-end after hitting the pole and stopped in a ditch 60 feet off the east side of the road.

Cows Are Worse Than Goats

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Cows often suffer from a stomach ailment known to farmers as "hardware disease." Veterinarians, who know that cows eat fence wire, nails, nuts, bolts, pieces of wood and tin cans, call the disease "traumatic gastritis."

The hardware punctures the lining of the second of the cow's four stomachs. It can be fatal.

Dr. Donald D. Delahanty, professor at the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University, says the cause of the trouble is lack of "oral discrimination in cattle that leads to their swallowing foreign bodies that would normally be rejected by other animals."

Dr. Delahanty has operated on 600 cows for hardware disease. He says about 60 per cent of his cases have been caused by lengths of wire and adds that about the only thing he has not found in a cow's stomach is broken glass.

Belvedere Yacht Goes To Oakland Drydock

The Locura, its sinking still unsolved, was floated from San Francisco Yacht Harbor in Belvedere to drydock in Oakland last night.

The luxury yacht sank Thursday evening for the second time in a year. It is owned by John A. D. Lawson of 172 Beach Road, Belvedere.

Mill Valley Man Is Injured As Car Hit In Rear

A 56-year-old Mill Valley man suffered minor injuries when his car struck the rear of a car stopped at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Elm Avenue, Kentfield, at 3:30 p.m. yesterday.

The driver, James A. Mundell of 613½ Spring Street, suffered multiple bruises and scrapes of the scalp, both elbows and forehead and a bruised right ankle.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mundell's car struck the rear of a car driven by Kristie L. Gubka, 17, of 71 Woodside Lane, Mill Valley, which was stopped for traffic.

Mundell was treated at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

Rec District Calls Election On Boundaries

Approval of realignment of jagged western boundaries of the Strawberry Recreation and Parks District will be sought from a majority of the voters in the proposed enlarged district at the Nov. 3 general election.

The district board agreed last night to put the plan on the November ballot after holding a public hearing on the proposal at Strawberry Point School, according to Mrs. Patricia M. Gowen, secretary.

Twenty-three written protests and three oral protsts against the annexation were presented to the board, she said.

The proposed new boundary will be set on the center of Tiburon Boulevard east to Highway 101 and along the highway south to Saucelito Canal. It will replace the present irregular western boundary which omits several homes and apartment houses in the Alto area.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission approved the annexation April 9.

College Sued By Insurance Claims Man

John B. Lewellen, an insurance adjuster, yesterday filed a $43,000 breach of contract suit against the College of Marin in San Francisco Superior Court.

Among defendants named in the suit are the district board, its insurance carrier, Leroy F. Wilkie, and three insurance companies.

Lewellen, through his attorney, William R. Bremer, asks for $18,000 for breach of contract and $25,000 in damages for "loss of reputation, humiliation, embarrassment, and loss of other business advantages."

The suit contends that the district board entered into a contract with Lewellen on Jan. 14 and he was discharged on Jan. 24, getting no pay for his services.

He was to have settled claims for the district against insurance companies arising out of the loss of the old gymnasium which was destroyed by fire.

Miss Of Millionth May Mean Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accuracy requirements for space rocketry are growing more exact every year, according to the National Bureau of Standards, which develops standards for checking instruments used by industry to measure space vehicle parts.

Space requirements are now calling for steel gage blocks to be accurate to one 10-millionth of an inch, reports "Steelways Magazine," published by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The magazine says an error of one-millionth of an inch in the bore hole of a missile-guiding gyroscope could result in the vehicle missing the moon by thousands of miles.

The Man On The Telephone

Listening Is The Job Of Al Douglas

A TYPICAL WORKING POSE of Al Douglas sees him at the KCBS radio mike, puffing on his nightly cigar and listening pensively to the remarks of a listener who has called in to air his opinions on the San Francisco station's nightly program, "Viewpoint." Since it is not Al's role to express his own views on the program, he sometimes substitutes a few deep puffs on the cigar for a retort.

It would be safe to say that few Marinites spend more time on the telephone than Al Douglas of Larkspur.

And much of the time, he's talking to fellow Marin residents.

Douglas is radio station KCBS's newest personality. And phone chatter is more than a habit with him. It's his job.

AS HOST OF the KCBS show, "Viewpoint," he talks with as many as 30 callers in an evening from throughout Northern California and beyond. And he seems to have built up an especially large following in Marin, from where many of his callers hail.

But Al's talents are by no means limited to either phone chatter or "Viewpoint." He has a strange combination of interests, and it is exactly this that makes him so popular. A veteran sportscaster, inquiring scholar, one-time basketball player, ex-teacher and lover of classical music, he is quickly building a reputation in the Bay Area for being an imaginative and versatile broadcaster.

Versalitility is perhaps the key word for describing the Douglas personality. And he applies his talents equally well to Olympic games or Olympian scholars.

THERE ARE times when his rather unorthodox range of interests will cause a few raised eyebrows, however.

As an example, he cites an incident that occurred when he was sports director at Time-Life Broadcast's WOOD and WOOD-TV in Grand Rapids, Mich.

"They sent me to Rome to report the Olympics," recalls Al with a chuckle. "I did the reporting all right, but I spent all my free time at the opera. I had a terrible time explaining it. People just couldn't understand why a sports director would want to go to the opera."

AS A TEACHER, Douglas developed a talent for both stimulating and satisfying curiosity—a technique which gives him special appeal in radio, where imagination plays an important role in the listener's response. And the same relentlessly inquisitive nature which led him to seek and obtain a Master's Degree at the University of Chicago, is now focused on keeping up with current events and drawing out the interesting and exciting in any story or interview. This he complements with a colorful narrative style and versatile imagination.

With such an approach, Al can make anything interesting—and does.

"I'll interview anybody," says Al.

And to prove it he is currently trying to talk the KCBS custodian into taking some time off from his evening chores to come into the studio for an interview. The best proof of his interviewing ability is the Peabody Award . . . which he never talks about.

THE FACT that Al Douglas won a Peabody Award for a public affairs program during the time when his principal job was sports director is testimony, not only to his talent as an imaginative interviewer, but also to his versatility. While he was making his name—then Al Ackerman—a password among sports enthusiasts in the Midwest as sports director at WOOD and WOOD-TV and play-by-play announcer for the statewide network broadcasts of the Michigan State University football and basketball games, he still found the time and the interest to make his "Unit 8" Sunday afternoon broadcast the best live weekly public affairs television program in the United States for 1961.

Al's involvement in sports dates back to his army days when he played basketball for a U.S. infantry team.

But his early experience does not stop at sports.

AFTER THE army he enrolled in the University of Chicago and didn't leave until he had earned a Master's Degree. He spent the first five years after college teaching in a depressed area of Chicago.

Douglas' break into radio was motivated by, as he puts it, " . . . a fantastic desire to get out of teaching."

He wrote to Chicago's station WMAQ, inquiring about openings in the field. "They sent me up to WHTC in Holland, Mich., for a two-week trial as vacation relief; I never went back to Chicago."

Al joined KCBS last summer, changing his professional name from Ackerman to Douglas to avoid being confused with the KCBS "Music 'til Dawn" host, Ken Ackerman.

DOUGLAS BEGINS each week day evening on KCBS at 6:35 with "Words and Music," a half hour program of recorded music.

From 7:30 to 8:20 he takes to the phones for "Viewpoint," the program praised by Newsweek Magazine as an "electronic soapbox." On "Viewpoint" he invites the radio audience to call in and express opinions on such topics as "What's happening to our mortality?" or, "The new trend in our relations with Russia." He ends his day with the news and sports at 11 p.m.

SO ADEPT at interviewing that he has won a Peabody Award doing it, Al Douglas finds the work especially enjoyable when he is conversing with the likes of Angie Dickensen, the pert female lead in the movie, "Captain Newman."

But Al applies his own particular brand of talent most successfully to the 8:30 to 10 spot, called, appropriately enough, "An Evening with Al Douglas." Being a conscientious host, Al channels all his energy toward preparing features and interviews which cause his listeners to feel that they have, in fact, spent the evening as his special guest.

A SIMPLE description of the program would be misleading because Al's routine does not fit into easy categories. His guest list is as likely to include a Shakespearean scholar as a flying saucer enthusiast, and his conversation may begin with nuclear fission and end up with deep-water fishing.

Or, he may devote the entire evening to some special project —as was the case last month, when he brought together the two leading opponents in the Northern California pay TV controversy. He was, by the way, the first to get representatives from both sides to appear at the same time.

However, the scholarly ex-sports director does have some regular features. Most frequent are his conversations with visiting and local personalities.

SOME OF his recent guests have been singer-dancer Carol Lawrence (Mrs. Robert Goulet), author Vance Packard, the new singing group The Womenfolk, and Lou Gottlieb of the Limeliters.

Every evening Al does a book review and he often discusses articles from Harper's Magazine and Saturday Review. One night a week he reads a short story for his "True Tales of the West" feature and twice a week he spotlights "Travels with the Douglases" — suggestions for family trips in California and San Francisco.

One of Al's most popular features is "The Story Behind the Song," during which he reads a letter from one of his listeners relating a personal story associated with the listener's favorite song.

LATELY, HE has added a new feature—the "Personal Phono."

"This began as an outlet for

IN HIS LARKSPUR HOME, this is one Al Douglas—the away-from-the-mike personality. In the quiet tranquility of his home, he shares a storybook with 6-year-old daughter Beth and wife Marjorie. He finds the quiet of Marin a relaxing contrast to the hustle and bustle of his work in busy San Francisco. "I always save Saturdays for the kids," he says.

THE OTHER AL DOUGLAS is the one KCBS radio listeners enjoy so much. Sometimes he becomes a bit of a ham, as he does here surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls. He is seen joking with The Womenfolk, the new hit folk-singing group whom he interviewed on his "An Evening With Al Douglas" show on KCBS. They are, left to right, Judy Fine, Barbara Cooper, Joyce James, Lyn Ashmore and (seated) Jean Amos.

my frustration on Viewpoint," says Al. "Viewpoint is set up exclusively for the listener and it is not my role to voice a personal opinion. Quite often, it's all I can do to keep my mouth shut. So, I initiated this new series so I could have at least one good conversation a night.

"The first night turned out to be a little ironic, however. There I was all set to speak my mind, and I got a lady on the line who talked for 20 minutes without a break. I hardly got a chance to say more than yes or no."

WHEN HIS "day" at the studio is over, Douglas takes refuge from the city in his Larkspur home.

"You can't beat it far tranquility," Al comments. "We're right at the foot of Mt. Tamalpais and we've got unspoiled woods right out the back door. As soon as we got settled on the West Coast, we moved straight to Marin. We love it and we hope it stays just the way it is."

The home is shared by Al's attractive wife Marjorie and their three children—Paul, 17, Mike, 8, and Beth, 6.

Sports-minded Al can't help bragging a little about Paul, an all-conference fullback for Redwood High School in the Marin Athletic League. "He's just accepted a full athletic scholarship to UCLA."

THE HOUSE reverberates with the music from Al's hi-fi and prized record collection. He also collects anecdotes, often from personal experiences, about his favorite worlds of sports and music. His family has developed great agility in tip-toeing among records and reference books spread temporarily over the living room floor.

"And they're all picking up my 'strange' interests," concludes Al with a wink.

World War II Landmark To Become Vista Area

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on parks and other properties owned by Marin County and operated and maintained by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department. Today's subject: The Muir Beach Overlook, once the Frank Valley Military Reservation.)

It's a relic of the era before missiles and nuclear weapons made obsolete conventional shoreline guns as a means of defense.

Then it was the Frank Valley Military Reservation, one link in the chain of defenses established by Uncle Sam to protect San Francisco's vital harbor facilities.

NOW IT IS the property of Marin County, listed by the county's parks and recreation department as "Muir Beach Overlook."

That title is appropriate. The 8.93 acres of land look down upon Muir Beach and the Pacific Ocean from heights above Highway 1 six miles south of Stinson Beach.

Presently undeveloped and closed to the public, its gates are padlocked. But Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners and the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department have hopes that it will be designated officially by the state as a historical landmark. And county plans call for its development as a roadside resting and viewing point.

THE FEDERAL government acquired the Frank Valley Military Reservation in 1923 as a potential link in San Francisco's harbor defenses. During World War II, observation posts were constructed and activated there, to provide the required range and azimuth information needed for the accurate firing of seacoast artillery guns located at Fort Barry near the entrance to the Golden Gate.

Primary support was given to Battery Wallace and Battery Smith at Fort Barry.

The former was named for Col. Elmer J. Wallace who died in France Nov. 5, 1918, of wounds suffered in World War I action. The battery mounted two 12-inch breech-loading rifles on Barbette carriages.

BATTERY SMITH was named in honor of Col. Hamilton A. Smith and was armed with two six-inch breech-loading rifles mounted on pedestal carriages.

Dr. E. R. Lewis of Oregon State University at Corvallis, Ore., a scholar who has made a study of the history of San Francisco Bay Area military installations in preparation for writing a book, says that each such battery of seacoast guns had its own string of observation outposts or "base end stations." Sometimes, a base end station served more than one battery, as did Frank Valley.

Dr. Lewis adds that the Frank Valley Military Reservation was also the home site for a third observation unit serving an underwater mine detachment.

AND THAT, just prior to the war, still a fourth base end station was activated at Frank Valley, this one attached to an unnamed two-gun six-inch battery firing from Fort Miley.

The Wallace Battery, Dr. Lewis says, was by far the most powerful gun battery in its sector, its huge guns having a range of 17 miles.

While San Francisco was one of the most heavily fortified cities in the world during World War II, its protecting guns were never called upon to fire at an enemy. The weapons were heard only at test firings and infrequent target practices.

WERE THERE any guns at the Frank Valley reservation itself?

Dr. Lewis says that exact information is missing, but that such installations undoubtedly had some protection against possible enemy infantry assault — "barbed wire or such" — and perhaps a machine gun.

But the role of Frank Valley and similar base end stations along the coast was not to fire at the enemy—but to help direct the fire from other points.

Such observation posts ranged from Drake's Bay on the north to Half Moon Bay on the south.

AFTER WORLD War II, the coastal defense installations were "phased out." Changes in military tactics and equipment brought about the abandonment of the huge coastal artillery guns. And with their demise, the supporting installations such as the Frank Valley Military Reservation were no longer needed.

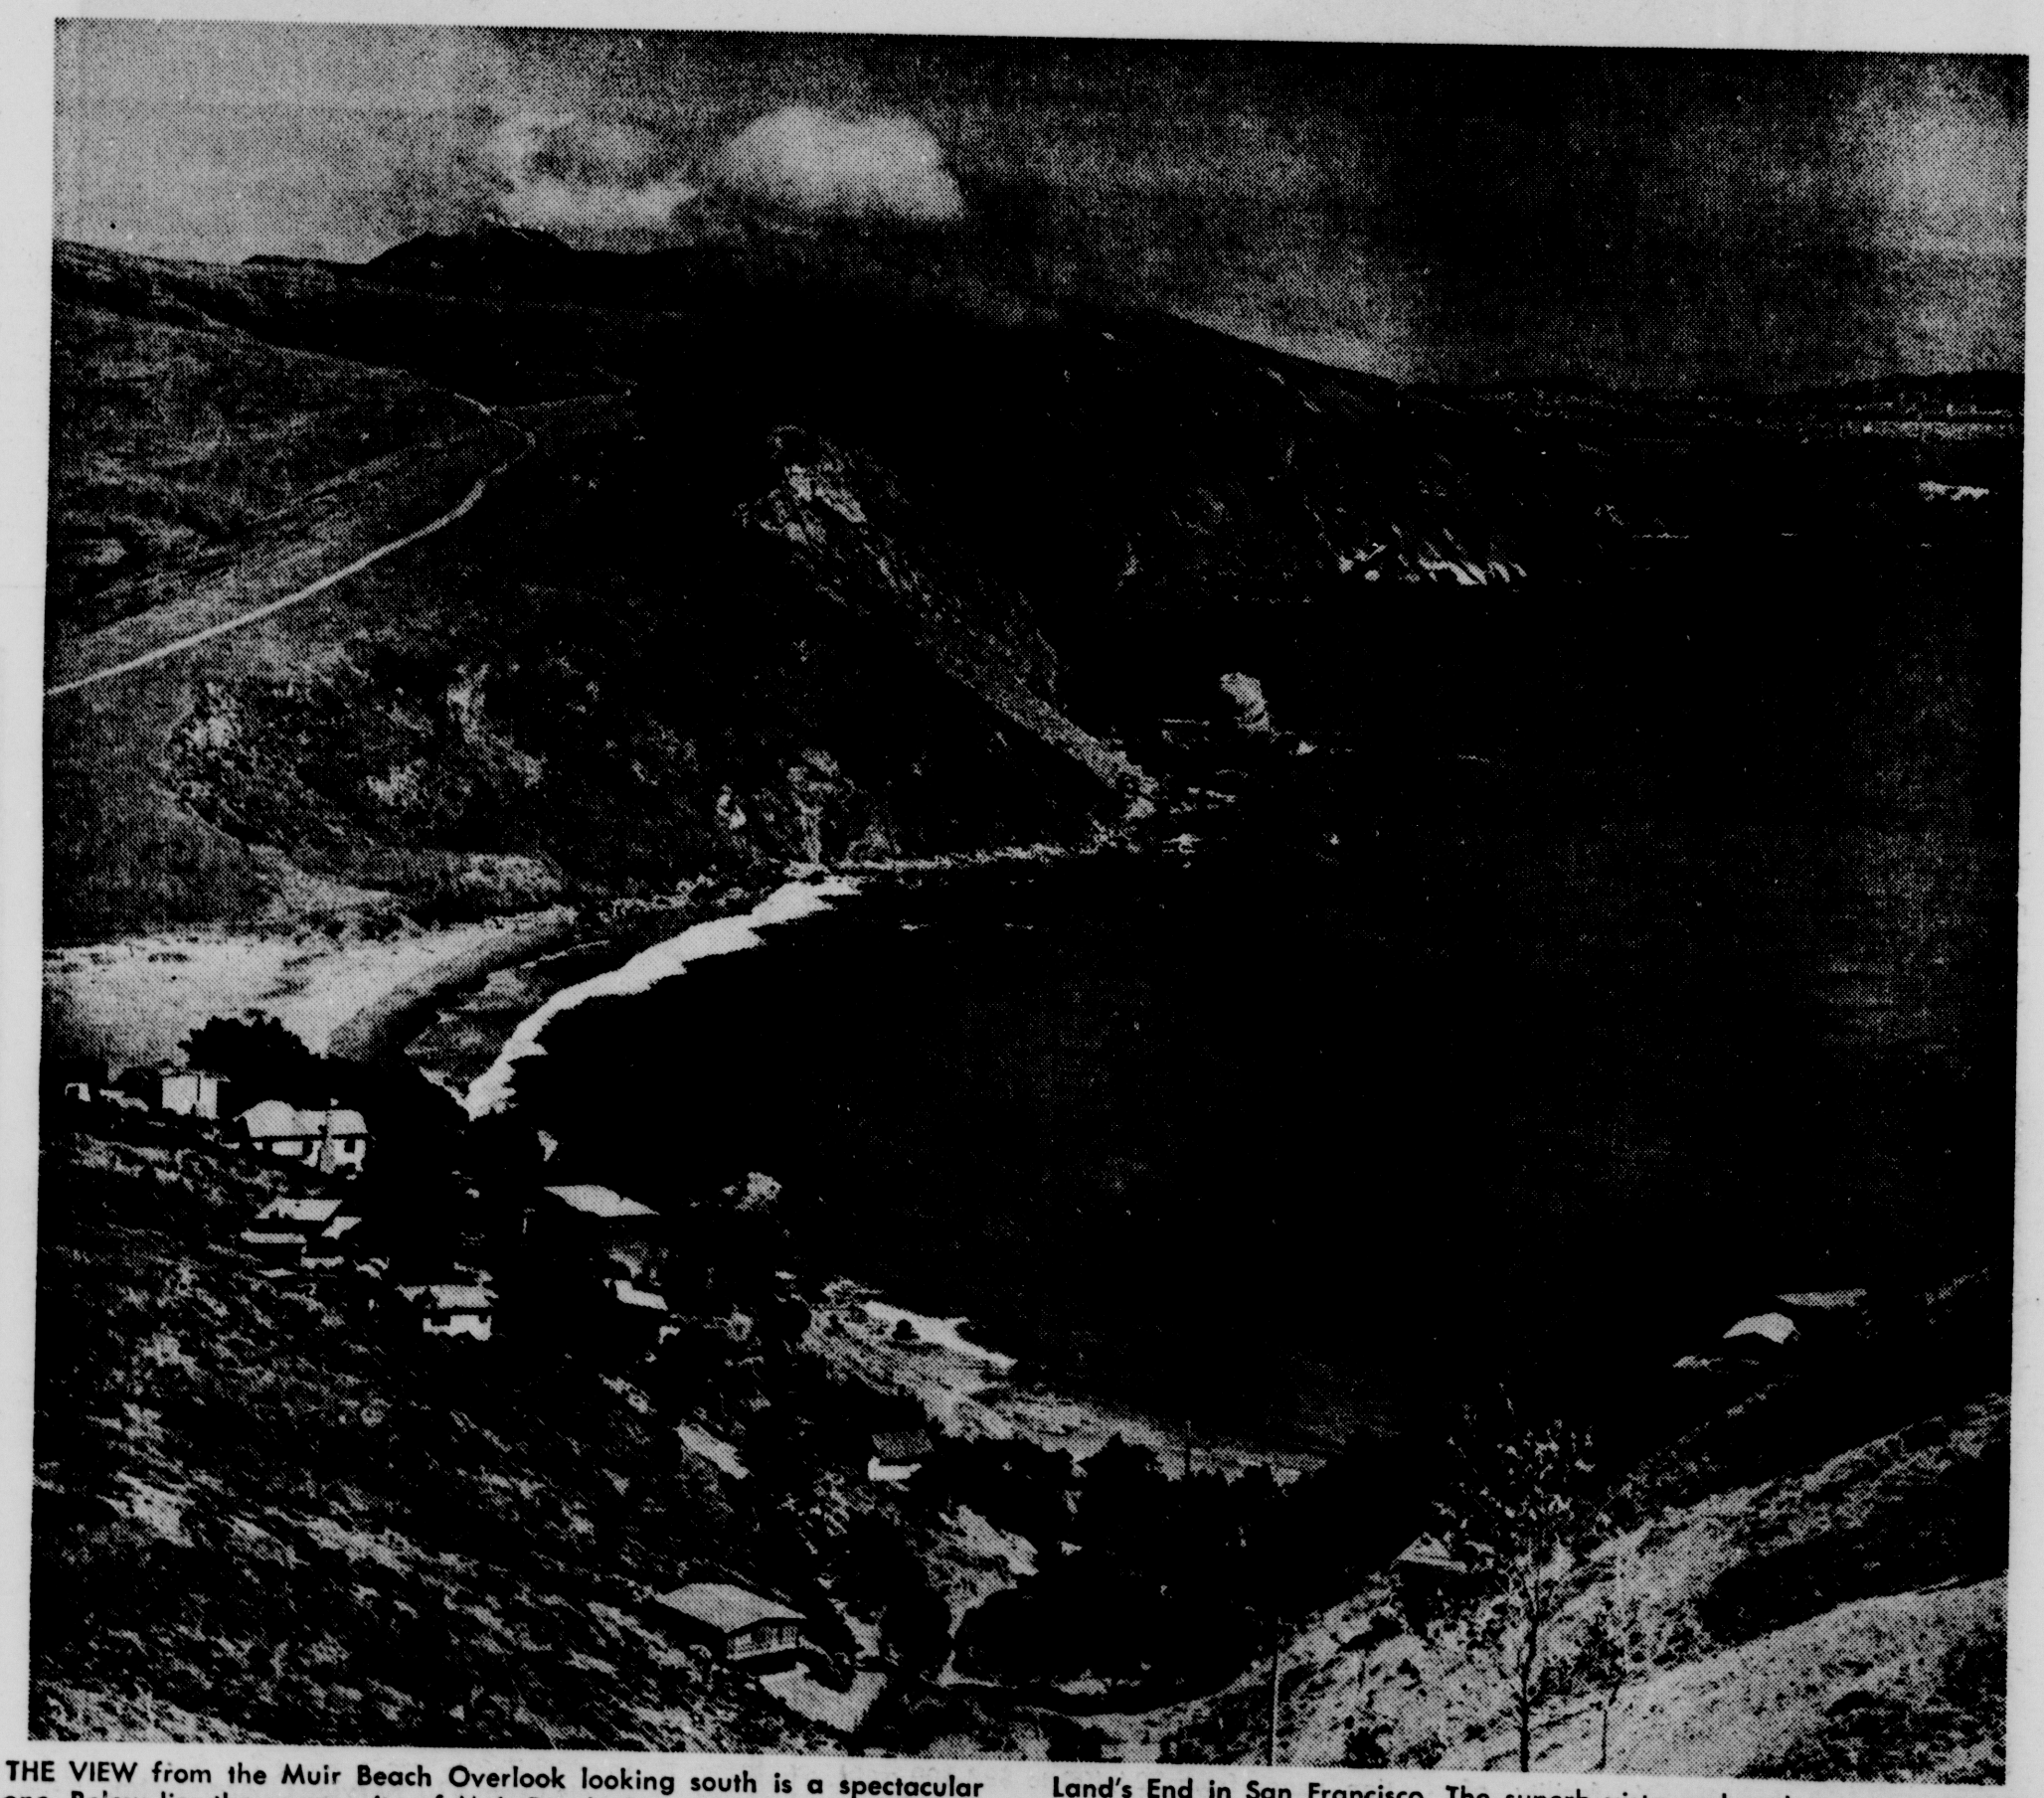
STEEL and concrete relics of the era before new weapons made obsolete coastal defense guns protecting San Francisco harbor are these observation installations at what was once the Frank Valley Military Reservations. From here came data to guide the range and azimuth of big guns located at Fort Barry and Fort Miley. Now the land belongs to Marin County, and plans call for its development as a roadside rest and viewing station and as a historical landmark. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)



THE VIEW from the Muir Beach Overlook looking south is a spectacular one. Below lies the community of Muir Beach. Stretching into the distance is the Pacific Ocean. And across the water to the southeast can be seen Land's End in San Francisco. The superb vista makes the area a natural for development as a viewing point, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission and Marin County Parks and Recreation Department feel. (Independent-Journal photo)

Overlook And A Landmark

They lay abandoned and unused.

In November of 1959, Marin County supervisors approved an application to the U.S. General Services Administration for the military reservation as surplus federal land. The GSA awarded the land to the county on May 31, 1960, for $3,750—half the appraised market value.

On Oct. 6, 1960, Marin County received a quitclaim deed to the property.

THEN, IN September of the following year, the county acquired a strip 20-by-540 feet, approximately a quarter acre, from the Muir Beach Co. for $435 that widened the access to the overlook from 20 feet to 40 feet.

Marin County Parks and Recreation Director Kelvin Nelson points out that the area is superbly fitted to its proposed future role of roadside rest and viewing point.

The land consists of a high promontory above the ocean, an acre and three-quarters of which is nearly flat ground suited for development for parking and viewing. There is another half acre with existing small pine trees that is being eyed as a picnic spot. A further promontory seaward of the main flat area could be developed to afford an even more spectacular view. The remainder of the area consists of steep bluffs.

FROM THE overlook, the viewer can enjoy a spectacular vista of the Pacific Ocean, of San Francisco's Land's End across the water, of Muir Beach immediately below, and northward the coastline leading to Stinson Beach, to the southeast Mount Tamalpais with its radar station.

A half dozen steel and concrete shells remain as reminders of the area's military service.

Four are the end base stations that served the three gun batteries at Forts Barry and Miley and the mine detachment. Also still in existence are the conduit box into which the observations from the observation stations were funneled, and a built-in bunker.

THE MUIR BEACH Overlook, once the Frank Valley Military Reservation, is not yet developed, and is closed to the public. But work on its development has begun. Here you can see where some preliminary grading of the parking area has been accomplished. Plans and specifications for the completion of the parking facilities have been drawn. (Independent-Journal photo)

REMOVED WAS an underground barrack, preparatory to the development of the proposed picnicking area.

The county has also closed off the bunker and sealed the conduit cable box, improved the access road and "skinned off" the parking area. Plans and specifications are now ready for the completion of the parking facilities. With the nearly $4,000 available, the county also expects to do some fencing.

Should the pending application for historical landmark status be approved, then a proper plaque will be erected to recall the area's colorful history.

And from the heights where soldier sentinels once scanned the seas and skies on the alert for an enemy that never came, visitors will be able to pause in their coastal journey to relax and refresh themselves—and to drink in one of the world's most spectacular views.

Marin Underwriters Tackle A Vital Community Project

By DON KEOWN

The Marin Life Underwriters Assn. became a separate entity in April of this year.

Previously, the Marin insurance men had been branch members of the San Francisco association.

The purposes to which the new organization dedicated its efforts included such professional objectives as advancing public knowledge of life insurance and its uses, and promoting high ethical standards and competence among those engaged in underwriting.

But the members also stated their intention "to render community service."

ONE OF THE first problems then to confront the fledgling organization was the selection of its first community service project.

Nick Dollwet of San Rafael read an article in the National Assn. of Life Underwriters News telling how the underwriters of Boston had taken up the cause of Medic Alert and had chalked up a record of marvelous accomplishment.

This, Dollwet thought, might be just the cause for his own organization. He contacted the international headquarters of the non-profit Medic Alert Foundation in Turlock, Calif., for information on the program.

ONE THING he learned was the vital program had no official sponsoring group in Marin County.

Dollwet had little difficulty convincing the board of directors and the membership of the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. that their organization should become the sponsoring group and fill a serious void in the ranks of Marin's service-rendering agencies and associations.

To help the Marinites in getting started, Marvin Laskey of Terra Linda, a retired colonel and a member of the Medical Alert advisory board, spoke before the life underwriters' group.

Some of the things that the Marin insurance men learned about the program included:

MEDIC ALERT is a non-profit, charitable, tax-exempt foundation dedicated to encouraging the public to wear permanent identification of special medical problems that should be known immediately in times of emergencies — and to educating doctors, nurses and others in the need for their assistance in preaching the importance of wearing such identification.

Goals of the foundation include helping people to identify hidden medical problems, encouraging them to become members of the Medic Alert Foundation, advising them to obtain the universal protection of the Medic Alert emblem issued by the foundation, and to educate doctors, nurses, law officers and emergency personnel in recognizing the emblem on sight and in then rendering appropriate and immediate assistance.

THE JOB OF the Marin life underwriters then is to call to the attention of the public the services rendered by the foundation, and to stress its importance — perhaps to the point of saving lives.

Once convinced, the prospective member sends his application to Medic Alert Foundation, Turlock, Calif. There is a single, one-time-only membership fee of $5 plus 20 cents sales tax, 25 cents handling charge.

Disbursements by the foundation regularly exceed membership income, with contributions making up the difference.

THE UNIVERSAL Medic Alert emblem is available in sterling silver (at $7.50) as well as in stainless steel, and can be purchased either as a bracelet or as a disc to be attached to a charm bracelet or necklace. It cannot be purchased commercially, and is available only through the foundation.

On one side of the bracelet or disc is engraved the Medic Alert symbol. On the other side, is engraved the wearer's special medical problem, the Medic Alert emergency telephone number to be called, and the Medic Alert serial number.

The bracelet denotes that Williams has willed his eyes to the eye bank. The information can be vital, for eyes for the eye bank must be removed soon after death if they are to serve the purpose for which they have been willed. It is only one of many categories for which Medic Alert Foundation issues the identifying bracelets. (Independent-Journal photo)

The serial number and other pertinent information is also recorded at international Medic Alert headquarters in Turlock.

SOME OF THE categories of special medical problems covered by the Medic Alert emblems include:

Allergic to horse serum (the allergen in tetanus antitoxin), allergic to penicillin, diabetic, epilepsy, glaucoma, scuba driver, hemophilia, taking anti-coagulants, myasthenia gravis, neck breather, allergic to bee stings, wearing contact lenses, multiple sclerosis, other allergies, etc.

Persons who have willed their eyes to eye banks are also advised to wear bracelets stating that fact, since disposition of the eyes must be made within a stated period after death if they are to be beneficial.

IN ALL, there are more than 200 classifications for which Medic Alert warnings are advised.

And it has been estimated that more than 40 million Americans, averaging nearly one to every family, have such hidden medical problems and should be wearing the bracelets or discs. At the close of 1963, but 100,000 were doing so, but the number is now increasing rapidly.

Sponsoring organizations such as the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. have played major roles in this growth.

Equally important is the part these groups play in alerting doctors, nurses, law enforcement officers, firemen, emergency personnel, etc., to the significance of the tags.

This educational program has succeeded to the point where Medic Alert can now claim universal recognition for its emblems.

THE EMBLEM with its vital message — and the recognition of that message — prevents improper or injurious aid or fatal delays by providing physicians and others with essential facts immediately. This is especially helpful when the patient is comatose, unconscious, delirious,, in shock, deaf and dumb, etc. But even the conscious person may be too nervous or excited in an emergency to remember to mention a special medical condition. The tags then speak for them, too.

Diabetics and epileptics sometimes find their Medic Alert emblems mean the difference when they suddenly fall unconscious, between being jailed and put in the "drunk tank" and being taken to a hospital for proper medical treatment.

ALONG with its campaign on behalf of Medic Alert, the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. also conducts a vigorous program for professional improvement and recognition. A key worker in that phase of the association's functions is Russell Troup of San Rafael. Troup instructs and moderates the Life Underwriters Training Course conducted at San Rafael High School, October through May, of each year. (Photo by Francken)

Holdup victims, knocked unconscious and their wallets stolen, have been identified through their Medic Alert tags. So have amnesia victims.

THE MEDIC Alert Foundation was begun in 1956 by a Turlock physician, Dr. Marion C. Collins, after his teen-age daughter had suffered a near tragedy. She had sustained minor injuries in a mishap, and a doctor, unaware of her severe allergy to horse serum, administered tetanus antitoxin. The shock almost killed her, and she spent days in an oxygen tank.

Determined to help prevent such occurances in the future, Dr. Collins had discs made for his patients who had drug idiosyncrasies or other hidden medical problems. On the discs were engraved the patient's record card, the telephone number of Dr. Collins' Lillian Collins Hospital and the name of the medical problem.

In 1956, Dr. Collins outlined his plan as a purely local program before the American College of Surgeons at their convention in San Francisco. It met with an enthusiastic response. Dr. Collins then founded Medic Alert Foundation in Turlock, and within a short time 30,000 persons were registered.

THE FOUNDATION outgrew its original quarters and moved into larger facilities. There with its files indexed and cross-indexed, it maintains a 24-hour-a-day vigil, accepting telephone calls collect at any time from anywhere in the world regarding medical problems of its members.

The foundation now has branches in many overseas countries as well as throughout North America.

Dr. Collins remains the spark-plug of the movement. But more and more, civic and medical organizations are being called upon to lend their support to the program.

THIS IS THE role the Marin life insurance underwriters have undertaken in this county.

To accomplish this, the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. will begin the distribution of 10,000 Medic Alert pamphlets containing application blanks next week. They will be available at drug stores, fire stations and similar places, and can also be obtained by writing Nick Dollwet, Post Office Box 461, San Rafael.

How Marin's Life Underwriters Serve Their Community

project, with Raymond Dallara, Chet Lee, Robert Hinkel, Alan Birch and John Schmitz serving on the committee with him.

One of the first promotional steps in this county was a proclamation of Medic Alert Week in Marin by the board of supervisors.

But at the same time the insurance men have been pushing the Medic Alert cause, they have also been devoting attention to the professional aims of their association.

THE MARIN unit is an affiliate of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters, professional organization of life insurance agents, general agents and managers, and one of the oldest and largest trade associations of its type in the world. There are today more than 890 state and local associations attached to the national federation, giving it a total of more than 83,000 members.

Prior to this year, the Marin underwriters operated as a branch of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Assn., having been organized in that capacity in 1946.

Four life insurance men met by chance in front of the Albert Building on B Street in San Rafael. Their discussion turned to the possibility of organizing a local group of life underwriters to promote fellowship, provide professional stimulation and advance the industry in Marin.

TWO OF THE participants in that discussion, Robert Nelson and David St. Johnson, are still active in the association.

Their investigation disclosed that Marin insurance men were not yet numerous enough to form a fully-independent organization. The solution arrived at was to become a branch of the existing San Francisco association, and an organizational dinner was held in 1947 at the old Marvel Mar Restaurant in Mill Valley.

At its beginning, the branch had 15 underwriters as its membership. Nelson became the first president.

IN JANUARY of this year, the Marin men and women decided that their organization was ready to severe its ties with the San Francisco association "and go it alone."

"We felt we had the membership — and the leadership — to operate independently," Nelson explains.

The charter presentation occurred in April.

Current officers of the Marin association are J. Edmund Williams, president; Richard A. Secrist, first vice president; Donald P. Sands Jr., second vice president, and Bryce Ashton, secretary - treasurer. Directors are Marilyn Miller, Nick Dollwet, Russell Troup and Carroll Walker.

SOME OF the professional programs being conducted or supported through encouragement of participation by the association include:

Life Underwriters Training Course: Once a week, on Friday evenings, a group of dedicated career men have been meeting at San Rafael High School for special instruction in their profession. The total course runs over a period of two years, October to May, with once-a-week two-and-a-half-hour sessions designed to equip the underwriter to continue the self-improvement program begun in his primary company-sponsored training, and to recognize and handle the more complicatel life underwriting problems in a broader market. Discussions in the Marin class, taught by Russ Troup, are lively, sometimes even heated, as diverse philosophies are brought to bear on special problems.

Chartered Life Underwriters: A recognition program for life or health insurance agents, supervisors and executives who have earned the "CLU" designation by passing a series of college-level examinations on insurance and related fields, by having at least three years experience in the industry, and by meeting moral and ethical standards. The designation is formally granted by the American College of Life Insurance and its chapters.

National Quality Awards: An award of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters that goes only to members who have qualified by meeting certain standards in the amounts and numbers of policies written, by keeping in force at least 90 per cent of their policies for two years or longer after being written, and other technical requirements.

Million Dollar Round Table: A select group of underwriters who sell at least a million dollars worth of new life insurance within the calendar year, who are members of the national association and who meet high ethical standards. Membership is on a year-to-year basis, except for those "life" members who have qualified for perpetual membership by meeting the requirements six consecutive years or an aggregate of 10 years. The prestige organization is devoted to improvement of professional standards.

THESE, THEN, are some of the "within the profession" steps being taken by Marin's life underwriters to advance the standards of their trade — and to render greater service to the public.

The association points with pride to the fact that when the new Marin unit was chartered this April, no less than five of its charter members were also members of the select Million Dollar Round Table.

Such professional improvement programs, they feel, are as much a part of their public service objective as their sponsorship of the vital Medic Alert movement in Marin.

The professional aspects of their program, however, they will handle for themselves.

But for their Medic Alert project to click, they need the support of the general public.

"IT CAN work," says Nick Dollwet, chairman for the campaign, "only if commonsense prevails. Each and every person who should be wearing a Medic Alert emblem and is not doing so is unnecessarily risking his life. He is also suffering needless anxieties about the consequences of an unexpected emergency."

Dollwet likes to tell of the Medic Alert bracelet-wearer who said: "Before I got my emblem, I was afraid to go out alone."

Now he wears the bracelet with assurance. And enjoys a normal and active life, despite a medical problem that once handicapped him severely.

AT CHARTERING CEREMONIES for the newly independent Marin Life Underwriters Assn. this spring, members were proud to note that five charter members also belonged to the exclusive Million Dollar Round Table of the industry. Left to right, they were Carroll Walker, Robert Nelson, Steen Schellenberg, Nick Dollwet and Edward Wachsman.

A "CHARTERED LIFE Underwriter" is a title awarded insurance agents and executives who have passed comprehensive examinations, have had three years experience in the field, and have met other rigid standards. Marin association members who have earned the designation include, left to right, Carroll Walker, Dick Secrist, Jack Stickney and Frank Weber.

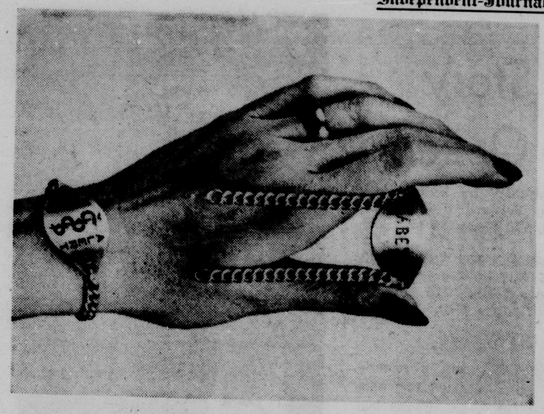
WHEN THE MARIN BRANCH of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Assn. became the independent Marin Life Underwriters Assn. this April, seven active past presidents of the organization were present to pose for a photograph. Left to right, they are Chris Jenkins, David St. Johnson, Robert Nelson, Cliff Lund, Don Anderson, Ed Wachsman and Dick Street. Jack Younger, not present for the picture, still another past president still active in the professional insurance organization.



SHOWN ARE just some of the many categories of special medical problems for which Medic Alert bracelets and discs are issued. Top to bottom are the diabetic, the hemophilia sufferer, the person allergic to tetanus antitoxin and the wearer of contact lenses. One side of the bracelet bears the Medic Alert symbol, the other side denotes the medical category into which the wearer falls and gives the Medic Alert emergency telephone number — which can be called, night or day, collect for full information on the patient — and the identifying Medic Alert registration number.

An Intimate Story Of A Movie Queen

By DON KEOWN

HARLOW by Irving Shulman, Bernard Geis Associates, 408 pages, $5.95.

SAILING FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP by Everett Morris, Harper & Row, 216 10½-by-8-inch pages. $10.

Irving Shulman's "Harlow" is subtitled "An Intimate Biography" and "intimate" it is. Indeed, it is startlingly so.

No personal detail of the chaotic, colorful and ultimately tragic life of Hollywood blonde bombshell Jean Harlow has been omitted.

Such penetrating biography serves to expose books such as Ruth Waterbury's "Elizabeth Taylor" as the shallow pap that they are, only one notch above the movie fan magazine stuff. But it also gives rise to a troubling question: Is such merciless probing into the most private aspects of individual lives really justified? Is the light it sheds upon one facet of American society of the time really worth its cost in taste?

This is a question each reader will have to decide for himself. And he might at the same time consider two other worrisome aspects of the book:

1. The heavy reliance upon a single source and point-of-view —that of agent Arthur Landau —for much of the most sensational and most controversial material. Landau seems a decent and level-headed sort. But no man is totally free of prejudices and faulty recollections.

2. The realization that those treated most critically, often cruelly, are now dead, unable to reply to the allegations and aspersions made against them.

With these sizable misgivings in mind, let us then admit that Shulman has done a remarkable job of accomplishing what he set out to do. He has laid bare a turbulent career and private life, ripping the glamorous wrappings from the Hollywood of Jean Harlow's time and exposing its tinsel and its tragedy for all to see. Jean Harlow was the very epitome of that mixed-up and slightly-mad era.

Unhappy marriages, parasitic parents, unfulfilled sexual longings, broken health, an absence of real satisfaction from either her work or her personal life— these were some of the penalties Jean Harlow paid for her status of movie queen. All the bewilderment and the contradictions of a whole society were reflected in her. And perhaps that was why Americans admired, even adored, this beautiful though not especially talented woman — even while they gossiped about and sometimes condemned her.

Shulman has dug deeply and has presented his material with verve and drama. Whether his cause was worth his dedication and his talent is a matter for debate.

THE STORY OF platinum-haired Hollywood queen Jean Harlow, right, is told by Irving Shulman in this "Harlow: An Intimate Biography," reviewed on this page. Shulman is the author of "The Amboy Dukes," "The Big Brokers" and other best-sellers.

MARIN'S many yachting buffs will be thoroughly delighted with "Sailing For America's Cup."

With text by Everett B. Morris, foreword by Emil Mosbacher Jr. and photographs by Morris Rosenfeld, this is the story of sailboating's most coveted trophy and the battles that have been waged for its possession.

There's history and color. And there is also a great deal of expertise on racing techniques and strategy.

Rosenfeld's illustrations are superb. Sailboats always seem to bring out the best in photographers, and the bigger the boats, the more striking the photos.

You'll eat this one up—or should we say "drink"—, following this colorful competition from the first sea skirmish for the cup's possession 112 years ago through the era of the big yachts—the Vigilante of 1893 measured 124 feet and had a crew of 70—down to the still majestic 69-foot, 11-man 12-Meters of today. And there's some informed and interesting speculation as to what lies ahead in the cup's future beyond this year's competition, what with growing international interest in racing the big boats.

EMIL WHITE'S tenth publication dealing with the Big Sur-Monterey Peninsula country is "Circle of Enchantment," detailing the scenic charms of the countryside along Highway 1 from San Simeon on the south to Monterey on the north, and including a side trip to Carmel and a close look at the Hearst Castle. As a travel guide, it is imperfect. It provides an overabundance of information on some points and leaves other certain-to-be-asked questions unanswered. But as reading material, it is interesting and alluring. The commentary by Henry Miller himself on the Big Sur is especially delightful. And the color photographs, printed on the special heavy paper, are magnificent. In magazine format, the book is available for $1.50 from Emil White, Big Sur, Calif.

AMERICAN Heritage, in its June issue, goes back two generations to take a look at the grandfathers of the men who are today this country's leading aspirants for the presidency. Editor Oliver Jensen has done this most interesting piece. The issue also contains articles by Bruce Catton (on Niagara Falls) and Eric Goldman (on the 1911 lynching at Coatesville, Pa.)

BALLANTINE has reprinted as a 95-cent paperback Elizabeth Byrd's sweeping historical novel, "Immortal Queen." The story of Mary, Queen of Scots, was termed "most admirable" and hailed for its "authenticity of characterization" by Saturday Review after its original publication.

Sleuths & Suspense

COUNTERSTROKE, by Patrick Wayland, Doubleday & Co., Inc., 179 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

A billion dollars worth of heroin is being shipped from Red China to the U. S. via Mexico. That's how much Counterstroke knows, and it is Lloyd Nicolson's job to find out how it is entering the U. S., and how to stop it.

Nicolson, a one-legged (he lost one in Mexico) agent of Counterstroke, a private organization that does the work the CIA can't do, goes to the Southern California desert to investigate.

There he comes into contact with Guido Orczky, an underworld character, and Thomas Burton Chambers, a disenchanted politician turned successful lawyer, a luscious redhead and a kooky newspaper editor. All these characters and more combine to make a suspenseful story, building to a tense climax.

There is something James Bondian about Nicolson, but there is less violence. There's no torture and little bloodshed.

Author Wayland bothers us a little. It's obvious he's been around the desert. But the trouble is he doesn't fuse this background sufficiently with the story.

Another complaint — he makes out newspapermen covering a murder story as all loud drunks. But what is worse (if you are sensitive about the old Hollywoodian view of reporters) he allows Nicolson to have breakfast alongside the press, after he has become involved in said murder, and not one reporter attempts an interview.

It is only later, at night, they wake up Nicolson and slush up a couple of inane questions.

Counterstroke is a billion-dollar idea. One could say the story of the same name is neither better nor worse than the average chase and adventure novel. It's better than fair, even good. But it could have been excellent.

But one sympathizes with Lloyd Nicolson and would like to keep him in operation.

Our Reviewers Report

Yerby's Newest

THE OLD GODS LAUGH by Frank Yerby, Dial Press, 408 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Frank Yerby has stirred up a Castro-like revolution in fictional Costa Verde to keep his readers and his protagonist, correspondent Peter Reynolds, entertained through a rip-snorting 400 pages.

It's rebel guerillas against the "Glorious Leader," Communist against Church, curvaceous American film star against Glorious Leader's strange, Aztec-appearing sister, and finally a giant volcano that spews its fury on rebel and ruler alike.

Through it all suffers Reynolds, a scarred veteran of Korean commando attacks and a survival expert. This adventure he survives with the help of admiring peasants and a white Jaguar convertible.

Yerby says it's a modern romance, not a realistic novel, and he dedicates it to the old-fashioned reader who reads for fun. And it was.

A Proud People

The SIOUX: Life and Customs of a Warrior Society, by Royal B. Hassrick, University of Oklahoma Press, 313 pages, $5.95 Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

They were a proud people, were the Sioux, but humble in their view of man's place in the universe; they were a brave people, and a footloose people. They were a hunting people, and when the white man brought them the horse, they became a people to be feared, the greatest warriors of the great plains.

What made the Sioux what they were? Royal Hassrick, Colorado rancher and writer, seeks the answer in a study of the structure of their society, their religion, folkways, morals and manners. "The Sioux: Life and Customs of a Warrior People" is a book of sociology rather than history: The sociology of a people who spread over the plains like the buffalo that provided their food and shelter and clothing —and that vanished as the buffalo vanished, leaving only legends in the memories of old men.

As such, it is a book for the student of the American Indian, rather than for the casual reader.

In his introduction, Hassrick writes: "To attempt to describe the ways of a people, the patterns of their behavior, or the concepts of their imagination, is only less presumptuous than to try to interpret how their nation functioned." Yet, in the pages that follow, he has done all those things exceedingly well.

Tarzan Is Back

TARZAN AND THE MADMAN by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Canaveral Press, 236 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Edgar Rice Burroughs died in 1950, but his famous creation, Tarzan, comes to life again in this novel, discovered among the author's papers last year.

Appropriately, the publishers decided to release the book this year, the 50th anniversary of Burroughs' first work, "Tarzan of the Apes."

Typically, the story follows the pattern of hectic adventure . . . a lost city, hidden gold mine, a beautiful girl captured by apes and Tarzan triumphing over all.

The plot consists of a series of cliff-hanging episodes, loosely connected in a crazy quilt pattern, centered around the most unlikely circumstances.

Tarzan fans will get their money's worth because they get not only Tarzan, but a man who thinks he is Tarzan. There is nothing to attract those who care not for Tarzan.

A NEED TO LOVE by Martha Buren, Dodd, Mead & Co., 231 pages, $3.75. Reviewed by Ellen Dietschy.

An unusual turn would be welcome in this novel describing the disenchantment of a faithful wife whose husband believes infidelity should be pardoned when accompanied by emotional loyalty.

Anna, an idealistic young girl when she is told by her husband-to-be and first lover, Raoul, of his shortcomings, becomes understandably miserable with her situation.

With no change in the age-old plot, she falls in love with a 19-year-old from whom she receives the attention and selfless adoration her husband is unable to give her.

The author's first four novels have reportedly become best sellers in Sweden. It is doubted that her fifth work will have similar popularity in this country.

POST-NAPOLEONIC ROME is the setting for "Crown of Grass," Charles A. Brady's new biographical novel about Chateaubriand, published by Doubleday and Co. ($5.50). The book takes place toward the close of the French diplomat's career. The jacket painting is by Alice Smith.

For Green Thumbers

THE GARDENER'S YEAR by Karel Capek, Dover Publications, paperback reprint, 110 pages, $1.00. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Anyone who has wielded a trowel as a weekend gardener will smile and say to himself "ain't it the truth," as he turns the pages of Capek's unorthodox calendar.

Aside from his gentle humor, Capek writes with feeling and warmth of the beauty of flowers and the joys of creating a garden.

Several passages of the calendar are not applicable to Marin County because Capek writes of the weather cycle in Czechoslovakia, where the winters are severe and the seasons sharply defined.

Nevertheless, he projects the spirit, philosophy and fun of gardening with a light touch that should please readers, no matter what their climate.

POGO GOES LITERARY

Pogo, a big favorite with Independent-Journal comic strip fans, has gone literary again.

The Walt Kelly character is the hero of "Pogo for President," a 35-cent Crest paperback published by Fawcett World Library.

It marks the first Pogo paperback, but he is a veteran of the hardcover field. Simon & Schuster-published Pogo titles—25 of them in all—have sold more than 2,600,000 copies.

The new paperback is a reprint of some of Pogo's best from the first hardcover book, "I Go Pogo, Volume 1," poking fun at the American political scene.

POEMS AND EPIGRAMS by Robert Beum, Henry Regnery Co., 87 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Simple and spare, the poetry of Robert Beum has been widely published and well received in this country, Canada and Europe in the past decade. He has recorded a group of his poems for the national archives of the Library of Congress and was included in the Literary Review's anthology of best American poets under 40. A poet of familiar things, Beum writes with vision in a subtle yet tangible way. This little volume includes about 60 of his shorter works.

Reading For The Youngsters

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest readers:

Publisher Henry L. Walck has enriched the lives of small children by bringing back into print "Dorcas Porkus," a charming little book by a lovely lady illustrator, Tasha Tudor. The story of Dorcas Porcus, the pet pig, is available in a well-bound format just the right size for small hands. Illustrations are delicate and dainty in pastel shades that blend well with the whimsical terms used to tell a tale of long-ago times.

A lesson in their nation's heritage is combined with the excitement of a small boy and his little dog on the loose in the White House in Peter Benchley's excellent "Jonathan Visits the White House" (McGraw-Hill, $2.50). The lively visit takes place during the Kennedys' occupancy of the White House, and little Jonathan actually encounters JFK and his family in the midst of his romp. But there is a charmingly-worded foreword by the present First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. Richard Bergere is responsible for the illustrations which, in themselves, represent a conducted tour of this storehouse of national treasures and traditions.

History is mixed with mystery and adventure in "Mystery of the Old Field" by Eric Houghton (McGraw-Hill, $2.95). Boys will enjoy this well-plotted story of a country youngster who is at first dismayed when he has to move to a new home in a factory town, but who finds a new kind of excitement and interest in his new surroundings. It's the kind of "red-blooded" action that has been enthralling young readers for decades.

The use of bright color photographs taken by the author is an unusual and attractive feature of the appealing book, "The Car Named Julia" by Ralph Hermanns (Harcourt, Brace & World, $2.50). Translated from the Swedish by Annabelle MacMillan, it is the lively story of two youngsters who rescue a neglected antique automobile from the junk man — and, with the help of their big sister, enter the big race for vintage vehicles. Older car enthusiasts, along with the children, will find themselves enjoying this tale. The photos are stunning.

For the newest title in its Horizon Caravel Book series, American Heritage Book Co. has selected "The Vikings" ($3.95). Frank R. Donovan has written the story of the daring, and adventurous Norsemen during the era of their supremacy over the European continent, 800 to 1100 A.D. It is a colorful tale, well told. And as always with its Horizon Caravel books, American Heritage has provided a handsome, sturdy format and an impressive array of illustrations.

In her "So Small" (Harcourt, Brace and World), Ann Rand tells of the adventures and misadventures of a mischievous little mouse who ultimately learns the value of good behavior. Feodor Rojankovsky's realistic pictures make the adventures very vivid. There are full-page and double-page pictures with very little print — as a small child's book should be. Jolly and delightful.

"Why Is My Peau de Soie Gown Limp and Lifeless?"

Dear Mrs. T. T. L.:

Peau de Soie may be 100% silk or acetate, rayon or blends of these. Whatever its fiber, Peau de Soie meaning "silk skin," is a luxury fabric. Much heavier than most satins, its smooth, silky, semi-dull appearance makes it extremely popular for late afternooon and evening wearing.

The disadvantage of such a fabric is that it is loom-finished and may lose its sizing or finish simply in normal wear. Its sizing is usually water soluble and after crocking in wear, floats away from the fabric when it is cleaned. Further, spots and stains on Peau de Soie are most difficult to remove.

Satisfaction from this luxury fabric depends upon its construction. It may pucker if combined with fabrics or even threads that shrink. Most Peau de Soie drycleans satisfactorily, but requires special care in wear.

Your gown is limp and lifeless, Mrs. T. T. L., because that is its nature. It is too bad that such beauty is so transient.

HOW TO USE THE TONE CONTROLS ON YOUR COMPONENT STEREO SYSTEM.

Most component preamp-amplifiers have an elaborate set of controls. These controls will provide the listener with properly balanced musical quality at all listening levels, soft, medium and loud. They will provide this balanced tone in most acoustical room environments; that is, small, medium and large rooms — hard surfaced walls & draped walls.

To achieve proper balance, the listener must know how to properly adjust the controls. Like an expensive camera, if the lens speed and film speed and focus are not taken into consideration the picture will be blurred. If the bass and treble and loudness contour and low and high filters are not properly adjusted, the sound will be blurred or thin or boomy or squeeky.

First, let's review the facts about our hearing. Two physicists, Fletcher and Munson, made some extensive tests with various groups of listeners and found that at low listening volumes we humans do not hear the bass as strongly as we hear the middle range of tones. This also occurs to a slight degree at the treble or high tone end of the musical spectrum. As the volume becomes louder and louder, our hearing of the bass becomes stronger and stronger. When the volume reaches symphony hall levels, a fairly loud volume, we hear the low bass end and the middle and high ends of the musical range with equal intensities. What does all of this mean? It means that the softer we reproduce our music, the less bass our ears will hear.

How do we counteract this phenomenon? One of the controls on the component music system is called a "loudness" or a "contour" control. When you are listening to music at the lower volume levels, you should switch this control to the "on" position. The loudness contour control will allow the amplifier to reproduce more bass than middle range tones and thus the ear hears the music in balance even at low volumes. Usually the design of this control is such that the degree of bass boost will vary as you turn the volume control from soft to loud. When listening to music at loud volume levels, the loudness contour control should be in the off position since the bass boost is not required.

The bass and treble controls on a quality system have a center normal position; that is, when left in the center position all tones will be amplified in equal amounts. How these controls should be used will be discussed in the next article.

PINK WAVES

I am thinking compassionately tonight
of graying, storm weary hulls trolling embosomed yesterdays hackamore throated beneath blue ferruled clouds that ride
their own silversplayed storms. Weathered figureheads, bravely breasting wave after pink crested wave counterpointing the seaspray's opalescent aria of tears.
Stolidly planked aprons, moss greened
and urchin beaconed, coveting a halcyon water's pursed lips. Paravanes, rust
reefed to an old fisherman's bend,
deflecting sunken desires. Flaked calking, deserting aged whales as quietly as derelict shadows adrift in fog becalmed
on a moored sea. Winking navigators, plotting courses to misty landfalls,
sunstays spliced to threnodic rigging
singing windward of harbors anchored
patiently, winching shelter briefly.
Mast fingers, wet to the luffing stars,
sensing direction of battened windfall,
rudder and tiller of oncoming wave after white sweeping wave. Creaking hulls, displacing ebb and flood impartially,
wind and tide turned to the taut chain,
a swivelling sea casually lapping against garboards braced for the definitive storm,
knowing it will come. Timecleated hulls,
windlassing free to surge slowly rising,
falling, yawing and crabwise tacking to rest, gracefully battered on the clean
furled sands of a far fendered shore.

FRONTAGE ROAD BLUES

That old road running parallel to the freeway
Was once a new road
In those exhausted days of ago,
When ingress and egress were thought
By some folks to be birds
That supplied feathers for ladies' hats;
And accelerator was a new word for most,
More often than not, called "auxilerator"
By school boys, goggle-eyed in wonder
At the new models.
She's done now.
Traffic's tempo is surging elsewhere.
Off-ramps penetrate her and cheap stores
Push in along her chuck-hole traversity.
But this macadam mistress is of tougher stuff.
None have caused her to regress
To the status of alley.
Even old roads, perhaps, lead to Rome?

MEDITATIVE THOUGHTS

Beauty grasps the heart in poignant pain,
So much to have and to release again.
Love too cries 'halt' and begs for more,
Afraid of unknown scenes, of unknown lore,
Yet move they must for beauty dims in wasted years,
And love unless it grows in trust, dies in fears.

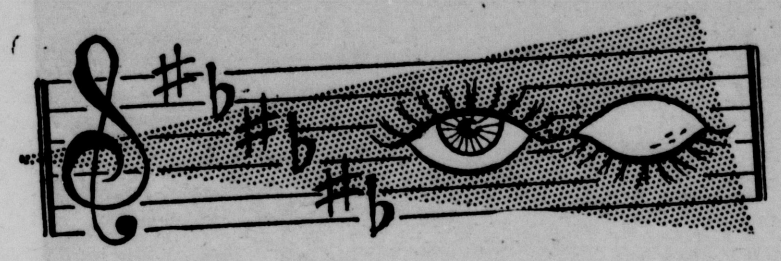
On The Stereo Scene: New Classical Records



By JOHN SUNIER
KBRG Program Manager

A PERCUSSION SPECTACULAR — GINASTERA: Cantata Para America Magica for 53 Percussion Instruments and Dramatic Soprano plus CHAVEZ: Toccata for Percussion — Raquel Adonaylo, soprano/Henri Temianka conducting Los Angeles Percussion Ensemble — Columbia Stereo MS 6447:

The wild sounds of this 1960 composition match the wild title.

The Argentine composer has based his cantata on ancient pre-Columbian texts and seeks to pay musical homage to America's primitive man. The word "magic" is used here in its primitive sense, indicating the symbolic interpretation of the mysteries of nature by early man.

The work is highly unique in its effort to create primitive mood with the most advanced serial (atonal) musical techniques. Of course the gigantic percussion battery has a great deal to do with the final effect, which is quite shattering.

The Chavez piece is tame by comparison. It explores the great variety of timbres and rhythms possible in even an ordinary percussion section, providing a sort of "Young Person's Guide to the Percussion Department."

Laurels to Columbia's engineers.

MAHLER: Symphony No. 5 in c sharp plus MAHLER: Kindertotenlieder — Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano/New York Philharmonic/Bernstein — Columbia Stereo M2S 698:

Lennie Bernstein appears to be bravely tackling the Mahler symphonies for Columbia that the great Bruno Walter was not able to record before his recent death.

The third, recently released, was a triumph. This one equals it most of the time.

With Bernstein's clear articulation of sections and themes, these almost weekend-long symphonies do not seem too lengthy at all. A very readable essay on "Mahler, The Man and His Music," is included.

Miss Tourel is warm and touching in her performance of the Mahler songs upon the death of children. The idea is never allowed to enter a listener's mind that perhaps the subject is a bit morbid. Her enunciation is excellent and the stereo sound likewise.

A treasureable two-disc package.

ROMANCES AND SERENADES — Vaughan Williams: The Lark Ascending; SIBELIUS: Romance in C for Strings; DELIUS: Serenade from "Hassan"; FRANCAIX: Serenade for Small Orchestra; WARLOCK: Serenade for Strings — Cleveland Sinfoinetta/Louis Lane, conductor/Rafael Druian, violinist—Epic LC 3875:

Usually this sort of theme for a classical lp results in a mediocre collection of warhorses. Not the case here.

All of these short pieces are rarely heard and pure pleasure in their pastoral loveliness. This is fine "mood music" at its very highest level of quality. The performances by members of the Cleveland Orchestra are perfect, and the mono sound good (although why the stereo version wasn't sent for review I will never know).

MOTETS FOR DOUBLE CHORUS, BRASS, AND ORGAN — Works by Praetorius, J.C. Bach, Scheidt, and Schutz — Philippe Caillard Vocal Ensemble/Chorales A Coeur Joie /Brass Ensemble of Paris/ Philippe Caillard, conductor—Westminster Stereo WST 14090.

This eminent offering from the French Erato label won a Grand Prix Du Disque, and certainly deserves it.

The four compositions are from the great century of sacred music in Germany just prior to J. S. Bach. The large choral forces, the brasses and organ add a sizeable measure of excitement to these fine performances.

As is European custom, the recording features a rather distant stereo sound, with some reverberation, as in a large cathedral. The stereo separation is still noticeable, however.

POULENC: Stabat Mater; Four Motets for a Time of Penitence — Regine Craspin, soprano/Choeurs Rene Duclos /Paris Conservatoire Orchestra/Georges Pretre conducting—Angel Stereo S 36121:

The late French composer Poulenc turned in his old age to the composition of highly original and deeply-felt liturgical music. The "Stabat Mater" is a remarkable work deserving of more performance outside of France.

The motets are for choir alone and of less interest.

Both works are sung in Latin by an excellent choir enjoying good stereo recording.

If these selections are your cup of tea, you will also want to try Poulenc's "Gloria," his Organ Concerto, Harpsichord Concerto, and opera "Dialogues of the Carmelites," on the same label.

Borrowed From Japanese

A Different Concept In Landscaping

The European and American approach to gardens is to provide trees and shrubs as a background for flowering plants, and a garden without color would be almost unthinkable.

Not so in the Japanese garden. Trees and shrubs are used as individual specimens and may represent a natural scene remembered by the owner in a trip to the country or some famous shrine.

THE JAPANESE use "props" of gravel, stone and water as foils for trees and shrubs. This leads to an effect that remains stable through every season of the year, although it is unlikely that maintenance time is saved because such a garden must be well groomed.

The water may be a quiet pool, or a trickling stream. It may represent a dried up stream in summer and have no water at all.

Whichever approach you may take to build a Japanese garden there are several trees and shrubs lending themselves naturally to the situation. The main idea is to use restraint. Carefully select a few well-grown specimens that give a "finished" appearance when the garden is planted.

THE JAPANESE maple is a small tree with a variety of uses in your garden. It may be used to shade a bank of azaleas or stand by itself as the principal feature. You have a choice of green or reddish foliage.

The varieties that go under the general term of "threadleaf" are lower-growing shrub types, with gracefully-spreading branches. They cast a lovely reflection on the surface of a quiet pool. Again, you have a choice of green or reddish foliage.

A DOUBLE DUTY pine is the Mugho Pine, delightful indoors or out. The clear green of the foliage blends well with interior decor as a cut arrangement. The handsome shape of the tree adds an exciting touch to any area around your home. It only grows to four feet, so you know it is easy to care for. For an interesting conversation piece, put Mugho Pine in a tub and place it in a special corner of your patio. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

Incidentally, the deep red occurs in spring and gradually turns to green during summer. The leaves fall in winter to reveal eye-appealing silhouettes of slender branches.

PINES ARE almost essential to the Japanese garden.

The Japanese Black Pine is most popular, but you may find something equally or more attractive in our native ponderosa and shore pines or the Austrian Black Pine. Search for trees that have neither lived high nor have ever been staked. Your nurseryman can be a great deal of help to you here, and may recommend the dwarf Mugho Pine where you have a space problem.

An airy touch is lent to the garden by clumps of the Japanese "Sacred Bamboo" or Heavenly Bamboo. Your nurseryman calls this Nandina domestica and it is not related to bamboo at all. The slender branches support compound leaves of a light green, bronzy when young. The white flowers in spring are followed by red berry clusters in fall.

BE SURE to plant a clump of three to insure berry production. Although all plants are capable of bearing fruit, flowers are self-sterile and require pollen from other plants around them.

In fall, cut out the old stems clear to the ground and use them for holiday table decorations. This leaves space for the new shoots to develop and keeps the plants looking youthful through the years.

The Oriental magnolias lend themselves admirably to your garden, particularly the soulangeana forms (Saucer Magnolia), which may be kept to a modest height and spread with a little judicious pruning. Their wonderfully fragrant saucer-shaped flowers appear just ahead of the foliage and produce a remarkable show in February through May.

COLORFUL Japanese Iris are available at your nursery from October through December. The foliage is neat and the large flowers in blue and purple shades, often with white, will give you some late spring color. Clumps of Japanese Anemone, in white or pink, may be tucked into shady spots. But be sure to contain them with a wooden or metal "header" or the roots will encroach into other parts of the garden.

Most popular groundcover to use in non-rock and gravelled area is the Japanese Spurge. It may be purchased in flats, pots or one-gallon containers at your nursery. Give Japanese Spurge shade and plenty of peat moss, and it will look well every day in the year.

Here's A Colorful Combo—

The happiest and brightest combination for your garden and patio area is petunias, begonias and zinnias.

Sound like a lot of color? It sure is.

They are all available now in flats for mass planting.

THE BEDDING Plant Growers Assn. assures you a long-lasting enjoyment when you grow petunias, for this prolific annual requires a minimum of care and produces a steady array of brilliantly colored blooms in single, ruffled, double, dwarf and giant forms.

Fire Dance, an F1 Hybrid, is an interesting type of grandiflora petunia. Rich in color, this scarlet has a yellow throat and fringed petals. The blooms are over three inches across.

Also among the F1 Hybrids, Comanche and Tango have single red flowers, Crusader is striped pink and white and Ballerina is frilly and feminine in soft salmon pink.

All these and the new introductions are available in flats for ready planting. Give your plants plenty of sun in a bed of well-prepared soil.

WHILE THE petunia will give you endless enjoyment, fibrous begonia will also add its contribution of color and originality to your garden. Fibrous begonias are available in dwarf and extra dwarf forms ranging from four to 10 inches in height. Perfect for beds, borders, boxes, fibrous begonia comes in pink, white, red, and bi-colors showing white with pink edges. Bright green foliage or bronze leaves (as you wish) set off the dainty blooms to the delight of every viewer.

Zinnias will be another treat for you if you get them in the ground as soon as possible. Decide whether you want the tall, medium, pompon or Dwarf Thumbelina variety and buy them in flats now. Zinnias will not only make color accents for your every garden member but will give extra dividends as cut arrangements in your home.

SUMMER weather encourages barbecues and buffets. You already have your begonias and petunias around the patio, so no dearth of color there. Now you need some fresh zinnias for that buffet table . . . and also for small table decorations.

Like all bedding plants, petunias, begonias and zinnias have the best effect when massed in large numbers. They will respond with color galore for little care or expense.

Prepare Your Garden For Vacation

Worried about your garden while away on vacation?

Here are a few suggestions that will relieve your concern:

Our rainless summers guarantee us good weather for our vacations but solve no watering problems during our absence, so it is a good idea to irrigate thoroughly beforehand and avoid moisture loss by mulching plants and shrubs.

Several good mulching materials are available from your nurserymen and garden supply dealers. The list includes peat moss, shredded bark, shavings and steer manure.

LET HIM provide the one he thinks best for your garden. It sometimes depends upon your particular soil and plantings.

The strategy against vacation moisture loss is to first build a shallow basin around the plants you irrigate once a week or oftener, then fill with a slow stream of water. Pour or shovel in the mulch from the bag until the basins are full, then irrigate again to moisten the mulch.

Be sure to check the mulch for thorough wetting. Dampening is not enough.

Flower beds that have just been planted should be mulched between plants.

FIRST, cultivate lightly, then spread the mulch to a depth of one-half to one inch, then irrigate with a stationary sprinkler. Test the soil with a stick to assure yourself that moisture has penetrated to a depth of three or four inches.

Well-fed lawns do not require as much water, so give the grass in your garden a light feeding with a well-balanced lawn food, liquid or dry, before you leave. Soak the food in thoroughly.

And don't forget to mow before you go!

Bugs don't take vacations in summer—only in winter. Use a good general-purpose insecticide recommended by your nurseryman, applied with an efficient hose-end or pressure-tank sprayer.

SCATTER snail pellets in flower beds and under shrubs.

Large house plants may be thoroughly soaked before going away. Small indoor plants likely to dry out quickly may be enclosed in freezer bags slipped over the top and tied under the pot. Set them in a place shaded from direct sunlight.

Your nurseryman or garden supply dealer can also supply you with repellants to protect your prized plantings against marauding dogs while you are absent.

BEFORE YOU depart upon your trip, make one last check to be certain that you have taken care of all these matters. Check them off one by one.

Then, if they have all been done, you can depart, free of nagging yard and garden worries.

And when you return, you will find the reception a pleasant one—not the disaster which results from failure to plan in advance.

GROW YOUR favorite plants in containers and you can enjoy them when the mood strikes you. Succulents are ideal for this kind of treatment, and you can work their different forms and shapes in with larger plants. This is the Jade Plant. It presents no "vacation time" problem, since it stores water in its leaves. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔ You can still set out new hydrangeas if you keep them in shady areas. Remember to water them often.
- ✔ Sweet fragrances can greet you in your garden during those summer evenings if you plant Star Jasmine, bouvardia and osmanthus now.
- ✔ Stake and tie tomato plants now to avoid the unkempt look of sprawling branches.
- ✔ For your vacation checklist include a list of specific instructions for your garden care while you're away. This will save time and effort. When you return your garden and lawn will be just as you want it.
- ✔ Hurry and plant annuals for dashes of color in fall and winter. Check your nursery for a complete selection.

Handyman's Page

The Privacy Fence Can Be Both Esthetic And Utilitarian

Probably the biggest cost of a home, proportionately, is the land itself.

And with land costs and taxes still rising everywhere, home owners are smart to see that every inch of ground around the house is put to full use.

For that very reason, the tall back yard fence is fast becoming an accepted institution. Privacy must be assured if the yard is to become a livable part of the home, and the tall fence is the way to do it.

CRISP, CLEAN lines and a dimensional look are needed for the high fence.

One excellent pattern is the board-on-board. It is easily built and rates high in appearance. It is also a pattern which complements a home of either traditional or contemporary styling.

To build the board-on-board fence, one-by-four, or one-by-six inch boards are nailed vertically on alternating sides of the framework so the edges overlap about one inch. The result is three-dimensional and solid in appearance, but allows good air circulation — an important factor.

Framing for the fence calls for four-by-four inch posts and two-by-four rails. A cap board of two-by-six inch material gives a trim finish.

WESTERN red cedar lumber or Douglas fir would be excellent for such outdoor use as fencing, and both take paint and stain finishes well. The tall fence needs a delicate touch color-wise.

A natural wood shade, a soft desert sand color, and the silvery shade of weathered wood are the best bets. Clean white is also attractive, but does produce glare.

Choice of resawn or smooth surfaced wood for the fence depends on the house siding. A house sided in textured resawn wood demands fencing of the same texture. Painted, smooth surfaced siding looks best teamed with smooth fencing, though colors need not match.

Along the base of the fence, a strip of land should be reserved for a planting bed, no matter what structures and plant materials are used in the rest of the yard layout. A variety of shrubs will soften the junction between fence base and land and serve to blend the fence into the general landscaping plan.

Use of a few tall plants and perhaps a climber or two also effectively reduces the height of the fence.

FOLKS WHO ENJOY entertaining at home will find today's build-it-yourself project a real conversation starter. It's a hi-fi music bar. The available Easy-Bild pattern explains how to build from materials easily obtained in lumber yards. Besides providing convenient storage for glassware and all the other essentials, directions tell how to install a bar sink, record changer and stereophonic receiver. Two different style bahs can be built, one a six-foot or longer straight bar, the other L-shaped. Both are handsomely designed, easy and economical to build. To obtain Playroom Bar Pattern No. 490, send 75 cents to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y.

The TV Stars On Vacation

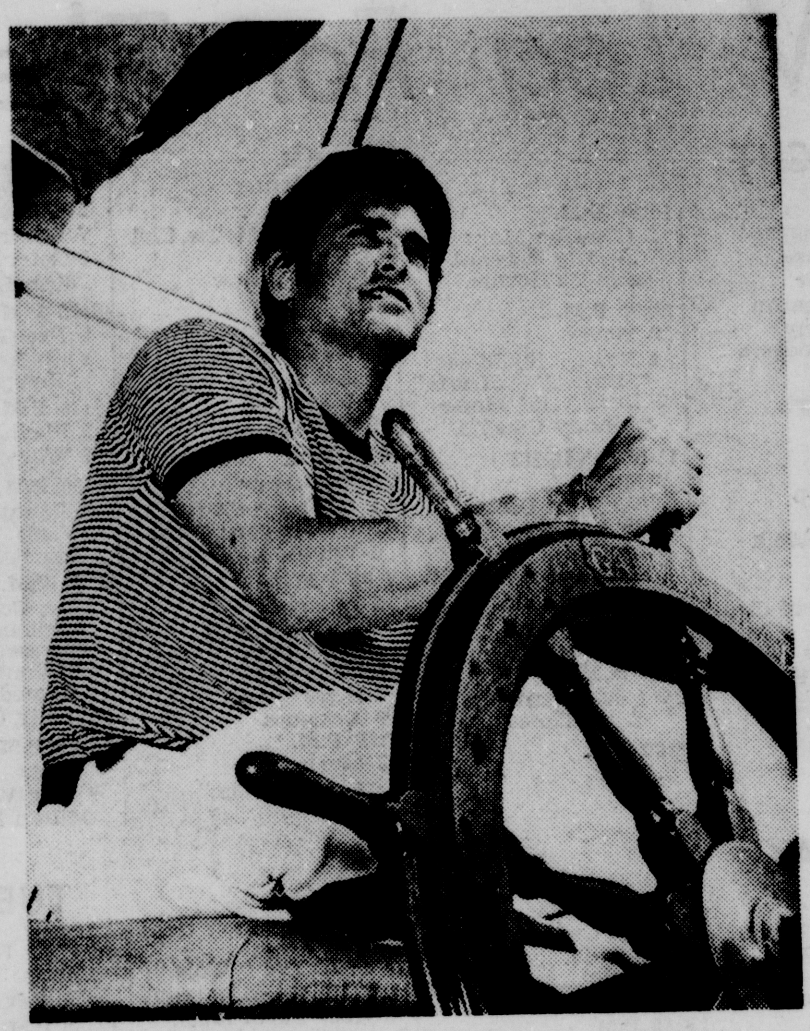
Yes, you're right. There are an awful lot of repeat shows on television these days.

That's partially because the summer is vacation time for TV stars, like anybody else.

What do the television actors and actresses do in their free time from their work before the cameras? Well, for one thing, they apparently do not watch TV.

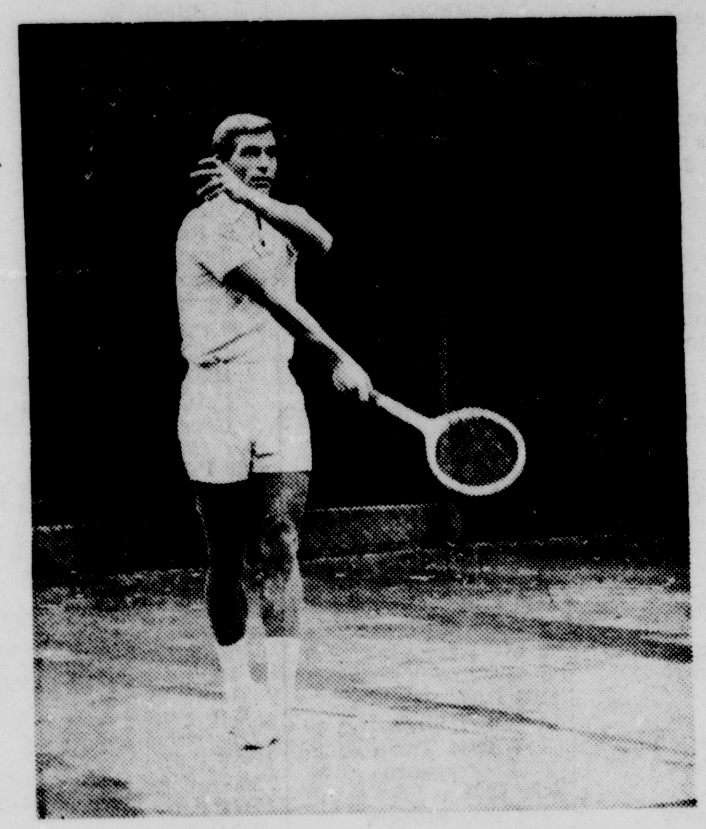
The National Broadcasting Co. put together this collection of photos showing some of the NBC stars at the hobbies and interests to which they devote their summer months.

And now you know why things are so quiet on the Ponderosa and in Blair General Hospital right now. Hoss Cartwright and Dr. Kildare have other things on their minds, and you'll just have to wait until fall for fresh adventures and new drama.



MICHAEL LANDON will leave The Ponderosa where he portrays Little Joe Cartwright in the popular "Bonanza" western series to spend his summer vacation skippering his sailboat, the Gallant Lady.

FOR JAMES DRURY of "The Virginian", what used to be his work is now his hobby. An ex-auto mechanic, he still enjoys rebuilding old motors. And he'll do a good deal of it this summer.



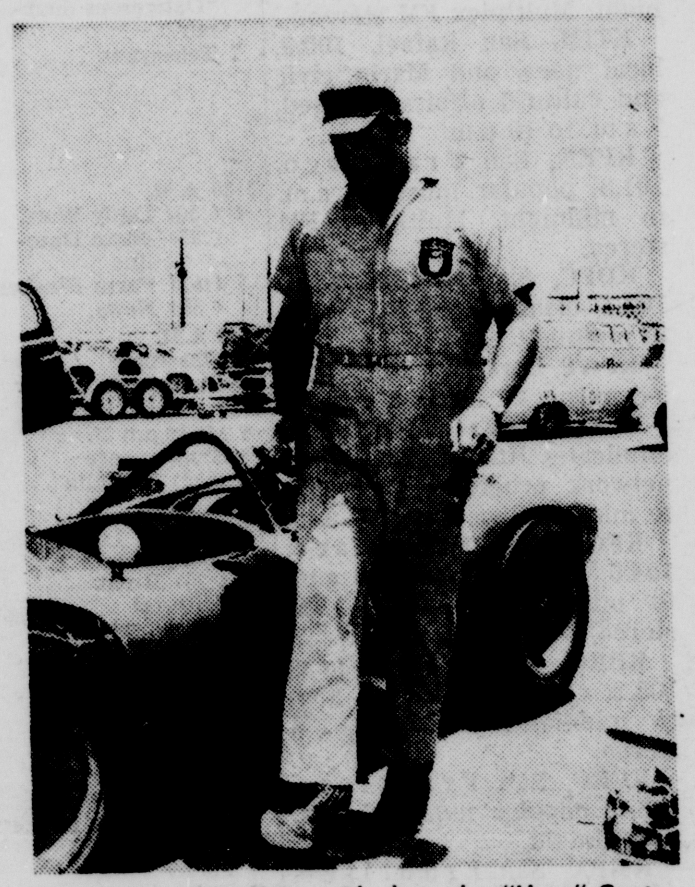
JAMES FRANCISCUS, title star of the "Mr. Novak" series, is a sports enthusiast. And tennis, one of his favorite games, also helps him stay in trim during the summer months.

WHITNEY BLAKE, seen as Dorothy Baxter on the "Hazel" comedy show, plans to enjoy to the fullest the swimming pool at her home in the Hollywood hills during her lull in her TV chores.

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN, TV's "Dr. Kildare,' 'is an expert swimmer and a surfboard enthusiast. So he will be spending a lot of his time the next few weeks enjoying the warm Pacific waters.

IT WILL BE a summer vacation at home with his family on their two-acre estate in West Los Angeles for Don DeFore of the "Hazel" cast. He mans the pump while wife Marion and 5-year-old daughter Amy wait for the water to start.

THE DOMESTIC type is Roberta Shore of "The Virginian" show, and she'll spend her vacation at her parents' home brushing up on cooking and housekeeping. Next fall she plans to go to college—and to marry.



SPORTS CAR buff Dan Blocker, the "Hoss" Cartwright of "Bonanza" fame, shuns the horse, once filming of the show ends. Away from work, he will devote much of his time to racing cars and his sports car garage in Inglewood.

A Tough Year On TV Shows

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television wheezes to the end of another season this month, leaving the whitening bones of dead shows in its wake and the promise of deadlier reruns this summer.

IT WAS A tough year for drama.

Intellectuals, both real and presuming, wept over the demise of "East Side/West Side" and "The Richard Boone Show." Both were heavy on the seamy sort of message epics dear to the hearts of critics.

Killed in action, too, was "The Lieutenant."

"Arrest and Trial," the 90-minute cops and lawyers jazz with Chuck Connors and Ben Gazzara, was thrown out of court. "Channing" and "Du Pont Show of the Week" were canceled, too.

IT WAS A tough year for personalities.

Longtime star Garry Moore was canceled.

Jerry Lewis and Judy Garland, two enormously talented performers, saw their shows sink without a trace. Danny Thomas quit.

Comedian Sid Caesar bombed once again, and Edie Adams swooned as well.

Bearded Mitch Miller got too close a shave and was uncoupled.

IT WAS A tough year for comedy.

Phil Silvers watched his series suffer by comparison with his old army show, and off it went. Imogene Coca saw her "Grindl" fall, kicking.

And Glynis Johns, making her series debut in "Glynis," was shot down early in the going.

IT WAS A tough year for adventure.

"The Great Adventure" and "The Adventures of Jamie McPheeters" proved too unadventurous and were drummed into limbo, followed by "The Greatest Show on Earth," which also failed to live up to its title.

"Route 66," a roaring success for four years, came to a screeching dead end. And "77 Sunset Strip" died of old age.

IT WAS A tough year for psychiatric programs.

The headshrinkers of "Breaking Point" and "The Eleventh Hour" hit the couch with a resounding thud and were turned out to pasture.

Motorist Shot In Midnight Fracas Beside Highway

A highway brawl over driving manners erupted into a near-fatal shooting today as two drivers struggled over a 22-caliber revolver at the side of Highway 101 in Terra Linda.

One driver, Joseph J. Immel, 19, of 1722-A Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was wounded in the stomach, the bullet lodging in his body.

The other driver, James Warren Baxley, 19, of 116 Ward Street, Larkspur, was charged with assault with intent to commit murder.

Immel was rushed to San Rafael General Hospital where a team of doctors performed extensive surgery for more than three hours.

At one time during the operation, Immel's heart stopped momentarily, but the hospital explained it was not a critical stoppage. Immel was reported in good condition today at the hospital.

The sheriff's office reported Immel's version of the shooting as follows:

Immel was driving southbound along Highway 101 at the bottom of St. Vincent's Hill at 12:10 a.m. when a car driven by Baxley followed, blinking its bright lights on and off.

Immel pulled into the slow lane to let Baxley pass but Baxley cut in front of him, forcing Immel to stop on a shoulder, opposite the California Highway Patrol weight station.

Two passengers in Immel's car, Lawrence A. Maydole of 1722-A Lincoln Avenue, and Wynn T. Lattore of 87 Robinhood Drive, climbed out of the auto.

KENNEDY BACK BROKEN –'IN FAIR CONDITION'

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP)—A medical bulletin today on the condition of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.) injured in a plane crash Friday night, said that although he suffered a broken back, he has complete use of his legs and arms. (See story, photos, page 14.)

The hospital bulletin said:

"Senator Kennedy is in fair condition. He has improved considerably since his admission to the hospital and is resting comfortably.

"X-rays showed fractures of the fifth and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and fourth lumbar vertebrae (the lower back) and fractures of the second, third and fourth transverse processes which give the spine support.

"There are no head injuries and no neurological complications. He has complete use of his legs and arms. He has cuts on both legs and the right hand."

Fast Civil Rights Action Promised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House leaders today attacked the last barriers to final enactment of civil rights legislation broader, tougher and more controversial than any since north and south fought over slavery a century ago. (See also stories, photo, page 2.)

The leaders promised that the Senate bill, approved last night by an historic 73-27 vote, would be the law of the land by July 4. The Justice Department already was making plans to enforce the sweeping measure, even though it forecast general voluntary compliance.

Because the Senate bill is, in effect, an amendment of a House-passed measure, the House must now vote to accept or reject the Senate's changes. The House leadership's plan was to get the fastest possible acceptance of the Senate version, with Republican help.

Parliamentary maneuvering will begin about an hour after the House meets at 11 a.m. Monday. Hopes were for a vote by July 1.

The big question among House members today was whether Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater's vote against the bill last night would drain away some GOP support in the final House test.

Goldwater is far out in front for the GOP presidential nomination in San Francisco next month. His "no" vote sent shockwaves through Republican legislative ranks whose support was crucial in passage of the house and senate rights bills.

President Lyndon B. Johnson praised senators of both parties who had worked long and hard for passage. The bill, he said in a statement issued in San Francisco, "is the product, not of any man or group of men, but of a broad national concensus that every person is entitled to justice, to equality, and to an even chance to enjoy the blessings of liberty."

Negro civil rights leaders joined the president in lauding the Senate action, but many cautioned that there would be no letup in their drive for full equality.

The bill was passed one year to the day after it was requested by the late President John F. Kennedy.

President Ducks His Security

COMBINED UPI & AP

SAN FRANCISCO — President Lyndon B. Johnson yesterday had the tightest security shield in the history of San Francisco — and calmly walked out from behind it.

The city massed more than 500 policemen—about one third of the entire force — along the procession route on Market Street to the new Federal Building where the president spoke.

But twice the chief executive left his motorcade to shake hands with members of the crowd. And the second time he walked over to crowds on Market Street, which surged around him to the dismay of the presidential bodyguards.

The crowd of well-wishers was held back on the sidewalk by police, who would not let them onto the street despite signals by Johnson.

So the president stopped his open convertible and went over to the crowd to shake hands. The crowd converged around him while police tried to keep order.

Then the president returned to his car and resumed his ride.

Democratic Party unity in California was the main topic during Johnson's rapid-paced visit to the city.

But, in a way, it was "Pierre Salinger Day."

Salinger, who beat out State Controller Alan Cranston for the Democratic senatorial nomination in a hotly contested primary campaign June 2, was at the president's elbow most of the time.

One sour note in the party harmony came at the end of the banquet when Cranston denied reports he was dropping his two-million-dollar libel suit against Salinger.

Today in Irvine, Johnson said he will press forward with a plan to provide city dwellers with an extension service similar to the one long offered farm folk by the Agriculture Department.

Johnson made the announcement as he directed his unofficial California vote-wooing campaign at the area that gave Sen. Barry Goldwater his possibly crucial victory in the state's Republican primary.

The president is scheduled to return to Washington tomorrow.

'MISS CALIFORNIA' — Jeanne Venable, 23, of Carmichael last night was named "Miss California" in Los Angeles last night. She will represent the state in the "Miss Universe" contest in Atlantic City on July 21. Sharon Christoffierson, "Miss Sausalito," was a runner-up. (AP Wirephoto)

College Grads Told Ethics Key To Life

College of Marin graduates were urged to step out into the world wearing their ethics on their lapels yesterday at the college's 37th annual commencement exercises.

Guest speaker Dr. Paul F. Lawrence, state associate superintendent of public instruction speaking on "The Goals We Seek", told the neophytes that "if Hitler and Lincoln were graduating today, Hitler might walk away with more academic honors."

"Both men," he said, "were alike in many ways, but Lincoln was guided by a code of ethics and a sense of justice."

Analogies stressed between Lincoln and Hitler were "proficiency in public speaking, language skills, and a firm understanding of social psychology and social sciences," said Lawrence—rather than political tendencies.

The educator concluded by urging graduates to give life "more than the demands of justice require."

"It costs more to behave in an ethical fashion," he said, but this is the way to character building."

Lawrence was followed by student speaker Richard P. Coburn of San Anselmo, former editor of the Tower Times, college student newspaper.

Coburn entitled his talk, "The Challenge of Non-Conformity." He praised his alma mater as an institution where a student may find his identity.

"There is at this campus," said Coburn, "an atmosphere which encourages contact and communications between and among stu-

Hotel Registry Like U.N. List

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Fairmont Hotel registry read like the United Nations membership list last night.

Registered were President Lyndon B. Johnson, Australian Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies, and Anatoly Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to the United States.

President Johnson spent the night at the Fairmont after dedicating a Bay Area rapid transit district and attending a $100 a plate dinner in his honor. Dobrynin was here to start a two-week Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain vacation, and Menzies was en route to Washington.

Johnson Aide, Unruh Fly To Kennedy Side

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant to President Lyndon B. Johnson, and Jesse Unruh, speaker of the California Assembly, left the presidential party today to fly to the bedside of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Northampton, Mass.

White House staff members said they knew of no plans for the president also to go to Northampton where Kennedy is hospitalized for injuries suffered in a plane crash last night.

Novato Rodeo Opening At Western Weekend

The snorts, bellows and thudding hooves of ornery horseflesh and irate bulls, will resound from the Novato hills as the sun sets tonight, during the first round of the two-days rodeo competition at Novato's Western Weekend.

Cow-hands from all over the West will be striving to avoid pulling leather, outguess the balky calves, and show their skills in other events this evening, for glory and $600 in prizes.

The rodeo will open at 5:30 p.m. in the Novato Horsemen's Assn. area, part of the busiest day yet for the annual Western Weekend that opened Wednesday.

Earlier today, thousands of visitors thronged Novato's streets to watch 163 floats, bands, drum and bugle corps and other entries march in the most colorful parade in the festival's history. Many of the crowd were fortified for the hours of parade-watching by the Buckaroo Breakfast which opened the day at 7 a.m.

Novato's Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the five-day celebration, made sure there was some attraction suited to everyone, today. In addition to the parade, breakfast and rodeo, today's features included Western Weekend's first cross-country marathon race, a comical donkey race, a well-attended post-parade barbecue and the popular repetition of the annual firemen's water-ball battle.

All attention last night centered on the stage of the Novato Community House, where due homage was paid to beauty and beards in the best Western tradition.

Long-tressed, petite Jeanie Bergala was crowned Queen of Western Weekend, while a full-house audience cheered. Chosen her Princesses were Linda Heape and Carolyn Powell. The beauties presided over today's parade and accorded their regal presences to other events.

Turning from beauty to beards, hirsute examples of Novato manhood were judged critically for their chin-foliage efforts. Winnowed from the nearly four-dozen contestants after appropriate tugging and other verification, was Lyle Adin, whose full-style adornment won "best in show honors."

Other category winners were Frank Antonio, youthfully sporting an Abe Lincoln style; Bob Rankin, mutton chops; Angelo Mirabella, novelty, and Laurel Forwood, longest beard.

Stealing the evening's spotlight, in terms of popularity with the crowd, were "Don & Moe," Don Klapperich and Moe Sparrow, whose folk-singing drew repeated encore demands.

Lusty boos, hisses and cheers rank out from the audience as Novato Communiity Club players presented "And The Villian Still Pursued Her," in the best tradition of "mellerdrammer." Director was Scott Wright.

Paul Fry, president of the Novato Jaycees, welcomed the audi-

Supervisors Get Tough On Budget

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK

The Marin County Board of Supervisors began to get more hard-nosed yesterday in budget hearings, with the effect that the expected property tax rate inched downward two mills, to $2.353 per $100 assessed valuation.

But the board members received a shock at seeing the medical department budget, which, including medical care, has about doubled in the past two years and will total about $896,000 next year, virtually all of which will come from the county property taxpayers directly.

The budget was approved as recommended, but only after repeated queries, especially by Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker, about why there has been such a sharp increase.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said part of the cost was carried before in a separate budget for the hospital and farm, which has been discontinued.

Medical Director Michael Scholl added that the caseload has jumped and medical costs have risen sharply. He said an increase in the number of nursing home beds in the county would help because persons now being held in hospitals for expensive care could be moved out.

One part of the medical budget came in for a particularly careful check, and is expected to generate heat again on Monday, dur-

Corbett's Girl Friend Tells Of Cynical Laugh On Phone

By ROSS DAVIS

The green-eyed, 27-year-old girl friend of murder victim Donald G. Corbett Jr. testified yesterday she became anxious when he failed to confirm two weekend dates and telephoned him, only to hear, instead, a "kind of cynical laugh" from a strange voice.

Rosalinde Estes, divorced mother of three who said she had known Corbett about five months, said in the Marin Superior Court slaying trial that they had previously arranged for a dinner date in her San Francisco home the evening of March 28—the day after Corbett was murdered—and for Easter dinner at his Sausalito apartment the following day.

The red-haired woman added that Corbett, usually considerate in telephoning of additional arrangements, failed to phone again following a March 25 call and that about 9:15 p.m. March 27 she became worried and telephoned him.

She said a strange voice answered, but she asked to speak with "Don" (Donald Corbett).

"Don?" she said the male voice replied. She said the voice then informed her that "Don" wouldn't be back "until 3 p.m." He "gave a kind of cynical laugh," she added.

It was later established that Corbett, 30, products executive for Foremost Dairies in San Francisco, was slain by icepick and bludgeoning that day, but his body wasn't discovered in the apartment until the following Monday.

Mrs. Estes, who said she is German and employed by an advertising agency with which Foremost is a client, testified she had been dating Corbett "regularly." She said the Easter dinner at Corbett's was to include his brother, Dr. Robert Kendall Corbett, 28, and the latter's wife.

She added she also tried without success all day, Saturday and Sunday to reach Donald Corbett. Another employee of the advertising agency, Robert Urban, testified earlier yesterday he and two acquaintances became worried about Corbett on Monday, March 30 and went to his apartment, finding his body there.

The telephone answer by a strange voice coincided with a report of Corbett's blonde ex-wife, Karen, a model, who told police shortly after discovery of the murder that she had telephoned from Tucson, Ariz., the same day, March 27, and someone identifying himself as "Nielson" told her Corbett was not there.

"He is downtown going on a toot," she quoted the voice as saying. She, too, had become worried, and flew to San Francisco, reached Sausalito, and knocked

Lowest Draft Call In 3 Years Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department says higher-than-expected enlistments and reenlistments are responsible for the lowest draft call in more than three years—3,300 men in August.

The July call was 8,000. In April, 1961, the draft call dropped to 1,500 men but it shot up to 25,000 in September because of the Berlin crisis.

Nikita Drops By Stock Exchange

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev won a hearty three cheers from Denmark's top business men at Copenhagen's Stock Exchange today and then went to a shipyard where employees gave him a shout of "hurrah for Russian workers!"

The premier, on the last full day of a five-day visit, was equally good-humored at both places, first exchanging quips with some of Denmark's top capitalists, then plugging his co-existence line in a speech to 3,000 workers at the giant Burmeister and Wain Shipyards.

U.N. Extends Force On Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Security Council voted unanimously today to extend the stay of the U.N. peace-keeping force in Cyprus for a second three months ending Sept. 26.

The 11-member council adopted a five-nation resolution for that purpose at a Saturday meeting that attracted less than 200 spectators.

Sponsors of the resolution were Bolivia, Brazil, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Norway, which had also sponsored the council's March 6 and March 13 resolutions on Cyprus that it reaffirmed.

Scare Delays Lynda Bird Flight

HONOLULU (AP)—A man was detained today in connection with the postponing of a jet airliner flight that was to have taken Lynda Bird Johnson, the president's daughter, to Los Angeles.

The Secret Service refused to let the plane take off after learning that the man, booked on the same flight, made a shooting threat in the lobby.

After Miss Johnson was taken off the plane and back to her Waikiki hotel, the Pan American World Airways Flight 824 was permitted to leave.

Airport sources said the man taken into custody set up a loud disturbance in the Honolulu International Airport lobby and threatened to shoot a woman who once scorned him. The woman was with her husband. None of the three was identified.

Engle Whispers His 'Aye' Vote

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Clair Engle, recuperating slowly from two brain operations and almost unable to speak, was taken to the Senate in a wheelchair yesterday to vote in favor of the civil rights bill.

The California Democrat whispered his "aye" vote as his name was called. An aide was at his side prompting him when the time came for Engle's reply.

Engle, who is retiring from the Senate, also had voted in favor of shutting off the long filibuster. His cloture vote was made by lifting his left arm.

Marin Officers Escort Johnson

Three motorcycle officers from the Marin-Golden Gate District were among the special detail escorting President Lyndon B. Johnson during his San Francisco visit.

The officers were Angelo J. Corvino, Donald J. Dowling and Ivan D. Jump.

They left the Corte Madera headquatrers this morning in full uniform, including dress jacket with braids, to escort the President from downtown San Francisco to the International Airport.

President Challenges Nation To Follow Civil Rights Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans of every race and creed faced a challenge from President Lyndon B. Johnson today to join in making the provisions of the newly passed civil rights bill "the customs of our land."

The president, on a speechmaking trip to the West Coast, issued a statement from his traveling White House in San Francisco shortly after the senate approved the controversial measure last night, exactly one year after it was first requested by the late President John F. Kennedy.

Johnson hailed the action as "a major step toward equal opportunities for all Americans," and said that while no law can eliminate prejudice, the bill will go further "to invest the rights of man with the protection of law than any legislation in this century."

Looking forward to the day, "which will not be long forthcoming," when he signs the bill into law, Johnson described it as a "challenge to all of us to go to work in our states and communities in our homes and the depths of our hearts to eliminate the final strongholds of intolerance and hatred."

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, one of the leaders in the fght to get the bill passed, said in a statement the vote "must hearten and encourage President Johnson and all Americans. I know how President Kennedy felt a year ago today and I know how pleased he would be now."

The statements came as congressmen from both sides praised the Senate action and House leaders promised speedy consideration of the compromise measure passed by the Senate.

Speaker John W. McCormack (D-Mass.) said approval of the bill was "a decided step forward" and predicted the House would give its approval in time for President Johnson to sign the bill by July 4.

Rep. Emmanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) and Rep. William McCulloch (R-Ohio), House managers for the bill, said they would ask the House to accept the Senate's version without asking for changes.

"We accept the Senate version," they said. "We believe that the House membership will take the same position."

The two representatives said there were portions of the Senate bill "not to our liking," but they felt a House-Senate conference committee could "fatally delay" enactment of the measure.

"The cause of civil rights can best be moved forward by enactment of the bill now," they said.

Civil rights leaders were quick to acclaim the action of the Senate and said they will test its provisions in the South as soon as it becomes law.

A dissenting voice came from Sen. J. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.), one of the group of Southern Senators that filibustered against the measure for 83 days. Thurmond said in a statement that passage was a "tragic day for America."

"I predict that the American people will see that this legislation is repealed when it is enforced," he said. "It will be enforced if the political figures in positions of leadership in this country continue to be cowed by Negro agitational efforts which have been promised."

Johnson congratulated senators of both parties in his statement for working together to pass the bill.

Wallace Lashes Rights Bill; King Called Kennedy Tribute

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama called Senate passage of the civil rights bill "a sad day for individual liberty and freedom." Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro integration leader, hailed it as "a lasting tribute to the late John F. Kennedy."

The bill's passage yesterday brought gloom to Southern opponents and joy to integration leaders and moderates.

"It will bring practical relief to the Negro in the South and give the Negro in the North a psychological boost that he sorely needs," said King, in St. Augustine, Fla., for an integration crusade. King said Negroes would spend the summer testing compliance with the law and that St. Augustine would be a good place to start.

Wallace, a determined opponent of the bill and avowed candidate for president, predicted that Americans would remove from office those responsible for its passage. "I predict that the American people will rise up in indignation when they realize the awful consequences of this legislation," he said.

Gov. Farris Bryant of Florida said he had hoped the Senate would be more temperate. "It seems to me they have done a great injury to national unity," he said.

Mayor Ivan Allen Jr. of Atlanta hailed passage as "another major step in the elimination of racial discrimination," but Sen. Herman Talmadge (D-Ga.), who voted against the bill, asked, "How can it be called civil rights and grant special privileges to special citizens and take away constitutional rights of all citizens?"

Harry Carbaugh of Chattanooga, Tenn., state Republican chairman, praised GOP presidential candidate Sen. Harry Goldwater of Arizona for voting against the bill and said he was sorry "that there were not more like him."

The Rev. Sam Dodson, chairman of the Governor's Commission on Human Relations in Tennessee, said, "I think this will go down in history as one of the great days of our nation."

But Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D-S.C.), called yesterday "the blackest day in the United States Senate since 1875." That was when Reconstruction era civil rights laws were passed.

Local Government Interest Is Urged

A panel discussion of local governmental problems yesterday afternoon concluded Dominican College's week-long seminar on "California—Present and Prospect."

Moderated by former Marin supervisor and current State Senate candidate Mrs. Vera Schultz, the panel included State Sen. Joseph A. Rattigan of Santa Rosa, chairman of the State Senate Committee on Local Government; Kent D. Pursel, chairman of the Alameda Board of Supervisors and president of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments, and Mrs. Bernice Hubbard May, member of the Berkeley City Council.

Each of the panelists stressed the need for the public to interest itself in local government. Pursel told of the budget meeting this week of his board which was attended by only two people of a population in Alameda County of about one million.

"Our budget is about 110 million dollars, and we advertised the meeting by law to inform the public of its time and place. Yet just two people showed up.

"Most people only know their courthouse as the place where they got their marriage license or where they have served on a jury. They always manage to find it when they get their tax bill, but they won't interest themselves in the budget enough to come to our meetings and tell us their views."

Mrs. May urged the audience to "find out what your planning commission is like and what your master plan is like; find out whether your local officials are supporting the Assn. of Bay Area Governments.

"Your planning commission must have adequate power. It must have a capable staff and adequate financing."

Asked if pressure groups had a debilitating influence on local government, the panelists agreed that generally they did not. Mrs. May and Pursel felt that these groups serve to inform public officials and widen their comprehension of their problems.

Rattigan said that while the state could enter the field of recreation, he thought that it should not involve itself in this area, which is more efficiently run by local government.

Rattigan and Pursel voiced the warning that the public must interest itself in local government if it hopes to retain control of those public activities controlled by local government.

"The city government," Pursel said, "is just as close to you as you want to make it."

Dinner Meeting

Muir Woods Park Improvement Assn. members held a dinner meeting at the association's clubhouse last night. No business was discussed; the group's schedule calls for business meetings to be held only every other month. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. July 17 at the clubhouse, according to E. Margaret Hardy, president.

The first Memorial Day was a military, not a public, holiday.

Classrooms, Library Contract Is Awarded

Contract for construction of 34 classrooms and a library at San Rafael High School was awarded to Pacific Coast Builders of San Francisco by the school district board last night.

The board passed a resolution permitting withdrawal of the low bid of $846,980 from Olsen Construction Co. of Santa Rosa in which a $50,000 error was made, Supt. Bert C. Corona said today.

Included in Pacific Coast Builders' contract for the $917,400 project, the second lowest offer of the seven bids received on the building, is demolition of the old library and seven adjacent undersized classrooms on the site where the new building will be constructed.

The contract will be reviewed by the Federal Housing and Home Finance Agency next week. Site preparation is expected to begin July 1, Dr. Corona said.

The new complex is scheduled to be ready for occupancy in Sept., 1965.

119 Ward Street, Larkspur, got out of Baxley's car.

Maydole and Vardon got into a fight over the driving episode and Immel went over to Baxley who was seated behind the driver's wheel.

As Immel started to talk, he heard a "click-click" and saw the muzzle of a gun pointed at him by Baxley.

When Baxley told him to "get out and leave us alone," Immel tried to grab the gun and it fired. The bullet hit him in the right side.

Immel's friends then came to his aid, wrestled the gun away from Baxley and took Immel to San Rafael General Hospital.

While sheriff's deputies were gathering reports of the shooting, Baxley and Vardon voluntarily arrived in at sheriff's headquarters.

They said they thought they shot and wounded someone, the sheriff's office reported.

Baxley claimed he was harassed while driving and said he was watching the fight when Immel reached into the Baxley car and attempted to take the gun — Baxley grabbed for it and it discharged.

Baxley was booked on the charge and then released under $550 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

TRIAL

on Corbett's door Saturday. Getting no response, she departed.

An earlier prosecution witness, Claire Salop, 207-B Valley Street, Sausalito, testified she resides next door to Corbett's apartment house, and was asked on March 27 to his apartment to help rearrange new and old paintings he had acquired. She said she and Corbett were in his apartment about 10 minutes, then drove to the beach where they discussed his planned Easter dinner and a present he was giving his 7-year-old daughter, Julia, in Tucson.

Miss Salop, a student advisor with the Dean of Students' staff at San Francisco State College, said they returned later that evening and before separating, she gave him back a grey sweater he had loaned her on the beach.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales at that point introduced as evidence a sweater taken from a black suitcase bearing the initials "DGC" and which the two defendants, Robert Lee Jones and John Lee King, allegedly later had in their possession.

Miss Salop identified the sweater as the one Corbett loaned her.

She said she never saw Corbett alive again, but noticed his porch light was on the following day—Saturday — Easter Sunday and Monday.

First afternoon witness yesterday was C. William Friedrichs, assistant products manager with Foremost. He confirmed testimony of Urban that they had lunched with Corbett in a Sausalito restaurant March 27, and said prior to the meal they had gone by Corbett's apartment because Corbett wanted to show them his new paintings.

Two of the paintings, introduced as evidence, allegedly were later found in a Sausalito houseboat occupied by the defendants.

The trial adjourned yesterday until 10 a.m. Tuesday, when cross-examination of Mrs. Estes by defense attorneys is scheduled.

Truman: Rights Bill Passage Is 'Proper'

BUDGET

ing discussion of the health department budget.

This item was the bedside nursing program, which has been in the health department and which was curtailed sharply several months ago by the board when it ran out of money.

The proposal, which was approved, is to transfer the function July 1 to the medical department, and to create in integrated program of nurses, homemakers, housekeepers and other workers, supervised by a doctor and a public health nurse, for home care.

Scholl said such a program would coordinate many services now being given by the county, using them more efficiently. However, he added, the program could not be used for patients of the type who have been carried now as part-pay patients.

Those part-pay patients now in the program would be continued, however, he assured the board. It is the new cases which would have to find help elsewhere. He said the Babcock Foundation is studying the idea of paying for such a service.

Supervisor Leydecker said that the county should not fill the gap if a private agency could do so. Florence Scott of the Marin Council for Community Services said other counties had home nursing care associations, but that Marin did not.

The budgets for the probation office and juvenile hall were approved, with the board turning down a plea for a speed-up in hiring of a supervisor for deputy probation officers. The budget for the family rehabilitation center was approved with a shuffling of hiring dates on new personnel for the new facility.

The shuffle was made at the request of Probation Officer Walter H. Busher partly on the assumption that the center will not open its doors until June 1, rather than April 1, 1965, as now scheduled.

At the same time the board approved immediate hiring of a unit supervisor for the project, who is now being paid for a pilot project from a grant by the Rosenberg Foundation. Quick recruiting was also approved for the center's top position, the clinical director.

The board approved the budgets of the sheriff's office and district attorney's office with little comment, holding back on the starting date for a new deputy district attorney and on new furniture for the offices of four attorneys.

dents, faculty and administrators."

"Unlike some of the four-year colleges and universities, teachers are not hampered by pressure to do research," he said. "They can spend their time working directly with students out as well as inside the classroom. Graduates are, as a result, better equipped to go on to the four year schools."

The ceremony's welcome was given to some 300 spectators by David Lehman, class president. Top student was Robert de Brecht, of Novato, who completed his course work with just under an A average (all A's except for two classes).

De Brecht will continued to major in Physics at the University of California, Berkeley. He has also been named a Regent's scholar there.

The class gift, an AM-FM radio for the college's marine biology station at Bolinas, was presented by class secretary, Wylma Black.

Dr. C. A. Pulskamp, retiring head of the physical sciences department, was awarded a plaque to honor 37 years service by college Trustee Chairman Robert E. Rogers. Pulskamp, who lives at 12 Inman Avenue, Kentfield, was given a standing ovation.

The outstanding Alumnae award went to Joel F. Gustafson, class of 1937, for "outstanding service to college and community." He is president of Point Reyes National Park Development, former president of the Marin Conservation League, and former associate director of the Academy of Sciences in San Francisco.

Included among the 183 graduates was adult education secretary, Mrs. Louise O'Connor, of 28 Loring Avenue, Mill Valley, who worked for her Associate in Arts degree during off hours.

Senate Must Get Working

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate will begin on Monday to try to cut down the backlog of work accumulated during the 83-day civil rights debate.

Either on Monday or later in the week, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said last night, it will take up the only two appropriations bills approved in committee and ready for floor debate—the Interior and Treasury-Post Office measures.

The House has passed 11 of the 12 money bills needed to run the government in the fiscal year beginning July 1, but none has cleared the Senate.

Evening Gowns Still Glittering

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those evening dresses beaded from neck to hemline are fewer in the new fall and winter clothes collections. But there still is no shortage of opulence.

It just is taking some different directions with fabrics worth a king's ransom and furs showing everywhere for trim or linings and for the garment itself.

Consider, for instance, the floor length ball gown with matching jacket from the designer, Ferdinando Sarmi. It is made of an embroidered coral and silver patterned fabric—and the silver was sterling.

OR, THERE were dresses at Pauline Trigere's made of either black or white mink gills. The designer said they'd retail for between $900 and $1,000, but she pointed out they were dual purpose. The mink dresses, sleeveless and with a v-throat, could be worn over blouses or turtle neck sweaters as day costumes. Without sweaters or blouses and with rhinestone or other jeweled belts, they became short evening dresses.

Or, there were one of a kind formals, floor length, at Adele Simpson's, made of fabulous saris she bought in India. When the sari border was not used in the dress, it was turned into a matching evening bag.

Sarmi used silk chenille, fluffy as a bedspread, for floor length evening coats. Actually, the chenille is hand-embroidery on net to give a three dimensional puffiness.

CHANTILLY LACES re-embroidered so that they look sculptured show throughout the collections from the higher priced houses. So do the sculptured brocades. And the velvet touch is everywhere. Some velvets are smooth, some hand-cut so that the floral patterns are raised.

Designer Bud Kilpatrick, who brought his collection from Los Angeles for a preview for buyers jamming New York showrooms, showed brightly printed, floral cut velvets, quilted, for evening. One floor length number with bold floral pattern on the skirt came with a black satin bodice, sleeveless, and gathered into a soft tie at the waistline.

Harvey Berin showed quilted white silks in wide-skirted floor length formals.

Oh, not all the beads are gone.

AS THE STYLE-SETTING firms on Seventh Avenue continued their previews for buyers, it was apparent that jeweled treatments for late day and evening have a good future.

But there was no wave on wave of long slinky formals with bugle beads, rhinestones and other sparkle from top to floor as in previous collections. Designers like jeweled belts, jeweled cuffs, jeweled lace jackets topping chiffons or silks, jeweled blouses for theater suits.

THESE OTHER trends in evening wear developed:

—The waist length jacket and the knee length coat accompanying either short or long gowns.

—A strong resurgence of black for late day and evening.

—Long slinky gowns with hoods.

—Continued dominance of the slim silhouette but with a smattering of the dramatic full skirts showing.

—Lots of neckline and shoulder exposure.

SEW SIMPLE

The Bare Neckline Is Saved By The Adaptable 'Dickey'

By EUNICE FARMER

So many jackets and dresses have lapels right now, and they are usually buttoned so low, I never know how to fill in the neckline. One can always wear the proverbial pearls, but sometimes the neckline is cut too low for these. Any answers? Mrs. M.M.E.

Dear Mrs. M.MBE.:

A clever filler for this type of neckline can pep up your garment and serve as a delightful contrast and accessory. Make your dickey out of a fairly large square, completely finished on all edges. Make several, one out of lace, one in a contrasting color, one braid-trimmed, or whatever. Position it while you have your garment on, and mark the correct place for the snaps you will place on each end of the dickey at the top. You will place the other half of your snap inside your garment, and in a mere matter of seconds, you can change the entire look.

Tailor Trix Winner: I finally found a way to anchor (inconspicuously) the belt to the skirt or dress. Just attach a small piece of Velcro to the back of the belt, and another small piece to the right side of your garment, at the spot where you want the belt to stay. Peace of mind!

Mrs. Grady Dalton, Richlands, Va., is this week's winner of our tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Necessity is sure the mother of invention. My daughter broke her arm early this spring, just before some of the most important dances of the year. At first we all cried for her, then decided to make the best of the situation and in a joking mood, decided to slipcover her cast. We made matching covers that fitted perfectly, closing them with a zipper for an extra close fit.

She was the center of attention, and what could have been a sad catastrophe turned out to be the highlight of the dance. This has proved to me again that instead of giving up, there is always an answer. Your Faithful Reader.

There is no sewing center within miles of our little town, so I am using my limited amount of knowledge to help some young girls learn to sew. I understand two of them are left-handed. Can I possibly teach them Mrs. R. T.

Dear Mrs. R. T.:

I have often had left-handed women in my classes and find out that they are used to adapting methods for themselves in this right-handed world. I always have them sit directly across from me and then they can see the correct position for holding fabric, etc. From here on out they are on their own. I'm so proud of you for taking your time for this project (I know the girls are excited about it) and I only hope the other mothers remember to give you a big vote of thanks.

Your Sewing Glossary: Backstitch. When I use this term, I refer to back tacking or double machine stitching for the last few stitches to keep the stitch from pulling out. This is usually not necessary at the beginning and end of a seam if your tension has been adjusted perfectly.

Do you girls have questions about sewing? If you do, send for my booklet which answers 20 of your questions. To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "Twenty Questions" to Sew Simple in care of the Independent-Journal.

Special Tax Seminars Slated For Women

Mrs. Edmond Gross has organized a series of four tax seminars for women that will start Thursday.

The other three seminars of the series "Who Pays the Bill?" will be on July 2, 9 and 16. All will be held at 10 a.m. in the Mill Valley School District offices.

Speakers and topics will be: Mill Valley School District Supt. G. R. McConnell, "School Finances"; Mill Valley City Manager Bert Balmer, "City Finances"; County Auditor and Comptroller Michael Mitchell, "County Finances"; and Carroll A. Snyker, executive secretary of the Marin Development Foundation, "Additional Sources of Revenue."

Explaining her reasons for organizing the series, Mrs. Gross, who is a member of the Mill Valley district school board, said, "So many civic organizations are doing units on planning for growth in the county that I felt there was a need for study of tax structure, since you need to understand it to make intelligent decisions as to what growth is desired.

"Since the county is growing so rapidly, there are decisions to be made by individuals as to whether they want the property tax to remain the base for revenue or if not that, what. It cannot be done on emotion.

Such great interest has been shown in the series that enrollment is almost full already. We want to keep the group small so that questions may be handled after each presentation."

The Topless Bathing Suit— Eyeful, Awful Or Unlawful?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's all according to the viewpoint whether the nudest thing in women's swimwear fashion—that topless wonder—is quite an eyeful, just awful, or unlawful.

Opinions differed sharply this week as Rudi Gernreich's daring design for feminine sunworshippers was bared for buyers across the country after a bracing introduction here a few days earlier.

SOME BUYERS stocked it to keep up with the trend toward over-all suntans, an Associated Press survey showed. Others snubbed it because the mode did not suit the moral mood of their clientele, or the town.

Lord & Taylor's in New York canceled an order because the style is "not in taste conforming to standards of the store."

"That's indecent exposure. Why, you'd go to jail," exclaimed a spokesman for Filenes in Boston.

"THEY'LL NEVER sell in Seattle" said a spokesman for Bon Marche in that city.

"I can't see this fashion becoming popular in Michigan for several years—if ever," declared Robert Emmet of Jacobson Shops, Detroit.

"It isn't in keeping with our store image," contended a Jordan Marsh spokesman in Florida.

In many cases the customer who does find a seller will be handled surreptitiously, as though she were buying bootleg booze.

"We will have them for people who ask, but we have absolutely no plans to display them," said Katherine Robinson of B. Altman's in New York.

MOST BUYERS not buying the not-quite-a-bikini, such as one at Carson Pirrie & Scott in Chicago, sniffed at it as "unimportant fashion-wise—a gimmick."

A San Francisco buyer has already taken the plunge in one. And actress Pamela Tiffin said she'd go along with the prevailing mood," like at spots on the Riviera.

"But I'd never wear such a revealing suit if I were the only woman in the party so exposed. That would be just plain exhibitionism."

THE PREVAILING mood of the Seattle Police Department is to arrest immediately the wearer of such a garment on a public beach. A test case would have to decide the lawfulness of such a suit on public beaches in Milwaukee, said County Judge F. Ryan Duffy Jr.

In Chicago a police official referred the question to the Parks Department, claiming "We do not set standards for beach attire." But a Parks Department spokesman passed the buck back by claiming, "We only insist the suits be clean. The morals of the situation are for the police."

SOME BUYERS who bypassed the bare bosom bathing suit believe the timing is not right for it, but the day will come, they say, recalling early reaction to the bikini.

EYEFUL, AWFUL or Unlawful? There's a wide difference of national opinion about the topless bathing suit introduced in New York by designer Rudi Gernreich. An Associated Press survey showed some buyers are stocking it while others are snubbing it. Most police departments reported they would arrest any woman wearing it in public. (AP Wirephoto)

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

The Editor's Notebook

Journeying Journalist Sees More Litter, And San Rafael

BARSTOW—Litterbug season is in full swing. And this must be an especially favorable year for the species. U.S. Highway 466 between Mojave and Barstow must be the world's most littered.

Once you cross the line into Arizona —where there are large litterbug warning signs along the highway—the situation improves.

Since Needles is a main entry point for touring motorists visiting California, our state surely must give most of them a bad first impression.

We have a litterbug problem of considerable proportions in Marin County. We can be thankful it apparently is less than that along U.S. 466.

It may even be that a little bit of litter takes away more from the beauty of the scene on the desert than among Marin's rolling, tree-studded hills.

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. — Judging from license numbers, there are more Californians in Grand Canyon National Park than there are representatives from any other state. But Californians, while they have a plurality, do not constitute a majority. You get the feeling that if you wanted to make a project of it, you could spot license numbers from all 50 states of the Union within a day or two here.

Unlike Californians who flock to their own national parks, like Yosemite and Mt. Lassen, Arizonans seemingly avoid the Grand Canyon—unless they have some favorite spot where they congregate unbeknown to the rest of us. Arizona license plates are among the rarest on Grand Canyon National Park highways.

Goldwater stickers?

The senator is running for reelection to the U.S. Senate from Arizona at the same time he is pursuing the Republican Presidential nomination, but Goldwater bumper strips and campaign signs are conspicuous by their absence all across northern Arizona. And if he has any opposition, there is no visible sign of it hereabout.

Most incongruous bumper sticker observed thus far: SALINGER, on a car with an Indiana license plate.

VIEWING THE MIGHTY Grand Canyon for the first time seems to produce totally different reactions in different people.

"Doesn't it make you feel small and insignificant when you realize how little you are compared to the totality of time and space?" asks one.

"How can anyone accept the Biblical account of the miraculous creation of the earth when here in the geology of the Grand Canyon is all the evidence anyone should need to accept the plain fact of evolution?" asks another.

"How can anyone NOT believe in God when he beholds such wonders of God's creation as this?" asks still another.

The agnostic college professor who ordinarily scoffed at religion probably came closest to reality when he observed, "It is all just too complex to have happened by accident: there just had to be some grand plan and design by some kind of omnipotent being.

GALLUP, N.M.—There is something impersonal about traffic accident reports. They tend to be statistical. Even seeing demolished automobiles leaves one less than "shook." Within minutes, or less, one can become as careless as ever in driving habits.

But when you arrive on the scene of an accident while the injured are still lying helpless in the roadway, lying in the hot desert sun miles from the nearest town and not knowing when medical assistance will arrive, it is a sobering experience. It makes one a far more cautious driver.

And when you see a family whose worldly possessions have just been smashed to bits in a trailer accident, it is sobering, too.

But the people who drive along Arizona and New Mexico highways are different from those in the news recently in metropolitan centers.

Remember the recent news reports of dying persons pleading for help in public places while hundreds of people hurried by, ignoring the pleas?

Not so in the Southwest desert. On a lonely road almost every motorist stops to render what aid he can when it is needed, after the fashion of the Good Samaritan of Christ's teachings.

After seeing a series of stories reporting gross unconcern of people for their fellow man, it is reassuring to witness some striking instances of the opposite.

SAN RAFAEL, N.M. — It could be said, until recently, that this town had everything in common with its California namesake in Marin County — perhaps 100 or more years ago.

That is, San Rafael, N.M., of the 1960s had considerable in common with San Rafael, Calif., of 1860 and before.

St. Rafael's Church was the central edifice in both towns. Outside of a handful of handsome residences belonging to the grandees, the structures of both towns were in large part just falling-down adobes.

Some shack like structures were inhabited by barnyard animals and some were inhabited by people. One couldn't tell the difference. In fact, some of the structures appeared to be inhabited both by barnyard animals and people.

More Spanish than English was spoken on the street and in the homes.

And there wasn't a paved street in either San Rafael.

But, alas, progress has come to San Rafael, N.M.; the main street has been surfaced. The old place will just never seem the same again.

TAOS, N.M.—If you think you have grown too sophisticated and too mature to experience any patriotic emotion, perhaps you would be surprised should you pay a visit to this tiny town in the mountains of northern New Mexico.

Go to the tiny town square where the flag pole at first glance looks too big for the square, and the town.

Note that the flag isn't hauled down at sunset as American custom and tradition requires.

The flag flies perpetually to commemorate the valiant action of Taos' most famous citizen, Kit Carson. In 1861 when the Confederates threatened Taos, Carson and a Capt. Smith Simpson nailed Old Glory to a pole in the plaza and pledged their lives, if necessary, to keep it there. It stayed.

And before you leave the 300-year-old plaza, take a long look at the bronze memorial plaque there, honoring the 32 young Taos men, members of the heroic New Mexico Coast Artillery unit which distinguished itself on Bataan, who gave their lives for our nation.

Note that only two of the names are what might be called Anglo-Saxon. All the rest are Latin-American names borne proudly by Taos Americans of Indian and Mexican and Spanish lineage.

DEFAMATORY LETTERS ON THE RISE

Writers of "poison pen" letters are more active than ever, according to a report made to the American Society of Criminology.

These anonymous authors who seek to destroy reputations, careers and families are usually persons who have failed to live up to their own expectations.

Consequently, the report stated, they ascribe their failures to a widespread plot against themselves. They derive satisfaction from attempting to destroy persons of stature in the community, the investigators added.

Envy takes many forms, from "poison pen" letters to uncharitable or downright slanderous gossip. In such ways, reputations, careers and entire families suffer from the nameless threat of suspicion without the possibility of self-defense.

Rather than just avoid harmful statements, go out of your way to give credit where it is due. This is one way to assure that when you stand before the just Judge, your own sentence will be a favorable one.

"We therefore ought to support such as these, that we may be fellow-workers for the truth." (3 John 1:8)

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Wanted: Definition Of 'Far Leftist'

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In answer to the remarks made by reader Sam Hanzel in his recent letter to the editor (June 17), I would like to point out that those Americans on "the right" (we sometimes use the term Constitutionalists), or to quote Hanzel, the "Far-Righter," are not fascists, Nazis, or in favor of dictators. We are only sick and tired of the give-away and sell-out programs exercised by the U. S. Government during most of the past 30 years. We believe only in the principles upon which this great nation was built, and we defy those persons who would change and undermine these principles. . . .

Just for laughs, I would like to hear his definition of a "Far-Lefter"; also his version of the Leftist Manifesto!

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Your editorial on Wed., June 17, describing the "Ten Commandments" of safe driving was timely and appropriate. Vacation time is here and our highways and thoroughfares will be more congested than ever before. At least most of the commuters like myself, continually tell one another that the traffic problem worsens by the day.

I would like to add an extremely important to one of the 10 commandments of safe driving you listed. Number 6 states, "keep your distance; allow at least a car length between you and the car ahead. Make it two lengths at night." If you followed this advice and were traveling 60 miles an hour, you would very likely be California's next fatality if the car ahead stopped all at once. This item should be amended to say: Keep your distance; allow at least a car length between you and the car ahead for every 10 miles an hour you are traveling. In simple terms, if you are traveling 50 miles an hour you should be at least 5 car lengths behind the car ahead. Twice this distance at night would be appropriate.

We in the Pacific Telephone Company are extremely conscious and very proud of our safety record on or off the job. The above rule is one that we are taught, believe in and practice.

"Build me a son, O Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak, and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid; one who will be proud and unbending in honest defeat, and humble and gentle in victory.

"Build me a son whose wishes will not take the place of deeds; a son who will know Thee—and that to know himself is the foundation stone of knowledge.

"Lead him, I pray, not in the path of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenge. Here let him learn to stand up in the storm; here let him learn compassion for those who fail.

"Build me a son whose heart will be clear, whose goal will be high, a son who will master himself before he seek to master other men, and one who will reach into the future, yet never forget the past.

"And after all these things are his, add, I pray, enough of a sense of humor, so that he may always be serious, yet never take to himself too seriously. Give him humility, so that he may always remember the simplicity of true greatness, the open mind of true wisdom, and the meekness of true strength.

"Then I, his father, will dare to whisper, 'I have not lived in vain.'—Amen."

Supreme Court Makes Historic Decision On Reapportionment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has now taken three historic steps in two years in a field it had timidly avoided: voting in the states. The third time was Monday.

The court got biting criticism for all three decisions, and high praise. The country quickly adjusted to the first two and reacted quickly to the third. This is an ABC on what happened and why, starting with the federal government as background:

IN CONGRESS each state, under the Constitution, is entitled to two senators. Size or population doesn't count. It is different with the House of Representatives. There each state is entitled to at least one representative.

But any more than that must be based on its population in relation to the population of the other states, since the total number of representatives for the 50 states is limited now to 435.

Every ten years, after a census, the number of representatives is reapportioned among the states according to their population. So, while each state has two senators, the number of representatives varies by state populations.

THE SAME GENERAL idea operated in the states, or was supposed to, in picking members of their legislatures.

Forty state constitutions required rearranging their legislative districts every ten years or so to provide voters equal representations. But for generations some state legislatures ignored their constitutions. Examples: Tennessee and Alabama.

At the beginning of the century, rural areas dominated states legislatures. Then populations shifted from farms to cities, but there was no redistricting. Rural areas were still in control and would do nothing to lose it.

An example of what this could mean: 10,000 people in one rural legislative district would have one state representative, while 100,000 city people would also have only one. This meant one farmer's vote was equal to ten city votes.

THIS MEANT UNEQUAL representation. But the rural-controlled legislatures would not change it. Appeals were made to the Supreme Court. It ducked, saying it didn't want to get involved in politics. It said this last in 1946.

In 1962, in a Tennessee case, the court reversed itself and said federal courts would step in if necessary to order redistricting to provide citizens of a state more equal representation in legislatures.

It laid down a rule which has guided it since: One voter, one vote. Then on Feb. 17, 1964, the court went further, stepped into state arrangements for election of representatives to Congress from states' congressional districts.

MONDAY THE THIRD step came when the court said state senators must also be elected on a population basis instead of by some old, fixed rule of state senatorial districts that gave unequal representation.

How could the court say state senators must represent, more or less, equal numbers of a state's population when on the federal level each state is entitled to two U. S. senators, no matter how big or small the population?

Chief Justice Earl Warren, in a lucid opinion, reasoned this way:

The federal system—two senators, regardless of population—was never intended to be a model for the states. It was a compromise between large and small states when the country was created.

BIG STATES, with more representatives, would have a larger voice in the House; but every state was to have two senators.

But, Warren said, whereas each state is a so-called sovereign entity, the various subdivisions of a state can't be so considered. They are just subordinate instruments created by and within a state to carry out its functions.

He said the idea of equal representation in a state legislature for citizens would not mean much if it was equal in the House but unequal in the Senate, since then one house could cancel out what the other wanted.

AGAINST EACH OTHER

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. William W. Scranton were members of the 87th U. S. Congress—Goldwater in the Senate, Scranton in the House.

The scorekeepers report that Goldwater and Scranton, both Republicans, voted against each other more often than not. The liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) rates all members of Congress each year on the basis of their votes on what ADA considers to be liberal proposals.

FOR THE FIRST session of the 87th Congress (President John F. Kennedy's first Congress, 1961), ADA rated Scranton as voting right 40 per cent of the time. Goldwater scored zero with the ADA.

Americans for Constitutional Action (ACA), is conservative and sponsored by such persons as former President Herbert Hoover; former New Jersey Gov. Charles Edison, who was one of FDR's Navy secretaries; former Rep. Howard Buffett of Nebraska; retired Adm. Eben Moreell, USN, and Loyd Wright, Los Angeles, past president of the American Bar Assn.

ACA ALSO RATES members of Congress on the basis of their voting records. One rating is called the consistency index, which ACA defines as representing votes "for safeguarding the God-given dignity of the individual, and promoting sound economic growth by strengthening constitutional government; and votes against group morality and a socialized economy through centralization of government power."

Goldwater's consistency index score was 100 per cent. Scranton's was 52 per cent. ACA also rated House members in such general areas as sound money, competitive markets and such. Scranton's scores were as follows in support of:

Sound money, 58 per cent; private competitive markets, 67 per cent; local self-government, 54 per cent; private ownership, 75 per cent, and individual liberty, 100 per cent.

SCRANTON'S VOTING record seems well to fit the pattern of the soft-boiled Republican sought by the Eisenhower wing of the party to lead a stop-Goldwater crusade. Scranton is safe in the Eisenhower political area. Hostile for him will be the areas of hard-boiled Republicanism where, if the conservatives are not a majority within the party, they may be numerous, well organized, enthusiastic and determined.

State Sweepstakes Tickets 'Sell Like Hotcakes' In East

New Hampshire Lottery Is Big Attraction To Outsiders

By ALLAN PRIAULX

CONCORD, N. H. (UPI)—Sweepstakes tickets are selling like hotcakes in New Hampshire, the only state in this century to authorize a sweepstakes. But hardly any Yankees are buying them.

More than 1.3 million dollars worth of tickets have been sold so far at $3 apiece to persons willing to gamble on prizes which range up to $100,000.

Most of the buyers appear to come from surrounding states and a few cars from as far as Oregon are seen parked in front of the state's green front liquor stores, the only place besides race tracks they are sold.

"We haven't even started yet," sweeps director Edward J. Powers claimed. "Wait until the summer tourists pour into this state, we'll at least triple our business."

The first tickets will be drawn from plastic drums in Salem, N. H., at Rockingham Park sometime in July.

There will be 332 tickets out of the first one million dollars' worth drawn, and each person holding a ticket that is drawn will win some sort of prize, from a few hundred dollars to a top of $100,000. The series will be repeated for each one million dollars' worth.

(California voters will decide at the Nov. 3 general election whether this state should have a lottery—operated by a private corporation dispensing tickets through vending machines, but controlled by the state.)

New Hampshire authorized a sweepstakes to raise money for education in the state, which has no sales or income tax.

The proposal passed the legislature last year after heated debate and was approved by Democratic Gov. John W. King. The voters gave it a thumping endorsement last March in a referendum.

Here's how it will work:

Each of the 332 three-year-old horses entered in the race will be assigned a ticket in a small rotating drum.

A larger drum will hold 333,333 tickets representing one million dollars.

A horse ticket and a sweeps ticket will be matched two-by-two. Tickets on horses that actually run the race and the ones that win will be worth the most after the Sept. 12 race.

The name and address of the ticket buyer or beneficiary are on all tickets, which the store keeps, and buyers are given only an "acknowledgement" which they are not required to present to collect. Prizes will be paid on the basis of names and addresses.

The tickets are sold through electronic devices much like a receipt-giving machine in a retail store.

The tickets go into the machine and are picked up each evening by an armored car and stored in a bank vault in Manchester.

Most of the tickets are being sold at liquor stores on the state's borders.

Keene, in southwestern New Hampshire, caters to chance takers within an easy drive from New York state, Massachusetts, Vermont and even further away.

Gus Bailey, manager of the Keene store, said, "We started with one machine and now have five. We sell more tickets than any other store. Most of the buyers seem to be coming from Connecticut and New Jersey."

Powers, a former head of the FBI office in Boston who is making $20,000 a year directing the sweepstakes, feels thousands more tickets could be sold if he could advertise out of state.

The sweepstakes commission is dancing a minuet around the strict federal gambling laws which hamper the lottery.

New Hampshire's two senators and two congressmen co-sponsored bills in Washington to exempt the state's program from a steep 10 per cent federal excise gambling tax.

The state is believed to be the only one in the nation paying a direct tax to the federal government and the lawmakers feel the sweeps should be exempt, just as pari-mutuel tracks and other programs are.

Going by the book, the Internal Revenue Service has even ruled that the clerks selling the tickets must have $50 federal gambling tax stamps. Both taxes are paid under protest.

Radio stations fear adverse action from the Federal Communications Commission because of a ruling that they must limit their broadcasting to "legitimate news" and air nothing of "a promotional nature."

Newspapers face a similar ruling from the Post Office Department, which issues them their important second-class mailing permits.

The federal criminal code sets a fine of $1,000 and up to two years in jail for persons convicted of using the mails to transport lottery items. Whether sweepstakes "acknowledgements" or requests from friends in another state for tickets fall into this category is moot.

"We're just creating a state of law dodgers with this program," said attorney Robert Eaton of Manchester. He represents a would-be "sweepstakes ticket agency" that has never gone into business. He would like to operate like a theater ticket agency does.

Sweeps commission chairman Howell Shepard takes a dim view of such agencies and there are reports they may soon be outlawed by the commission.

"A fear that "big-time gamblers and racketeers" would move into the Granite State was expressed by opponents of the sweeps.

"We've had no complaints or reports whatsoever as of the present time," said State Police Criminal Division Head Capt. John Conti. "But we're keeping our ears open."

Because the tickets are sold only in the liquor stores and at Rockingham Park and Hinsdale race tracks, the sweeps commission is itching to liberalize the laws.

It has urged hotels and motels to provide a "ticket buying service" for their guests the same way they provide a laundry service.

The law will be in for some amending at the 1965 legislature.

The original sponsor, Rep. Lawrence M. Pickett of Keene, says he will propose amendments to allow tickets to be sold at the New Hampshire exhibit of the World's Fair in New York and at the state's turnpike toll plazas and even state parks.

Highway commissioner John Morton is cool to the idea of machines at his toll plazas, claiming his men "have enough to do already just taking quarters. Anyway, where would we put all the cars?"

LOTTERY LINEUP—Buyers—mostly from out of state—flock to the electronic ticket dispensing machines offered in New Hampshire, site of this century's first legal lottery in this nation. California voters will decide on the Nov. 3 election ballot whether their state will have a similar lottery operation. (UPI Telephoto)

Crisis-Plagued Nasser Now Enjoying Sweet Successes

Nehru's Death, Nikita's Visit Bolster Egypt

By RAY MOSELEY

CAIRO (UPI)—Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser is a man who seems bedeviled by crises even when he isn't creating them. But suddenly, for Nasser, everything is coming up roses.

In the past six months he has enjoyed a string of almost unparalleled successes, beginning with the Arab summit in January and ending with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's visit in May and a unity agreement with Iraq.

As he approaches his 12th anniversary in power next month, Nasser's prestige in the Arab world is higher than at any time since the peak year of 1956, the year of the Suez war.

And with the death of India's Nehru he may emerge more than ever as a pivotal figure leading the developing nations in a policy of noncommitment to either East or West.

But at the same time, hostility toward Nasser seems to be mounting in Britain. Some of the old questions about him remain and new ones have come along.

Whose side is he really on? Does he really intend to make war on Israel? Are the German scientists working for him secretly concocting an atomic bomb?

Not so long ago, questions about Nasser had lost some of their urgency, for his star seemed to be a falling one.

The widely trumpeted union with Syria collapsed ignominiously in 1961. The Yemen revolution in which he committed his troops was not going well. Last year's attempt at a union of Egypt, Syria and Iraq fell flat.

But then Nasser produced a master stroke, the Arab summit. Almost literally overnight, he composed his differences with kings and monarchs whose regimes he had vilified for years.

He got all Arabs to agree on working together to try to counter Israel's plans for diverting the Jordan River, and in the meantime to cease attacking one another.

Since then the Arabs have done nothing concrete to counter the he is becoming more friendly toward Russia and more hostile toward the West.

To the extent that he feels the Soviet Union is more sympathetic to his aims, this is true. But most observers think he is just as determined as ever to keep communism out of the Middle East and to avoid entanglement in East-West conflicts.

His relations with the West have been exacerbated by his growing quarrel with the British and his employment of German scientists.

Nasser is just as determined to rid the Arab world of all vestiges of British colonialism as he is a big new Soviet loan and the agreement laying the basis for unity with Iraq.

Behind The News

Nasser topped all this off by leaking a report that he plans to orbit an earth satellite this summer.

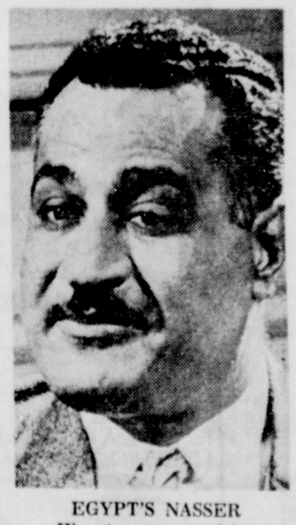
Three more summit conferences — African, Arab and nonaligned—are to be held in the United Arab Republic this year, further attesting to Nasser's prestige abroad.

Some of Nasser's recent moves have created an impression that Israeli water diversion, but the psychological effect of the summit was enormous.

There followed Nasser's call to Libya to rid itself of Western military bases, a new constitution assuring to his own people civil liberties and greater participation in government, a trip to Yemen to incite rebels in the South Arabian Federation to step up their warfare against the British, the Khrushchev visit that produced to keep the Communists out, but at the same time he scoffs at British charges that his real aim is to grab their oil interests.

As for the moral issues involved in employing some Germans with a Nazi past to develop weapons for potential use against Israel, Nasser views this somewhat differently from the average Westerner.

His quarrel is not with the Jewish religion, but rather with the state of Israel, and to him there is a profound difference.



EGYPT'S NASSER
His star seems rising

Will he some day make war on Israel? At the Arab summit, he restrained the firebrands who wanted to declare war, but this may have been only because he felt the time wasn't ripe. Some diplomats in Cairo are convinced he will never attack Israel, however.

The question remains the most vital, and the most difficult to answer, of the many that surround Egypt's enigmatic leader.

Millions Packing For Annual Vacation Journeys

By JORIE LUELOFF

A. P. Newsfeatures Writer

It's vacation time again and more Americans than ever are planning trips. In 1963 a record 2.5 million Americans traveled overseas. Original forecasts for 1964 predicted an increase of 10 per cent, but that figure has already been raised to 15 per cent. It may have to be jumped again.

The major domestic attraction will be the World's Fair which, one travel agency reports, is expected to double the number of tourists headed for New York this summer. By mid-June, New York hotels were overwhelmed by people seeking space, and were turning away even those with "reservations."

Hawaii is another popular attraction. Approximately 371,540 westbound travelers arrived in Honolulu in 1963, and even more are expected this year. American Express reports that sales of its package tours to the islands are already treble what they were a year ago.

The national parks will continue to be popular, along with the Western dude ranch country, New England and Cape Cod, and the lakes of Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Unprecedented numbers of Americans are going overseas. According to the U. S. Passport Agency, which received 1,026,027 applications in 1963, this year's first quarter applications were 15 per cent above last year's. Some officials predict second quarter applications will show an increase of 20 per cent.

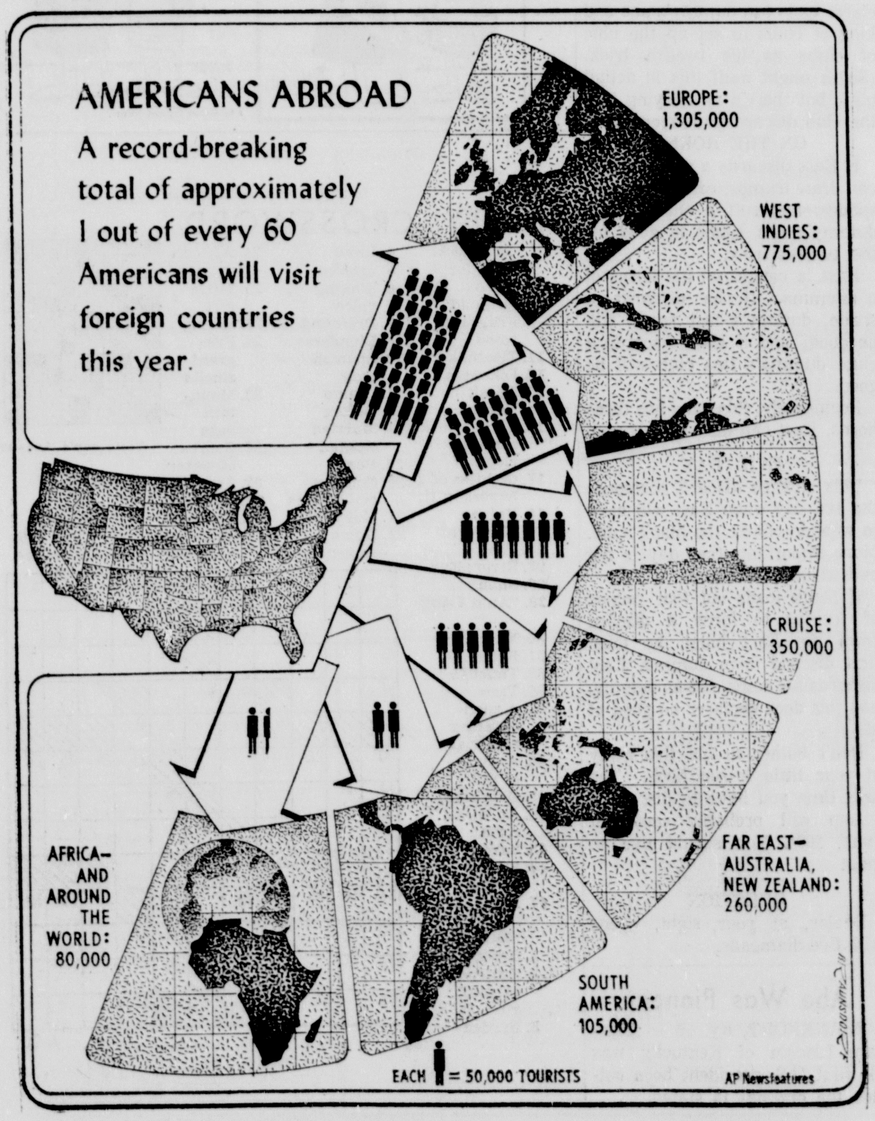
Several unique attractions are luring Americans overseas this year — the Olympic Games in Tokyo this fall, the Swiss National Exposition in Lausanne and Britain's Shakespeare Festival. The 20th anniversary of the Normandy invasion is drawing many World War II veterans and their families to the battlefields. Pope Paul VI's trip to the Holy Land has aroused wide interest in that area.

Canada, which played host to 9,800,000 U. S. visitors last year, will continue to receive the largest number of American tourists. But Europe expects more Americans than ever — an estimated 1,305,000. Bookings on one popular tour to Europe are already seven times greater this year than they were for all of 1963.

Rome, Paris, Vienna and London will continue to attract the most visitors, with Athens, Madrid, Copenhagen and Lisbon running next.

Tourist traffic to the Pacific and Far East is increasing more rapidly than that of any other region. This area expects approximately 260,000 travelers from the United States in 1964. Japan, Hong Kong and Tahiti will be the most popular.

Many Americans — especially "repeaters" who have been abroad at least once — are searching for unusual, exotic places to visit. This will swell the tourist flow to Africa and the Middle East. One California travel agency is even investigating the possibilities of offering tours to Outer Mongolia.



REAPPORTIONMENT

North's Water Safeguards Might Be First Casualties

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Worried Northern California water leaders today speculated that California's venerable county of origin act would be one of the first casualties of a state Senate reapportionment, if ever carried out along the lines of the Supreme Court decision ordering senates to reapportion on a population basis.

A companion law, the watershed protection act, probably would fall by the wayside at the same time, they fear.

The county of origin act, passed in 1963, prohibits the assignment of state-held water rights which would take away water needed for the future development of the county in which the water originates.

Similarly, the watershed protection act, passed in 1933, prohibits diversion of water from its watershed in amounts greater than those needed in the watershed. It was adopted as a part of the original Central Valley Project Act.

Southern California interests long have sought to repeal or change the county of origin act, but the present make-up of the Senate has kept it on the books.

This law became an issue of the 1959 legislative fight which ended with passage of the Burns-Porter Act to authorize financing for the state water project.

It also was a central issue in an abortive attempt through initiative measure to reapportion the Senate in 1960.

Southern California water leaders held that they should not financially underwrite a state water project if the north could recapture the water under terms of the county of origin act.

Northern California water people say that the act is far from a dead issue, even though the state water project is under way.

They point out that the state water rights applications, under which the act comes into play, cover all of the water remaining on the North Coast, or about 20 million acre-feet.

Victory Comes On Civil Rights

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Victory came for civil rights forces in the Senate this week.

The strongest civil rights legislation since reconstruction times was expected to gain House approval soon. There were hopes it would be the law of the land by July 4.

The longest Southern Senate filibuster in history was ended by a 73-27 vote. Federal regulations to end discrimination in voting, schools, employment, unions, public places, public accommodations and dispensing of federal funds were finally in sight.

But the rights bill victory left Republicans with a knotty problem. Its front-running candidate for the presidential nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, was among only six GOP senators who voted against it.

Rep. Melvin Laird (Wis.) chairman of the GOP National Convention Platform Drafting Committee immediately underlined the graveness of the situation by asserting the platform should endorse the rights bill.

Working hard to derail the Goldwater bandwagon on the rights bill issue, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton sped from state to state, calling on the Arizona senator to repudiate his stand as opposed to the "traditional Republican philosophy of equal opportunity for all."

The Pennsylvanian had some help in his campaign from New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller who pulled out of the campaign and declared he was backing Scranton for the nomination.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 20, the 172nd day of 1964 with 194 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn and Mars.

On this day in history:

In 1782, Congress adopted the Great Seal of the United States.

In 1837, the Victorian Age began as Princess Victoria learned her uncle, the king, had died and she was the new British ruler.

In 1898, the United States seized Guam, in the Spanish American War.

In 1931, President Herbert Hoover proclaimed a one-year international moratorium on all payments of government debts.

A thought for the day—English writer Jonathan Swift said: "How vain an attempt it is for a man to endeavor doing himself honor among those who are out of all degree of equality of comparison with him."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Lightface type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Unusual Discard Presents Problem In Bridge Game

Some bridge hands present situations that constantly occur in play. Others are unlikely to occur even if you played twelve hours a day for the rest of your life.

Perhaps the unusual hand is more entertaining than instructive, but men (and bridge players) do not live by bread alone.

Opening lead — ◇ A

West leads the ace of diamonds and continues with the queen. Dummy ruffs, and East discards whatever he doesn't need.

EXAMPLE

For example? Name a card that East doesn't need.

Well, at that, maybe East has a problem. When this hand was played in the 1964 Intercollegiate Championships very few college students solved the problem correctly.

If East discards a club, declarer can cash dummy's ace and king of clubs to set up the nine of clubs as his twelfth trick. (South might muff this in actual play, but there's no denying that the club discard is dangerous.)

ON THE HORNS

If East discards a spade, South can draw trumps, cash three high spades, and ruff a spade. Then dummy's last spade is good for the twelfth trick.

East is caught on the horns of a dilemma. If he discards a spade, dummy's last spade will be good; and if East discards a club, dummy's last club will be good.

Fortunately, this hand has three horns. East can discard a trump.

EVIL DAY

This strange discard postpones the evil day when East will have to weaken one of the black suits. More important, that day is not evil when it does come.

If South leads out four rounds of trumps to force a discard from the East hand, he must first discard from dummy. East discards the same suit as dummy, and this does declarer no good at all.

Don't bother to file this away in your little lesson book. The next time you have to discard a trump will probably occur in June, 2064. You should live so long!

QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, opens with five diamonds.

You hold:
♠ A Q 10 8 4
♦ K
♣ A K 9

What do you say?

Answer: Double.

You will be delighted if your partner bids, but this is a penalty double. You cannot afford to let the dealer get away scot-free with his shutout bid.

WROUGHT WITH TRADING STAMPS — Father Matthew J. Killion, foreground, Roman Catholic chaplain for Eastern Correctional Institution at Napanoch, N.Y., looks at nearly completed chapel of "St. Jude Within The Walls," with Warden Charles L. McKendrick. (AP Wirephoto)

Trading Stamps Build Chapel Within Walls Of Grim Prison

NAPANOCH, N.Y. (UPI) —A prison chapel that trading stamps built was dedicated here today—"a symbol of love surrounded by walls of distrust."

The beautiful chapel of brick and rough-hewn wood stands within the prison yard in stark contrast to the concrete and steel walls that form its background.

"It's a dream come true," smiled Father Matthew J. Killion, Roman Catholic priest at the eastern correctional institution.

"Even the iron bars and machine gun-carrying guards on the walls above seem a little less severe with this place of God here," Father Killion said.

The strikingly handsome chapel-in-the-round mostly has been financed with 45,000 books of trading stamps that were received from all parts of the world.

"We still need some 20,000 books of stamps, but people have been good to us, and I'm certain they'll send us the rest," he said.

Father Killion, who has been ministering to the needs of about 500 Catholic prisoners at this maximum security prison for the past seven years, conceived his unique trading stamp method of financing two years ago when he discovered the state could supply no funds for construction of a chapel.

"We had to use the gymnasium," he said, pointing to a grim brick building with bars covering its windows.

Workers, including prison inmates and civilian workers, are busy putting the last finishing touches on the chapel, which cost about $175,000, including furnishings.

"It would have cost a lot more, except for the wonderful work that some of the inmates have done," Father Killion said.

He said that many inmates and former inmates had "certainly profited spiritually and emotionally" from working on the project.

Several of them who are "doing wonderfully" since their release have helped the priest locate used building supplies in New York City and aided him in transporting them to this lower Catskill Mountain prison.

"They'll be back Saturday for the dedication," smiled the priest.

Federal Agents Catch Suspect In San Rafael

A Sacramento man wanted on a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for abortion was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in San Rafael yesterday.

Henry F. Jackson, 41, was picked up at the home of a friend at 1545 Fourth Street. He was held at the Marin County jail for San Francisco police.

Jackson was indicted in April by the San Francisco County Grand Jury on two counts of abortion. A complaint charging unlawful flight was filed by the FBI when police received information he had left the state.

Inspector Walter H. Kracke of San Francisco police said the unlawful flight charge would be dropped, since Jackson was picked up in this area.

Jackson was indicted on charges of performing abortions on two women in San Francisco motels, Kracke said.

Case Continued

The case of Farrell Eugene Kissinger, 38, former manager of the Black Market in San Anselmo, charged with embezzlement, was continued in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to Monday at 1:30 p.m. for plea. He is charged with embezzling $16,000 worth of merchandise and money from the store.

Dam Disaster Cause

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A special State Board of Inquiry yesterday blamed the Baldwin Hills dam disaster on earth movements at the site caused mainly by nearby land sinkage. The earthfill dam holding water in the big hilltop reservoir in Los Angeles burst last December. The flood took five lives and caused damage estimated at 15 to 50 million dollars.

He was placed on probation for three years, and as a condition of probation, must serve 90 days in jail, with credit for 30 days already served. He is already on probation for a failure to provide charge.

The scholarshop is named in honor of the Tamalpais High nurse who died last November and who served the school as nurse five years. She was the wife of Ray Kemper, history teacher at Redwood High School.

Money for the award is from donations from faculties at both Redwood and Tamalpais high schools plus a donation from the Tamalpais High School senior class. It is the first time the scholarship has been awarded.

Miss Jenkins, 17 in August, will study both at Berkeley and San Francisco campuses. She has achieved an outstanding academic record at school, her best work being in science, according to Charles C. Crawford, vice principal.

She is a swimmer and has worked as an aquatic aide for the swim team. She also works as a baby sitter and has done some truck farming during summers.

There's Talk Of Pennant For Phillies — Already

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Gene Mauch has his heart dead set on three ideals.

He wants to dance at his daughter's wedding, get into a World Series at least once in his life and go to heaven when he dies.

Those are the only three things he says he wants and the Philadelphia Phillies appear on their way toward making at least one of their manager's dreams come true.

They have won seven of their last eight games and ballooned their National League lead to 2½ games, their biggest margin yet, by sweeping the New York Mets, 2-1 and 7-2, in last night's twi-night doubleheader.

When and if the boyish-looking, 38-year-old Mauch does get into a World Series with his Phils, he should, and probably will, extend a heartfelt vote of thanks to his general manager, John Quinn, for helping to make it all possible.

Two players Quinn obtained in separate deals with the Chicago White Sox ● outfielder John Callison and first baseman Roy Sievers — played prominent roles in last night's two victories over the Mets, who now have lost eight in a row.

Callison's eighth home run of the season with one on in the sixth inning proved to be the Phils' margin of victory, although it represented only a small part of his night's work.

Callison also had a triple, a single, a walk and a stolen base in the opener as well as a pair of singles in the nightcap. Sievers accounted for three runs in the finale with a two-run homer and a double.

Art Mahaffey recorded his seventh win in the first game although Ed Roebuck had to come in from the bullpen and get the last man out. Larry Bearnarth (4-4) was the loser after relieving starter Carl Willey with the score tied in the sixth inning. Ray Culp held the Mets to five hits in the nightcap for his third triumph.

The St. Louis Cardinals ran their winning streak to four games with a 3-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants, while the Cincinnati Reds crushed the Los Angeles Dodgers, 11-1, and the Houston Colts came from behind to defeat the Milwaukee Braves, 9-7. Rain washed out the game between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs.

Johnny Edwards led the Cincinnati attack with four RBI on a double and two singles. Vada Pinson also had three hits, including a home run, while Leo Cardenas homered for the Reds.

Jim Maloney struck out 11 Dodgers and gave up five hits before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh.

The Colts, down 5-3, scored six runs in the eighth inning and held on against the Braves. Joe Gaines, acquired from Baltimore last Monday, ignited the outburst with a home run. Lee Maye and Frank Bolling homered for Milwaukee.

DEAD HEAT—West Point's Bill Straub (left) and the Air Force's Jim Murphy broke the tape in a dead heat at yesterday's NCAA 5,000-meter championship at Eugene, Ore.
(AP Wirephoto)

National Open 'Tiger' Loses Its Teeth

WASHINGTON (AP)—The heat made a toothless tiger out of the tiger course that was supposed to devour the world's best golfers in the National Open Golf Championship, Robert Trent Jones said today.

"The rough dried out and played much easier than anybody had expected," added the architect who planted the perils in the Congressional Country Club course where the game's elite struggled this weekend.

Jones admitted he was surprised a the record-tying 64 by young Tommy Jacobs and two sub-par rounds by Arnold Palmer, which put them 1-2 in the fight going into today's final two rounds.

"The fact that Palmer came out of the rough seven times to get his par on the second round shows how much the course had lost its bite," Jones said.

"If the rough had been watered, or if it hadn't dried out so much, this would have cost him a stroke on most holes," Jones added.

Jones cited the fine shot Jacobs made out of the rough on the third to get his par in his record round and said this also was proof that the big, massive layout, called an elephant's cemetery by some disgruntled competitors, was not as formidable as feared.

"Still, we have had only three rounds under par and only Jacobs and Palmer are under par for 36 holes," the architect said. "I think Congressional proved itself a tough test despite the easing of the rough."

Jones said Jacobs' round might have been made on any course in the world.

"He was playing superbly, particularly on his approaches. He was putting the ball on the green and sinking his putts," Jones said.

He said Jacobs' putting, including a 60-footer for a birdie at the 18th, proved that the hump-backed greens were not unfairly severe.

As remarkable as was Jacobs' record-tying round, Jones said he thought Ben Hogan's 67 on the final round at Oakland Hills in Birmingham, Mich. in 1951 — one of two sub-par rounds played during the entire tournament — was probably better. The late Clayton Heafner had the other — a 69.

"Oakland Hills, with a par 70, was a tougher course. Hogan's round was phenomenal."

PHOTOS CONFIRM NCAA DEAD HEAT

EUGENE (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. rules committee jury confirmed last last night that Army's Bill Straub and Air Force's Jim Murphy ran a dead heat in the 5,000 meter race.

Field judges first called it a dead heat, then decided a study of photographs should be made.

Negatives indicated it was a tie and the jury confirmed this after studying a sequence of six photographs covering the finish and the final two yards of the race.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — One of the Army's newest second lieutenants didn't really know what he could do until the final yards of a race that produced a national collegiate meet record.

"I was just trying to place third," gasped an exhausted Bill Straub after he sprawled into the tape yesterday. The judges called it a dead heat with Air Force's Jim Murphy in the 5,000 meter race at the annual NCAA meet.

The time was 14:12.3, compared to the previous record of 14:19.8 by Al Lawrence of Houston in 1960.

The American record is 13:38. by Bob Schul of Miami of Ohio, established June 5.

Murphy took over the lead with little more than a mile remaining in a race that covers three miles, 189 yards.

Straub closed in on the final stretch hoping for third place.

FINAL EFFORT

"Then I saw someone coming up to my side, and I made that final effort," Straub recounted later. The man coming up was Jim Keefe of Central Connecticut, who finished third. Straub lunged into the tape with Murphy, tripping on Murphy's leg at the line.

Straub fell to the ground. He needed help off the track, his legs rubbery and his eyes glazed.

"I'm usually sick after a fast last quarter, but not like this," he said ruefully. Straub has just completed his West Point course. Murphy is a sophomore at the Air Force Academy.

There were two other meet records cracked. Gayle Hopkins of Arizona sailed 26-9¼ in the broad jump, compared to 26-7 by Greg Bell of Indiana in 1957, and two sprinters cut a tenth of a second off a 100-meter dash mark of 10.2 seconds.

They were Trenton Jackson of Illinois and Harry Jerome of Oregon. The time equals the American and collegiate records.

West Coast teams were in a dominent position as the final day opened.

Oregon, which won the national title in 1962, the only other time this meet was held on this track, took 16 men into the finals. San Jose, leading Oregon 16-4 in points so far, has seven men left.

Fresno State and California retained slim chances at the title.

Tommy Jacobs' 64 Called Impossible

WASHINGTON (AP)—Where was Tommy Jacobs at 3 a.m.?

Sleeping soundly? Or pacing the floor?

Dimpled Tommy tore up the Congressional Country Club course — the vaunted monster — with a record-tying 64 yesterday and found himself one stroke in front of Arnold Palmer, the golfing colossus, at the halfway point of the U.S. Open.

That earned Jacobs, a handsome 29-year-old with wavy brown hair and a shy smile, a head-to-head playing spot with Palmer down the pressure cooker stretch of 36 final holes today.

Jacobs had 136, four under par. Palmer, bidding for the grand slam of golf, had 137. He wants this title so bad he would disturb anybody's sleep.

Also, this open is the 50th anniversary of the first one that Walter Hagen—the Palmer of his day—won in 1914, and had watchers wondering if Jacobs might suffer the fate of some of Hagen opponents.

There was the night, for example, when Hagen was still entertaining his admirers at 3 a.m., and was reminded that his opponent of the day was safely in bed.

"Yeah," the Haig agreed, "but he ain't sleeping."

If young Jacobs managed to nod off, visions of his dream round would settle his nerves. Shooting 64 in the U.S. Open—it has only been done once before—is a lot different than shooting 64 in the weekly whatchamacallit open.

"It would have been a 58 on any other golf course," said veteran E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, who played with Jacobs. "I still don't believe it. This course can not be played in 64.

"I played more rounds with Byron Nelson, Sam Snead and Ben Hogan than any man alive," the wandering Arkansan continued, "and they never shot a round like this."

Jacobs capped the round with a putt that traveled a measured 60 feet, 5 inches into the cup for a birdie at the 18th. Harrison had some comment about that, too.

"Don't tell me that putt was only 60 feet," he said. "I'd like to buy some real estate from the man who measured it."

Jacobs had 72 the first round, while Palmer added a 69 to his opening 68. So far there have been four rounds under par 70—and Palmer has two of them.

No other player was under par 140 for the 7,053-yard course, longest ever used in the Open.

Unlike Last Season, Giants Have Hit In Clutch In Late Innings

Jack Hanley

ST. LOUIS — Last year the Giants lost 17 ball games in which they were leading in the eighth and ninth innings. This year they already have won 13 games in the final frames or extra innings. Lucky? Perhaps, but let the record speak for itself.

April 17—Won the first of what was to become seven straight extra inning victories — a bases-loaded 10th inning walk by Ron Taylor to Chuck Hiller for a 5-4 win over the Cardinals.

April 20 — Beat Cincinnati 5-2 when Bob Skinner dropped Tom Haller's routine fly with the bases - loaded, two-out in the eighth and the score tied 2-2.

May 2—Duke Snider's No. 1 homer as a Giant came against his old Dodger teammates and tied it 4-4 in the ninth after which Jay Alou and Hiller won it in the 12th with a bunt single, stolen base and solid single.

May 4—Alou and Hiller again. This time in the 12th—a single and double for a 3-2 win over Houston.

May 7—Trailing 6-5 going into the eighth against the Cubs, Alou, Willie Mays and Haller made the final count 7-6 on three singles.

May 16 — Mays' ninth inning homer tied it 4-4 and Jim Davenport's two-run homer in the 15th beat the Mets 6-4.

May 28—Curt Simmons had the Giants shutout 1-0 going into the eighth. Mays' two-run homer prevented what would have been Simmons' second cardinal whitewash of the Giants this season. Result, 2-1 Giant win.

May 31—Who will ever forget this one? Davenport's two-out triple in the 23rd and Del Crandall's pinch double beat the Mets 8-6.

June 5 — Orlando Cepeda's eighth inning homer tied Phillies 3-3. Harvey Kuenn's two-out pinch single in the 11th knocked in the winning run and Hiller's following triple sealed it 5-3.

June 6—More heroics in Connie Mack Stadium. Haller's two-run ninth inning homer broke 2-2 deadlock for 4-2 win.

June 7—A three-game series sweep over the Phillies with another come-from-behind dramatic finish. Jim Bunning, facing the Giants for first time, had them shutout 3-0 going into the ninth. Cepeda doubled, Snider homered and then Jim Ray Hart homered to tie it 3-3. A bases-loaded walk to Haller by Chris Short in the 10th gave the Giants their seventh consecutive extra-inning win, 4-3.

June 15—Hart's ninth inning single scored Willie McCovey with the winning 6-5 run over Cincinnati.

June 16 — McCovey's two-run pinch homer in ninth beat Joe Nuxhall and the Reds 3-2.

Maybe Giant batting averages are an eye sore this season but, as the record shows, Alvin Dark's warriors sure are doing some fancy clutch hitting.

Reds Put Temple On Active Roster

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds announced last night that an old favorite with Reds' fans, second baseman Johnny Temple, has been placed back on the active list.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said that Temple, 34, who had been one of the Reds' four coaches, will at first be used as a pinch hitter. He has been taking batting practice for a week.

Bucs Cut Pitcher, Recall Another

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates optioned pitcher Don Cardwell to Columbus of the International League today and recalled pitcher Tom Sisk from the same club. Cardwell has been bothered by a sore arm and has not pitched this season for Pittsburgh.

Dads Club Lands Four On All-Star Lineup

Four players from the Dads Club, undisputed champs of the San Rafael National Little League minor division, have been selected on the league's All-Star team that will meet the American League All-Stars July 25.

They are Steven Friedman, Pat Parnow, Chic Watt and John Anderson. They led the Dads Club to an 11-1 championship record this season.

Oh, Oh! Giants Are Going Wrong Way

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants, who came to town in a struggle for first place, today found themselves in a fight to stay out of fourth.

The Giants lost another one to the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-1, last night to fall 2½ games back of Philadelphia. Meanwhile, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati have climbed to within two games of the slumping Giants.

Fire-balling Bob Gibson and young Ron Herbel both pitched well last night, but the difference again proved to be Julian Javier, the Cards' second baseman.

The usually light-hitting pivot man, who had a big night against Juan Marichal Thursday, continued his sturdy thumping by drilling a one-on homer in the seventh yesterday to decide the issue.

Jim Davenport's solo homer had put the Giants ahead in the second inning, but in the sixth, Davenport came up with the bases loaded and flied out.

A single by Willie McCovey and double by Orlando Cepeda with two down had preceded an intentional pass to Tom Haller to get at Davenport. The strategy worked.

The Cards knotted the count in the sixth when Gibson walked, was advanced to second by Curt Flood, and scored on Lou Brock's double. That blow glanced off left fielder McCovey's glove and the wall, but Gibson suffered a muscle spasm in his leg as he neared home and just beat the peg home.

Herbel left in the seventh and Ken MacKenzie and Bob Shaw finished up in a flashy style, but it was too late for the Giants.

St. Louis outhit San Francisco, 7-6 as the recently-acquired Brock and Jose Pagan led their respective teams with two hits apiece.

Title Worth New Contract For Hannum

Alex Hannum, whose coaching helped raise the San Francisco Warriors from last place to the Western Division championship of the National Basketball Assn. last season, signed a two-year contract with the Warriors yesterday.

Club officials did not disclose terms of the contract but said Hannum's salary was increased.

Hannum said he was offered a five-year contract but turned it down in favor of the two-year pact because "I think the Warriors are going to be successful and I may be in a position to

YANKS, TWINS DOMINATE A.L. ALL-STAR TEAM

NEW YORK (AP) — The Minnesota Twins and New York Yankees dominate the American League All-Star team's starting line-up announced today for the July 7 game with the National League at Shea Stadium. Mickey Mantle of the Yanks was the only repeater from 1963 in the voting of 281 players, coaches and managers.

The bold new A.L. line-up included Twins Bob Allison at first base, Harmon Killebrew in left field and rookie Tony Oliva in right field. The Yanks were Elston Howard as catcher, Bobby Richardson at second base and Mickey Mantle in center.

Jim Fregosi, the fine young Los Angeles player who is hitting near .350, won the shortstop job and Brooks Robinson of Baltimore was picked for third base.

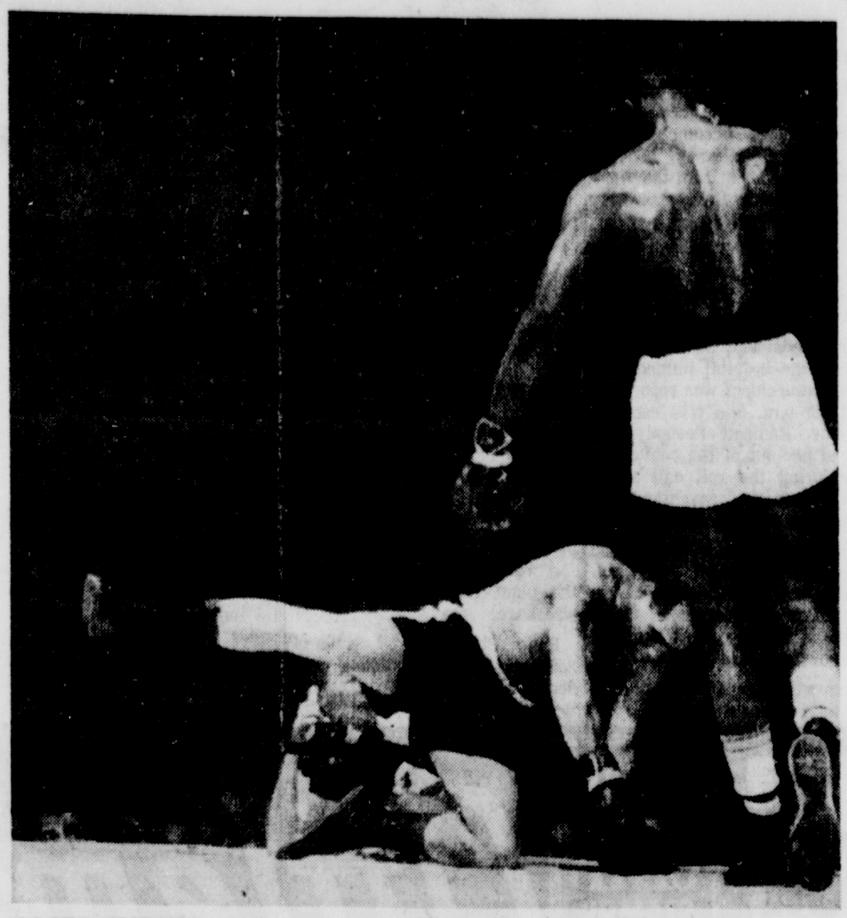
Soundly Beaten Olson To Get Rematch With Persol

S.F. Fight Set; Bobo In Tears



OOOPS! SLIPSIES—Bobo Olson slips on canvas during third round of 10-round, nationally-televised light heavyweight fight with Johnny Persol last night at Madison Square Garden. Persol won decision, upsetting Olson's comeback plans. (AP Wirephoto)

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobo Olson's face and words told the story of his decision defeat to Johnny Persol more eloquently than anything else.

His head was bowed and there were tears in his eyes as he sat on a table in his dressing room last night.

"I couldn't get off," he said. "I wanted to win so badly here. I wanted to look real good. I trained so hard I must have left it all in the gym. I was sluggish, real sluggish. I just couldn't put those combinations together. I'd like another shot at him."

It looks like he'll get the return crack at Persol in San Francisco's Kezar Pavilion, Aug. 28. San Francisco promoter Art Benjamin got a verbal okay from both fighters and assurance of the television time from Madison Square Garden officials.

The defeat, by majority decision, was a costly loss for the 35-year-old former middleweight champion from San Francisco. He had an unbeaten streak of eight and a victory would have iced a title fight in October with light-heavyweight champion Willie Pastrano.

This was Olson's first fight in New York since he was knocked out by light-heavyweight king Archie Moore in the third round nine years ago. And, like he said, he wanted to win so very much.

DOMINATES ACTION

Only Persol, a fast 24-year-old New Yorker with ambitions of his own, wouldn't let him get off. The broadshouldered, narrow-waisted Persol dominated the action with a stinging left jab to the head and thumping rights to the ribs and stomach. He also scored solidly with hooks, right crosses and uppercuts.

The crowd of about 2,500 for the televised 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden was pro-Olson. They cheered him every chance they could but the moments of elation were rare. Only every now and then did Bobo click with his cuffing blows.

The two judges voted for Persol. Artie Aidala had it 9-1 in rounds. Nick Gamboli had it 6-4. Referee Mark Conn called it a draw, giving each five rounds and five points. The fans, who had applauded the judges' cards, booed the announcement of Conn's vote. The Associated Press scorecard had it 9-1 for Persol. Most of the ringside writers had Persol a winner by lop-sided margins.

Knocked out in his last start by Eddie Cotton, Persol now has a 12-1 record. He is ranked eighth. Olson, the No. 3 contender, has a 87-14-2 record. Olson had the edge in weights, 176 pounds to 174. In the betting it was an even money affair.

ORGANIZED BY TELEPHONE

Tiburon's 'Instant' Team

Without much time to prepare for the Marin Semi-Pro Baseball League, the newly-organized Tiburon Sox team has been thrown into the lion's den, being matched with powerful Billings-Hutchison tomorrow in the Tiburoner's first game.

Manager Norm Kreuter wanted to get up a team, so he grabbed the telephone and started dialing. The result was a 13-man roster that is hoped to be strengthened to 18, the league limit, later this month.

The Sox will open play tomorrow against the Builders at San Rafael's Albert Park, 1:30 p.m.

Starting hurlers for the Sox will be Skip Rush and Jim Gibbs. Rush is a hard-throwing right-hander who was named to the All-Marin Athletic League team in 1963 from San Rafael High. Gibbs attends The Citadel where he is the top southpaw on the team there.

HEAD FIREMAN

Rounding out the pitching staff is John Walker who pitched this past season for College of Marin. According to manager Kreuter, Walker will be the "head fireman" and also will be used in the infield.

The catching duties will be shared by Kreuter and coach Bob Melbern. Melbern played his prep days at Tamalpais High and won himself All-League honors his senior year. "So there is no problem for Bob to play the role as coach, infielder and catcher," says Kreuter.

Pat Dundas, also an ex-Tamalpais baseballer, will hold down the first base position. Pat will be the senior of the infield and comes back to the baseball wars after four years absence.

TOP HITTER

Second baseman will be Mike Wyman who should be one of the top hitters in the league, according to his manager.

Mike Walsh, doing his studies at Stanford University, is the Tiburon third sacker. Kreuter says "he'll be one of the most feared clutch men."

Khris Kimball, a shortstop, played his high school ball at Washington High in San Francisco and was All-City there in 1958. He will miss the first two weeks of the season for Tiburon because of summer military service. "His return will be welcomed," says Kreuter.

CANNON ARM

Steve Joses, an outfielder, will also be a latecomer to the team because of military service. Joses had a brief stint of pro ball with the New York Mets organization last year. "He has a cannon arm, can run like a deer, and can hit a ton," says Kreuter.

In the starting left field berth for Tiburon will be Mike Bresnan. "He's probably the finest left fielder in the league and carries a mighty big bat," Kreuter said. He's now a senior at Fresno State College.

In the centerfield spaces will be Chip Collins, a speedster who has completed the past season of ball for College of Marin. He may drive pitchers crazy with his base stealing ability.

Denny Becker will also see quite a bit of action in the Tiburon outfield, said Kreuter, adding that Denny can handle glove and bat equally well.

ROUNDED CLUB

"I figure on having a good season, considering that we have a late start," said Kreuter. "We will have a good rounded club."

The Tiburon club will be playing the teams originally scheduled for byes in the five-team schedule. All the Tiburon games will be on the road, which will prove a hardship to the young club.

Ted Connolly Hangs 'Em Up

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ted Connolly, 32, offensive guard for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League, announced his retirement yesterday.

Connolly, a nine-year veteran of pro football, was traded to the Browns by the San Francisco 49ers before the start of last season after a lengthy salary dispute with the 49ers.

He said he will work full-time with an industrial real estate firm.

DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage (1-0) will battle the Novak Builders (0-1) on the Novato High School baseball field at 1:30 p.m.; the San Anselmo Merchants (0-1) will host the Mill Valley Merchants (0-0) on the Memorial Field diamond at 1:30, and Billings-Hutchison (1-0) will initiate the Tiburon entry on San Rafael's Albert Park diamond, also at 1:30 p.m.

It will also be the first league game for the Merchants of Mill Valley who drew the opening round bye last Sunday. Senator Kennedy's Back Broken

JFK's Brother Survives Air Crash Fatal For Two

SENATOR KENNEDY
En route to convention

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), younger brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, was hospitalized with a broken back today after a private plane crashed last night in an apple orchard taking two lives.

Dr. Thomas F. Corriden, who supervised immediate treatment of the senator at Cooley-Dickenson Hospital, said the 32-year-old Kennedy suffered several fractured vertebrae. But he has the use of his arms and legs, and is listed in "fair condition."

Less seriously injured in the crash were Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.) and his wife. Both were reported in good condition at the hospital.

Killed in the crash was the pilot of the twin engine plane, Edwin T. Zimny, 48, of Lawrence. Edward Moss, 41, Kennedy's administrative aide, died in the hospital of injuries suffered in the accident.

The plane was approaching Barnes Airport, in Wesfield, shortly after 11 o'clock. The control tower at Barnes said it was in contact with the pilot and that he reported no difficulty. It had rained heavily earlier and was drizzly and foggy at the time.

It was believed that as Zimny approched the airport his plane may have hit the tops of trees in the fog. There was no fire.

The first witness, Robert Schauer said he heard the crash and then saw the wrecked plane 200 yards up a hillside in an apple orchard. He dashed up the hill to help.

Today's hospital bulletin said:

"Senator Kennedy is in fair condition. He has improved considerably since his admission and is resting comfortably.

"X-rays showed fractures of the fifth and sixth ribs on the left side, fractures of the second, third and fourth lumbar vertebrae the lower back and fractures of the second, third and fourth transverse processes, which give the spine support.

"There are no head injuries and no neurological complications. He has complete use of legs and arms. He has cuts on both legs and the right hand."

Kennedy was to have been endorsed by acclamation at the Massachusetts State Democratic Convention for the U. S. Senate seat once held by his brother.

The accident occurred less than seven months after President Kennedy was killed by an assassin's bullets in Dallas.

The word of the crash shocked the cheerful convention which adjourned, talking of postponing the rest of the sessions for at least one week.

The senators had left Washington after voting "yes" for the civil rights bill enacted by the Senate. Bayth had been scheduled to deliver the convention's keynote address.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and a sister, Mrs. Stephen Smith, left the compound for the hospital as soon as they received word of the mishap. After visiting with their brother they went to bed at the hospital.

The Air Force said a presidential plane carrying three Washington doctors, accompanied by an assistant attorney general, were turned back from the Westover Air Force Base at nearby Chicopee by ground fog.

A spokesman said the plane was rerouted to Steward, N.Y., AFB. He said the doctors would be taken by auto to Northampton.

Kennedy's wife Joan had hurried to the hospital immediately after the accident was reported—at 11:20 p.m. She was escorted by Gov. Endicott Peabody who rushed her out of the convention hall during the roll call which brought him the convention's endorsement for renomination.

Within minutes after the roll the shocked convention recessed. Cheers rang out when the chairman, John E. Powers of South Boston, announced that Kennedy had survived the crash.

One witness said the plane's cockpit was ripped open "like it had been cut with a can opener."

A revolving red beacon atop the plane led searchers to the wreckage.

Police Chief Robert Leveille of Southampton said he found Kennedy lying on the ground. Leveille asked Kennedy how he felt. The senator replied "bad."

A witness said Kennedy was able to talk but asked that he not be moved.

President Lyndon B. Johnson telephoned the hospital from San Francisco to inquire about the condition of the senators.

Plane crashes took the lives of two Kennedy family members. Joseph P. Jr., a Navy flier, was killed during World War II. A sister, Kathleen, died shortly after the war in another crash in Europe.

A HOUSE DESIGNED ESPECIALLY FOR WOMEN

Here you will find all the nice little things you would have designed for yourself . . .

A "CONTROL CENTER" KITCHEN.
. . . imagine being able to look out to the street, supervise children in the family room, oversee table setting in the dining room, watch the play in the back yard and have a look-see down the hall to bath and children's bedrooms . . . without ever stopping whatever you may be doing in the kitchen.

A "MUD ROOM."
It's the greatest home-cleaning invention since the vacuum sweeper. Kids (and their parents, too) enter the home through this convenient passage and drop off dirty clothes, muddy shoes, etc. It's a great work saver for Mom.

38-FOOT ENTERTAINING AREA.
when you want it. The entire living area of the house opens up by means of a folding wall. Or fold the wall into place and you have a formal living/dining room on one side with the children's family room enclosed to the rear.

CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS.
WE'VE GOT 'EM. A hall closet for guests; a giant linen closet; and a real "Fibber McGee" for vacuums, brooms, extra table leaves, etc. There are built-in cabinets over the laundry area, too.

THE LORD AND LADY
of this home have a most thoughtfully designed bathroom, with a private area for M'lady's primping, and a completely separated shower for "singing" by M'Lord.

FLOOR TO CEILING HEIGHT
windows and doors. Elegant . . . and wonderful for ventilation, light, etc.

4-"CAR" GARAGE!
We did it. This 21x24-foot garage actually holds four cars. We have a photo in our sales office, reprinted from the I-J, to prove it. Maybe you don't have 4 cars . . . but imagine the storage space! !

MASTER TV . . .
It's wonderful. From a master TV antenna on a nearby hill, you will receive 5 Bay Area stations "like you were next door." Also fabulous FM reception. It's all wired into the house underground. No forest of antennas to block the view of surrounding tree-covered hills. Utilities are underground, too.

WE'VE KEPT THE BEST FOR LAST

This beautiful 4-bedroom home designed by architect Gordon A. Phillips, A.I.A., is priced from

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

A certain amount of dreaming at night is necessary. Experimental studies in laboratories show that when dreaming is prevented, the individual becomes irritable and anxious and his appetite increases. It is as though a pressure builds up during these nights of deprivation. Release occurs when the number and duration of dreams are not interrupted during the next few nights.

Dreaming is a normal constituent of sleep. It takes up 20 per cent of the total sleep time. ut most of us do not remember them unless awakened immediately at the end of the dream. Recall also is less likely to occur when they take place during deep sleep.

DREAM RESEARCH is done in special laboratories where electrodes are taped to the head of a volunteer to record brain waves (electroencephalogram). Similar wires are taped just above and alongside each eye to record eye movements. The ytpical dream usually is preceded and followed by fidgeting, especially of the hands and feet.

The sleeper relaxes during the spisode except for rayid eye movements (REM). Ocular activity actually is the most signifihelps to measure the depth of sleep.

DREAMING IS NOT initiated by emotions or by outside stimuli. On the other hand, if a bell is used to awaken the sleeper several times at night, he is likely to dream about ringing door bells or talking on the telephone.

A dream is a hallucination in that the sleeping individual actually believes the experience is real. The daydream is different; the person knows it is make-believe. Hypnogogic hallucinations may occur in the period between sleeping and waking. The individual may feel as though he were drifting into space or hearing strange voices.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TORN MUSCLE

R. W. writes: What can you tell me about shin splints?

REPLY

Athletes who run on hard surfaces early in the season may suffer from pain due to a torn muscle. This is brought on by the trauma of constant jarring. Heat, massage, taping, and rest encourage healing and reattachment of the muscle to the shin bone.

EAR INFECTION

J. K. writes: Does an inner ear infection leave any bad after effects?

REPLY

Complete recovery occurs in most instances, especially when the infection is treated properly. Neglect leads to deafness, mastoiditis, or chronic otitis media (persistent drainage).

PLANTAR WARTS

H. W. A. writes: Are plantar warts on the soles catching?

REPLY

Some are, especially the softer mother-daughter type, which is caused by a virus. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on plantar warts.

NATURAL IN SOME

P. B. writes: Could over-activity, including ballet dancing, bring on the period in a 9-year-old girl?

REPLY

No. The menses start in some at this age.

LUNG CONGESTION

P. A. J. writes: What are the symptoms of fluid in the lungs?

REPLY

Shortness of breath, cough, or pain in the chest (pleurisy).

Today's Health Hint — Poorly chosen sunglasses may cause headache.

Girl Rescued From Bottom Of Swim Pool

A 12-year-old San Francisco boy attending a birthday party at the Douglas Allen home in Ross yesterday afternoon jumped into the swimming pool there and rescued a 10-year-old girl who panicked when she dove into the water too deeply.

Credited with saving the life of Susan Seale, daughter of Maj. and Mrs. Bryan Seale of San Francisco, were Bobby McMahon and his father, G. R. McMahon, who lifted the girl from the pool and revived her.

Six youngsters were attending a birthday party for McMahon's 10-year-old daughter at the Allen home at 101 Upper Toyon Drive.

Susan told her father from a bed in Letterman Hospital in San Francisco yesterday that she plunged more deeply into the pool than she expected and panicked. The McMahon boy spotted her at the bottom of the pool and brought her to the surface at the side of the pool.

Asst. Chief Charles Pinza of the Ross Fire Department applied an inhalator to the girl who was conscious when he arrived at the home at 2:56 p.m. A Marin Ambulance rushed her to Marin General Hospital where she was examined before being transferred to Letterman Hospital.

The youngster was in satisfactory condition today at the hospital.

Robber Thwarted In Attempt To Loot Register

An attempted robbery at the Wiltshire Motel, 3725 Redwood Highway, Santa Venetia, was foiled last night when Helen M. Wiltshire surprised the suspect at work and he fled.

According to the Marin County Sheriff's Office, Mrs. Wiltshire was at the rear of the motel office watching television at 9:45 p.m. when she thought she heard a door open.

She investigated and saw a man stooped over the cash drawer, and said "What are you doing?" He ran and she tried to stop him, but he escaped through a rear door.

Deputies said the suspect wearing a black knitted sweater had tried to pry open the cash drawer with a knife. Mrs. Wiltshire reported later that her wallet containing 30 cents and personal papers was missing.

The girl's mother rushed the unconscious child to the neighbor's home; she was breathing normally by the time the firemen arrived at 6 p.m.

Auto Whirls Through Air, Two Injured

Two passengers were injured when a car swerved off San Geronimo-Nicasio Road, 1.8 miles north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, sheared off a telephone pole and overturned at 2:15 a.m. today.

John Morrison, 31, of 18-A San Quentin Village, suffered bruises of the right shoulder, and Sue Parker, 22, of Marin Stables, Fairfax, suffered cuts of the forehead and multiple bruises of the left thigh and elbow. Both were treated at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

The driver, Dee Wayne Croft, 24, of Box 144, San Geronimo, was examined at the hospital and sent home with no apparent injuries.

Croft told California Highway Patrol officers he was rounding a curve when the car struck a bank on the west side of the road, veered to the east side and skidded into the telephone pole.

The CHP reported that the car rolled end-over-end after hitting the pole and stopped in a ditch 60 feet off the east side of the road.

Cows Are Worse Than Goats

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Cows often suffer from a stomach ailment known to farmers as "hardware disease." Veterinarians, who know that cows eat fence wire, nails, nuts, bolts, pieces of wood and tin cans, call the disease "traumatic gastritis."

The hardware punctures the lining of the second of the cow's four stomachs. It can be fatal.

Dr. Donald D. Delahanty, professor at the New York State College of Veterinary Medicine at Cornell University, says the cause of the trouble is lack of "oral discrimination in cattle that leads to their swallowing foreign bodies that would normally be rejected by other animals."

Dr. Delahanty has operated on 600 cows for hardware disease. He says about 60 per cent of his cases have been caused by lengths of wire and adds that about the only thing he has not found in a cow's stomach is broken glass.

Belvedere Yacht Goes To Oakland Drydock

The Locura, its sinking still unsolved, was floated from San Francisco Yacht Harbor in Belvedere to drydock in Oakland last night.

The luxury yacht sank Thursday evening for the second time in a year. It is owned by John A. D. Lawson of 172 Beach Road, Belvedere.

Mill Valley Man Is Injured As Car Hit In Rear

A 56-year-old Mill Valley man suffered minor injuries when his car struck the rear of a car stopped at Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Elm Avenue, Kentfield, at 3:30 p.m. yesterday.

The driver, James A. Mundell of 613½ Spring Street, suffered multiple bruises and scrapes of the scalp, both elbows and forehead and a bruised right ankle.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mundell's car struck the rear of a car driven by Kristie L. Gubka, 17, of 71 Woodside Lane, Mill Valley, which was stopped for traffic.

Mundell was treated at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

Rec District Calls Election On Boundaries

Approval of realignment of jagged western boundaries of the Strawberry Recreation and Parks District will be sought from a majority of the voters in the proposed enlarged district at the Nov. 3 general election.

The district board agreed last night to put the plan on the November ballot after holding a public hearing on the proposal at Strawberry Point School, according to Mrs. Patricia M. Gowen, secretary.

Twenty-three written protests and three oral protsts against the annexation were presented to the board, she said.

The proposed new boundary will be set on the center of Tiburon Boulevard east to Highway 101 and along the highway south to Saucelito Canal. It will replace the present irregular western boundary which omits several homes and apartment houses in the Alto area.

The Marin County Local Agency Formation Commission approved the annexation April 9.

Correct Date

Pianist John Browning, who appeared as a soloist with the San Francisco Symphony recently, will open the Marin Music Chest's summer concert series June 28 in Forest Meadows at Dominican College in San Rafael, not June 21 as was reported in the Independent-Journal June 10.

Best Wishes Sent

BOSTON (AP) — The Republican state convention voted unanimously today to send a telegram expressing its best wishes for a speedy recovery to Democratic Sen. Edward M. Kennedy injured last night in a plane crash.

College Sued By Insurance Claims Man

John B. Lewellen, an insurance adjuster, yesterday filed a $43,000 breach of contract suit against the College of Marin in San Francisco Superior Court.

Among defendants named in the suit are the district board, its insurance carrier, Leroy F. Wilkie, and three insurance companies.

Lewellen, through his attorney, William R. Bremer, asks for $18,000 for breach of contract and $25,000 in damages for "loss of reputation, humiliation, embarrassment, and loss of other business advantages."

The suit contends that the district board entered into a contract with Lewellen on Jan. 14 and he was discharged on Jan. 24, getting no pay for his services.

He was to have settled claims for the district against insurance companies arising out of the loss of the old gymnasium which was destroyed by fire.

Miss Of Millionth May Mean Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Accuracy requirements for space rocketry are growing more exact every year, according to the National Bureau of Standards, which develops standards for checking instruments used by industry to measure space vehicle parts.

Space requirements are now calling for steel gage blocks to be accurate to one 10-millionth of an inch, reports "Steelways Magazine," published by the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The magazine says an error of one-millionth of an inch in the bore hole of a missile-guiding gyroscope could result in the vehicle missing the moon by thousands of miles.

The Man On The Telephone

Listening Is The Job Of Al Douglas

A TYPICAL WORKING POSE of Al Douglas sees him at the KCBS radio mike, puffing on his nightly cigar and listening pensively to the remarks of a listener who has called in to air his opinions on the San Francisco station's nightly program, "Viewpoint." Since it is not Al's role to express his own views on the program, he sometimes substitutes a few deep puffs on the cigar for a retort.

It would be safe to say that few Marinites spend more time on the telephone than Al Douglas of Larkspur.

And much of the time, he's talking to fellow Marin residents.

Douglas is radio station KCBS's newest personality. And phone chatter is more than a habit with him. It's his job.

AS HOST OF the KCBS show, "Viewpoint," he talks with as many as 30 callers in an evening from throughout Northern California and beyond. And he seems to have built up an especially large following in Marin, from where many of his callers hail.

But Al's talents are by no means limited to either phone chatter or "Viewpoint." He has a strange combination of interests, and it is exactly this that makes him so popular. A veteran sportscaster, inquiring scholar, one-time basketball player, ex-teacher and lover of classical music, he is quickly building a reputation in the Bay Area for being an imaginative and versatile broadcaster.

Versalitility is perhaps the key word for describing the Douglas personality. And he applies his talents equally well to Olympic games or Olympian scholars.

THERE ARE times when his rather unorthodox range of interests will cause a few raised eyebrows, however.

As an example, he cites an incident that occurred when he was sports director at Time-Life Broadcast's WOOD and WOOD-TV in Grand Rapids, Mich.

"They sent me to Rome to report the Olympics," recalls Al with a chuckle. "I did the reporting all right, but I spent all my free time at the opera. I had a terrible time explaining it. People just couldn't understand why a sports director would want to go to the opera."

AS A TEACHER, Douglas developed a talent for both stimulating and satisfying curiosity—a technique which gives him special appeal in radio, where imagination plays an important role in the listener's response. And the same relentlessly inquisitive nature which led him to seek and obtain a Master's Degree at the University of Chicago, is now focused on keeping up with current events and drawing out the interesting and exciting in any story or interview. This he complements with a colorful narrative style and versatile imagination.

With such an approach, Al can make anything interesting—and does.

"I'll interview anybody," says Al.

And to prove it he is currently trying to talk the KCBS custodian into taking some time off from his evening chores to come into the studio for an interview. The best proof of his interviewing ability is the Peabody Award . . . which he never talks about.

THE FACT that Al Douglas won a Peabody Award for a public affairs program during the time when his principal job was sports director is testimony, not only to his talent as an imaginative interviewer, but also to his versatility. While he was making his name—then Al Ackerman—a password among sports enthusiasts in the Midwest as sports director at WOOD and WOOD-TV and play-by-play announcer for the statewide network broadcasts of the Michigan State University football and basketball games, he still found the time and the interest to make his "Unit 8" Sunday afternoon broadcast the best live weekly public affairs television program in the United States for 1961.

Al's involvement in sports dates back to his army days when he played basketball for a U.S. infantry team.

But his early experience does not stop at sports.

AFTER THE army he enrolled in the University of Chicago and didn't leave until he had earned a Master's Degree. He spent the first five years after college teaching in a depressed area of Chicago.

Douglas' break into radio was motivated by, as he puts it, " . . . a fantastic desire to get out of teaching."

He wrote to Chicago's station WMAQ, inquiring about openings in the field. "They sent me up to WHTC in Holland, Mich., for a two-week trial as vacation relief; I never went back to Chicago."

Al joined KCBS last summer, changing his professional name from Ackerman to Douglas to avoid being confused with the KCBS "Music 'til Dawn" host, Ken Ackerman.

DOUGLAS BEGINS each week day evening on KCBS at 6:35 with "Words and Music," a half hour program of recorded music.

From 7:30 to 8:20 he takes to the phones for "Viewpoint," the program praised by Newsweek Magazine as an "electronic soapbox." On "Viewpoint" he invites the radio audience to call in and express opinions on such topics as "What's happening to our mortality?" or, "The new trend in our relations with Russia." He ends his day with the news and sports at 11 p.m.

SO ADEPT at interviewing that he has won a Peabody Award doing it, Al Douglas finds the work especially enjoyable when he is conversing with the likes of Angie Dickensen, the pert female lead in the movie, "Captain Newman."

But Al applies his own particular brand of talent most successfully to the 8:30 to 10 spot, called, appropriately enough, "An Evening with Al Douglas." Being a conscientious host, Al channels all his energy toward preparing features and interviews which cause his listeners to feel that they have, in fact, spent the evening as his special guest.

A SIMPLE description of the program would be misleading because Al's routine does not fit into easy categories. His guest list is as likely to include a Shakespearean scholar as a flying saucer enthusiast, and his conversation may begin with nuclear fission and end up with deep-water fishing.

Or, he may devote the entire evening to some special project —as was the case last month, when he brought together the two leading opponents in the Northern California pay TV controversy. He was, by the way, the first to get representatives from both sides to appear at the same time.

However, the scholarly ex-sports director does have some regular features. Most frequent are his conversations with visiting and local personalities.

SOME OF his recent guests have been singer-dancer Carol Lawrence (Mrs. Robert Goulet), author Vance Packard, the new singing group The Womenfolk, and Lou Gottlieb of the Limeliters.

Every evening Al does a book review and he often discusses articles from Harper's Magazine and Saturday Review. One night a week he reads a short story for his "True Tales of the West" feature and twice a week he spotlights "Travels with the Douglases" — suggestions for family trips in California and San Francisco.

One of Al's most popular features is "The Story Behind the Song," during which he reads a letter from one of his listeners relating a personal story associated with the listener's favorite song.

LATELY, HE has added a new feature—the "Personal Phono." "This began as an outlet for

WHEN HIS WORK at the KCBS studio in San Francisco is completed, Al Douglas takes refuge from the city in his Larkspur home which he shares with attractive wife Marjorie and children Beth, 6, Mike, 8, and Paul, 17. IN HIS LARKSPUR HOME, this is one Al Douglas—the away-from-the-mike personality. In the quiet tranquility of his home, he shares a storybook with 6-year-old daughter Beth and wife Marjorie. He finds the quiet of Marin a relaxing contrast to the hustle and bustle of his work in busy San Francisco. "I always save Saturdays for the kids," he says.

THE OTHER AL DOUGLAS is the one KCBS radio listeners enjoy so much. Sometimes he becomes a bit of a ham, as he does here surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls. He is seen joking with The Womenfolk, the new hit folk-singing group whom he interviewed on his "An Evening With Al Douglas" show on KCBS. They are, left to right, Judy Fine, Barbara Cooper, Joyce James, Lyn Ashmore and (seated) Jean Amos.

my frustration on Viewpoint," says Al. "Viewpoint is set up exclusively for the listener and it is not my role to voice a personal opinion. Quite often, it's all I can do to keep my mouth shut. So. I initiated this new series so I could have at least one good conversation a night.

"The first night turned out to be a little ironic, however. There I was all set to speak my mind, and I got a lady on the line who talked for 20 minutes without a break. I hardly got a chance to say more than yes or no."

WHEN HIS "day" at the studio is over, Douglas takes refuge from the city in his Larkspur home.

"You can't beat it far tranquility," Al comments. "We're right at the foot of Mt. Tamalpais and we've got unspoiled woods right out the back door. As soon as we got settled on the West Coast, we moved straight to Marin. We love it and we hope it stays just the way it is."

The home is shared by Al's attractive wife Marjorie and their three children—Paul, 17, Mike, 8, and Beth, 6.

Sports-minded Al can't help bragging a little about Paul, an all-conference fullback for Redwood High School in the Marin Athletic League. "He's just accepted a full athletic scholarship to UCLA."

THE HOUSE reverberates with the music from Al's hi-fi and prized record collection. He also collects anecdotes, often from personal experiences, about his favorite worlds of sports and music. His family has developed great agility in tip-toeing among records and reference books spread temporarily over the living room floor.

"And they're all picking up my 'strange' interests," concludes Al with a wink.

Another New Home Is Ready In San Marin

Hobart's Ashwood Model Is Open To The Public

A new note to the already varied examples of gracious living being offered in the 100-million-dollar San Marin planned community in Novato is being provided now by the construction of Hobart Consolidated homes, a number of which are already completed.

Hobart Consolidated is adding five different home designs to the five different floor plans already being offered by Sunset International Petroleum Corp., developers of the 2,165-acre project, and five other floor plans under construction by Mackay Homes.

THE ADDITION of the Hobart Homes now permits prospective residents of San Marin a wide selection of 15 different floor plans with 45 different exterior stylings from which to choose to meet the tastes and needs of every family.

Furnished models of the different floor plans are open for inspection and many homes are already completed with a number now occupied.

The Hobart Homes include three one-story floor plans and two two-story designs.

AMONG THE one-story homes by Hobart is the three-bedroom, 1,508-square-foot Ashwood which comes in a choice of three exterior stylings, priced from $25,000 to $26,500.

An atrium-like garden entry highlights the clean, crisp lines of the Ashwood and carries the feeling of gracious living in the country up to the very front door.

A large fireplace provides a dramatic note to the living room and is the focal point for family gathering.

DESIGNED WITH the bedrooms directly opposite the living area of the home and with the children's rooms away from the adult areas such as the living room and family room, plus the dining area, space is carefully utilized for maximum privacy.

A centrally-located kitchen, with all-electric equipment, provides easy access to both the dining area on one side and the family room on the other side, facilitating both casual family dining and formal entertaining.

The master bedroom features a dressing room and extra closet space, plus a private entrance to make the room a true master suite.

GENEROUS USE of large windows capture the sunlight, highlighting the feeling of spaciousness and airiness inside and maintaining the feeling of country living with beautiful views of the surrounding hills and vales.

San Marin ultimately will contain 6,225 single and multi-family dwellings, schools, churches, shopping and professional center, a recreation complex, golf course, parks and greenbelts.

The planned community and the model homes are reached by the new San Marin Drive access road off Highway 101.

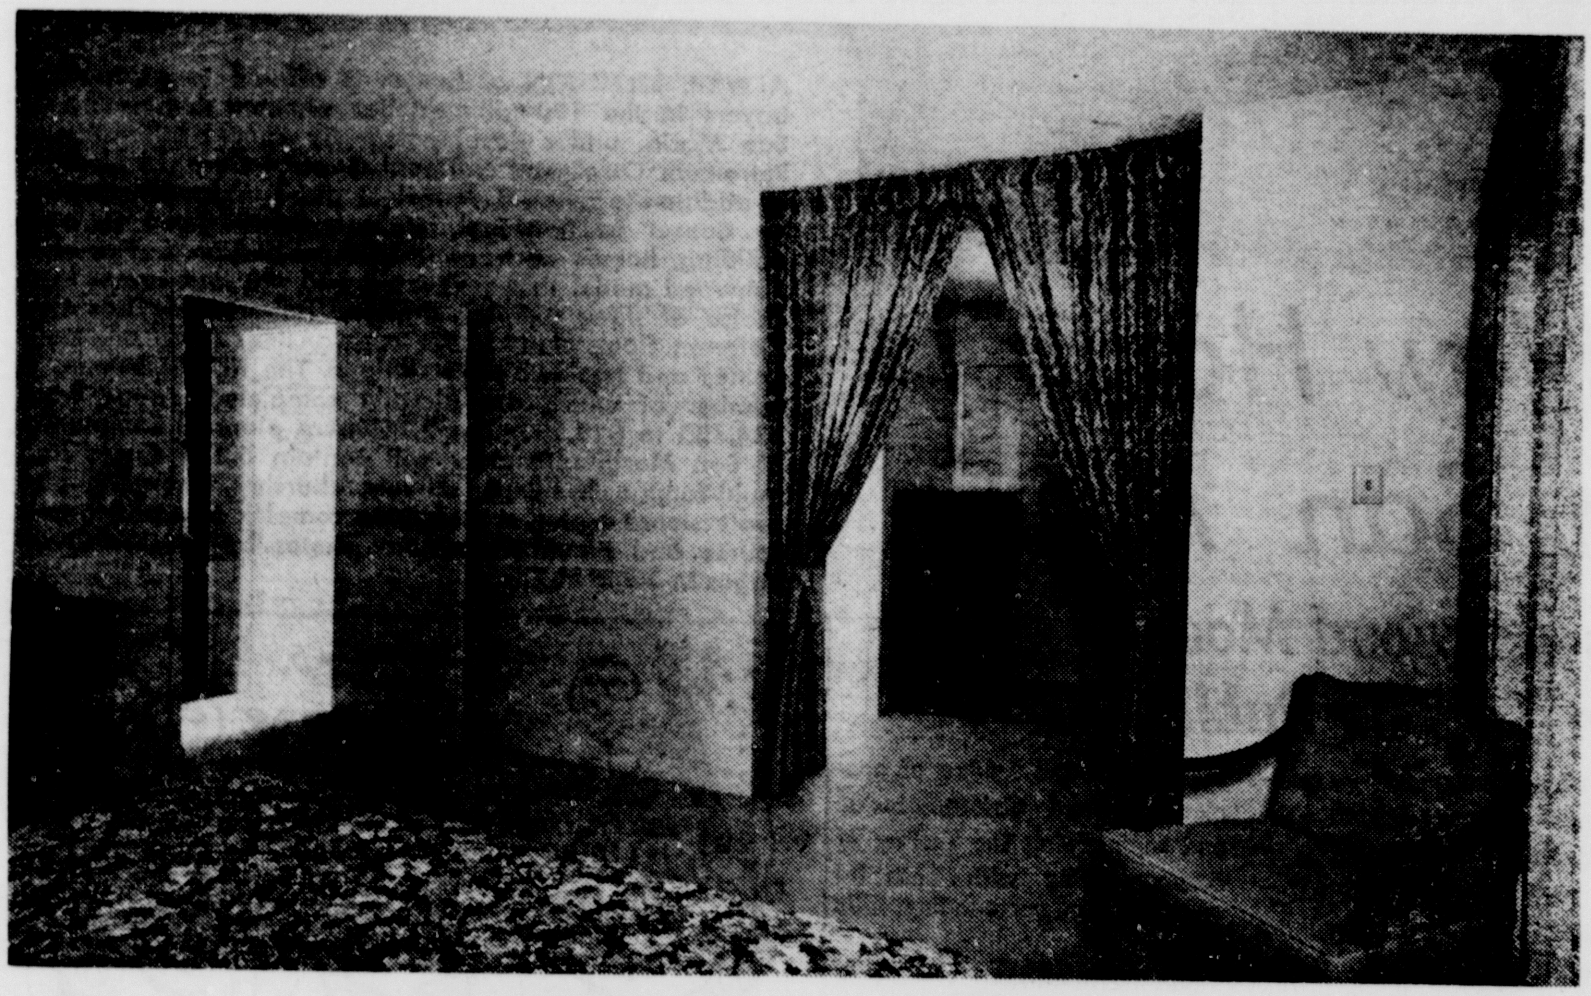
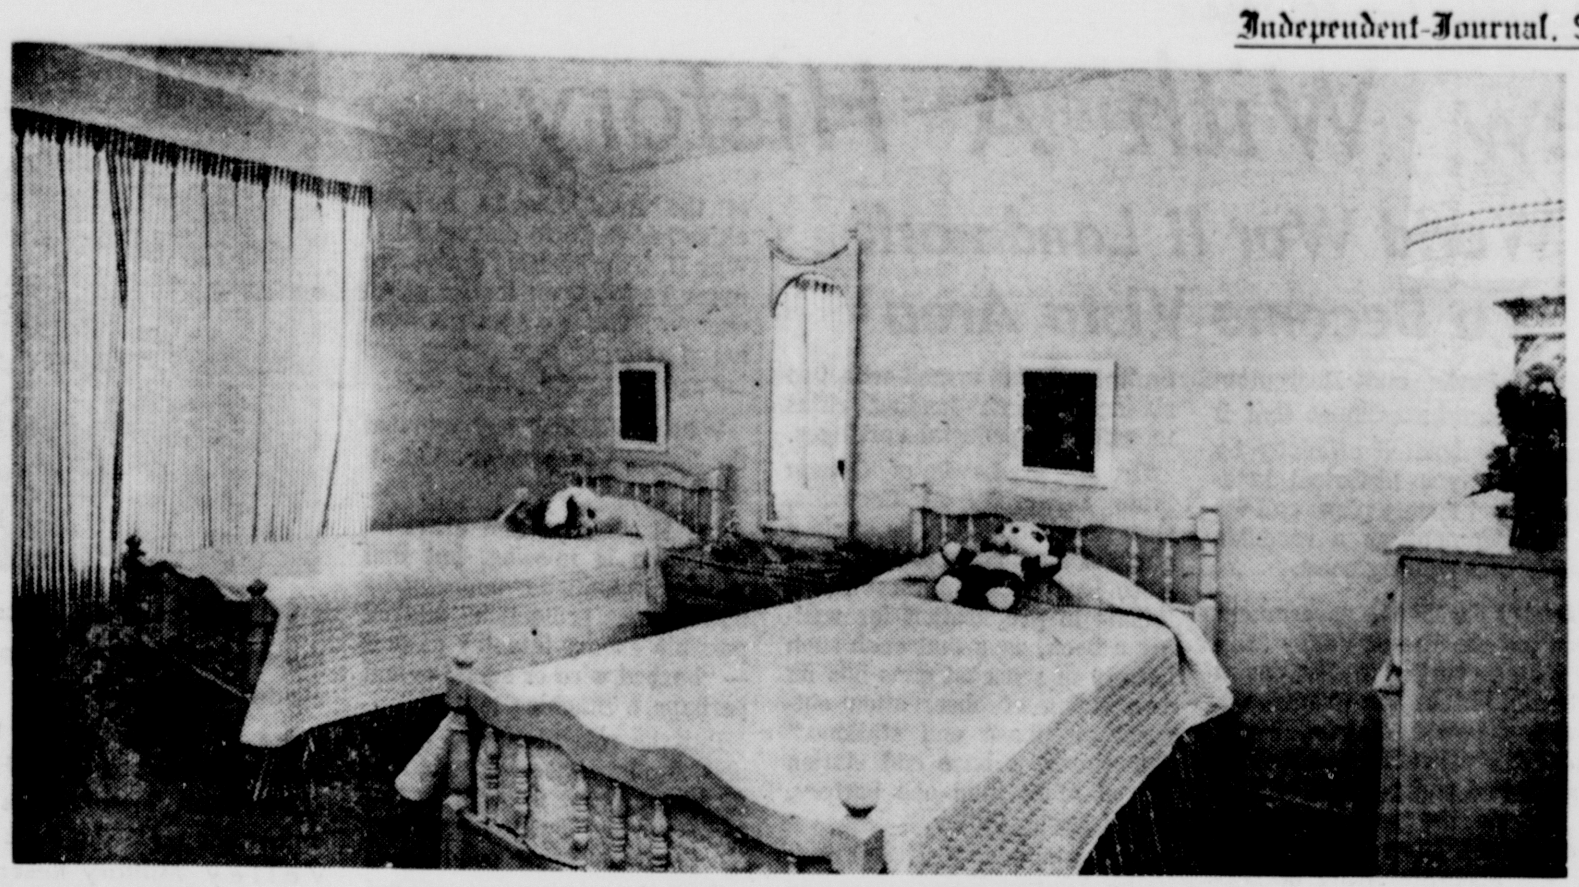
THE HEARTH IS still the center of family living and the large fireplaces in the living room of the Ashwood model homes by Hobart Consolidated, in San Marin, provide a feeling of warmth with an aura of elegance. The contemporary decor by Charles Baudoin and Associates of San Francisco is in harmony with the country setting amidst rolling hills and vales. The design of the living room provides a feeling of spaciousness with plenty of light from two large floor-to-ceiling windows looking out on the surrounding hills.



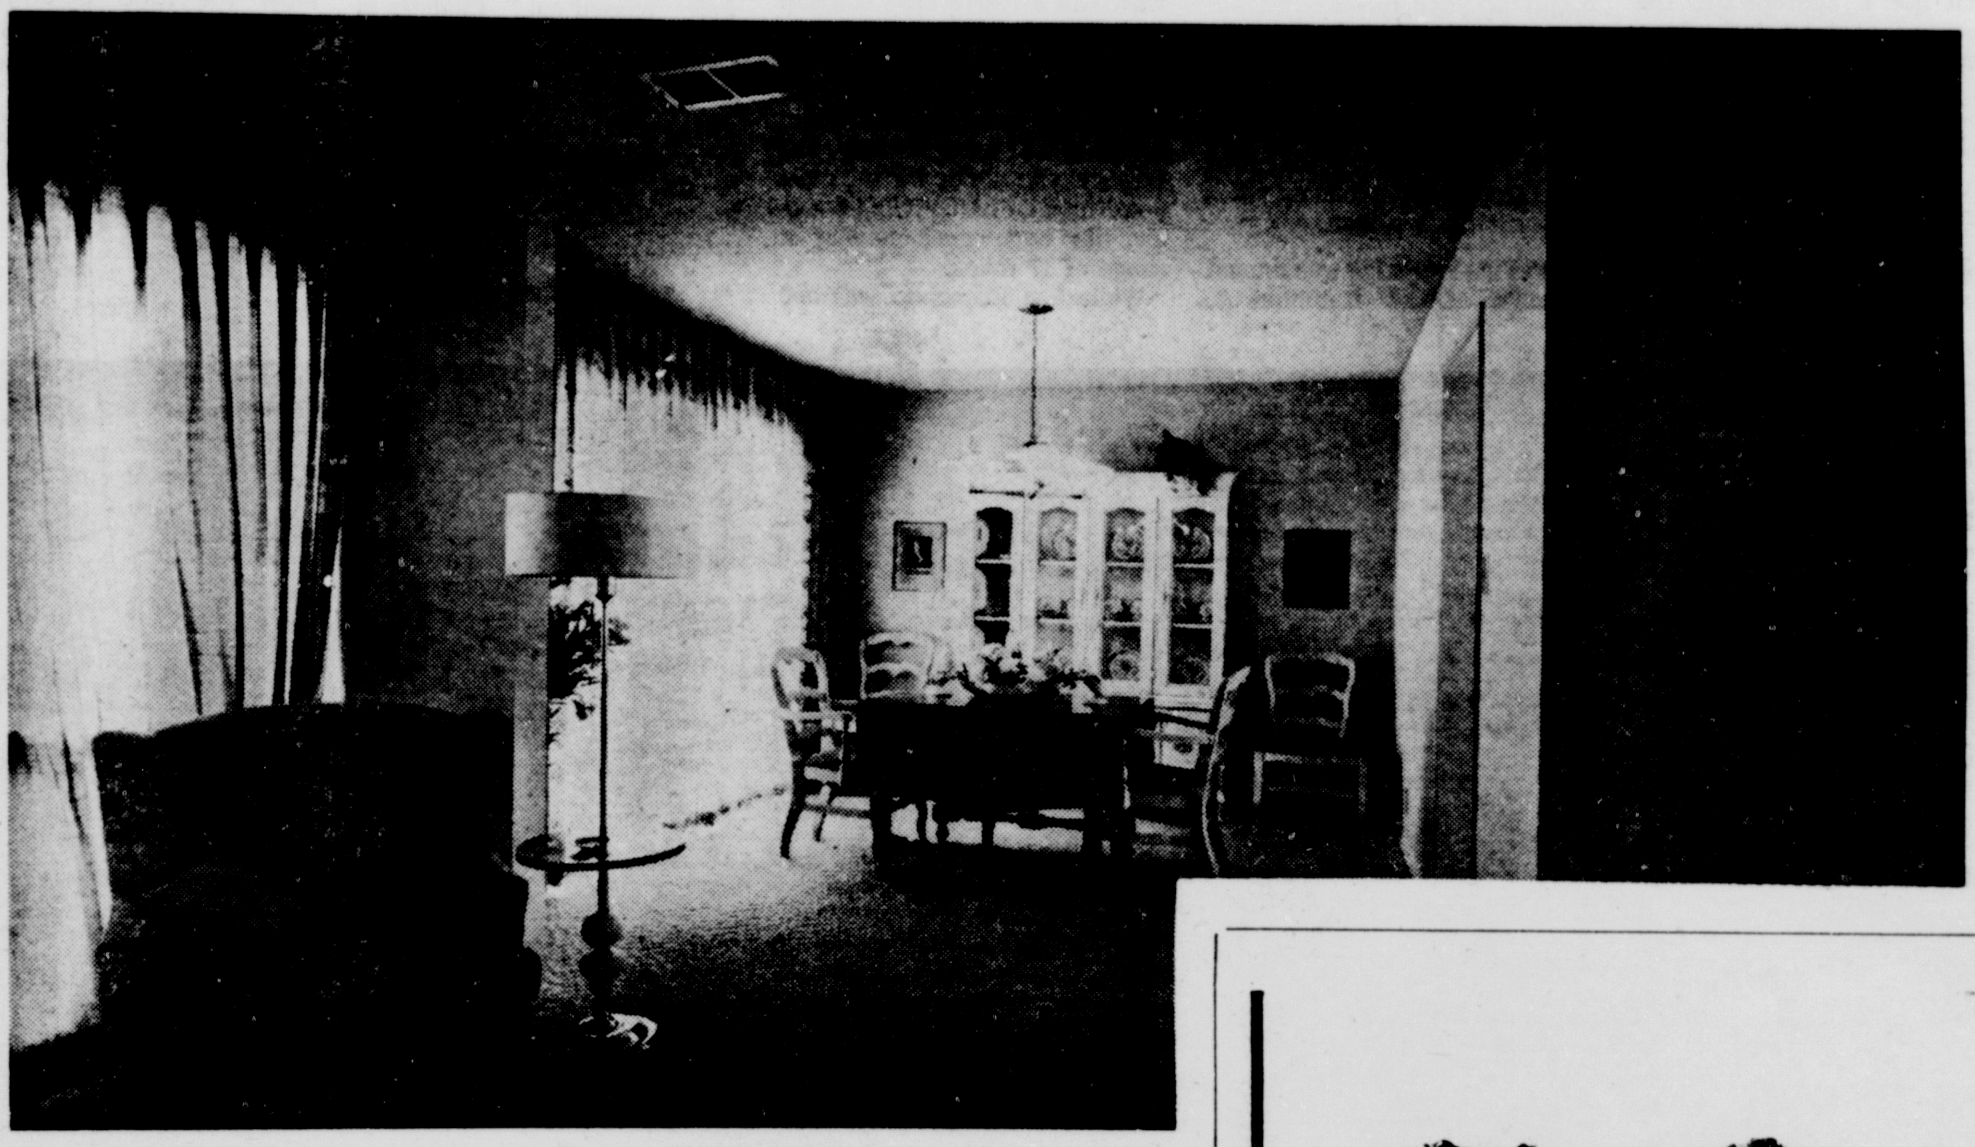
THE MASTER bedroom, at left, in Hobart Consolidated's Ashwood model homes is spacious and provides a separate dressing room area which leads directly to the bathroom. Door at left opens onto the rest of the house. The home has three bedrooms, two baths, an all-electric kitchen, family room and living room with dining area and is priced at $25,000.

THE FAMILY room, at right, just off the all-electric kitchen in the 1,508 square foot Ashwood model home in San Marin is roomy and light with an aura of elegance accenting its otherwise informal appearance and purpose. Furnished models of all five Hobart floor plans are open for inspection, with a number of other dwellings already completed or occupied.

A Look At The Ashwood



A SOFT FLOOD of light penetrates all three bedrooms of the Ashwood model homes under construction by Hobart Consolidated in San Marin. The large windows also offer outstanding views of the surrounding hills and vales and brings the country atmosphere indoors. The bedroom above, decorated by Charles Baudoin and Associates, San Francisco, is one of the three bedrooms in the 1,508 square foot Ashwood model.



THE DINING AREA just off the large living room in the Ashwood home provides a note of formality while taking advantage of the country setting by a large floor-to-ceiling window which captures the sunlight and looks out on the surrounding hills. Door at the left in the dining room leads to the family room and kitchen area with the living room opening directly onto the dining area, yet providing a feeling of separation.

A View With A History

World War II Landmark To Become Vista Area

(Editor's Note: This is another in a series of articles on parks and other properties owned by Marin County and operated and maintained by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department. Today's subject: The Muir Beach Overlook, once the Frank Valley Military Reservation.)

It's a relic of the era before missiles and nuclear weapons made obsolete conventional shoreline guns as a means of defense.

Then it was the Frank Valley Military Reservation, one link in the chain of defenses established by Uncle Sam to protect San Francisco's vital harbor facilities.

NOW IT IS the property of Marin County, listed by the county's parks and recreation department as "Muir Beach Overlook."

That title is appropriate. The 8.93 acres of land look down upon Muir Beach and the Pacific Ocean from heights above Highway 1 six miles south of Stinson Beach.

Presently undeveloped and closed to the public, its gates are padlocked. But Marin County Parks and Recreation Commissioners and the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department have hopes that it will be designated officially by the state as a historical landmark. And county plans call for its development as a roadside resting and viewing point.

THE FEDERAL government acquired the Frank Valley Military Reservation in 1923 as a potential link in San Francisco's harbor defenses. During World War II, observation posts were constructed and activated there, to provide the required range and azimuth information needed for the accurate firing of seacoast artillery guns located at Fort Barry near the entrance to the Golden Gate.

Primary support was given to Battery Wallace and Battery Smith at Fort Barry.

The former was named for Col. Elmer J. Wallace who died in France Nov. 5, 1918, of wounds suffered in World War I action. The battery mounted two 12-inch breech-loading rifles on Barbette carriages.

BATTERY SMITH was named in honor of Col. Hamilton A. Smith and was armed with two six-inch breech-loading rifles mounted on pedestal carriages.

Dr. E. R. Lewis of Oregon State University at Corvallis, Ore., a scholar who has made a study of the history of San Francisco Bay Area military installations in preparation for writing a book, says that each such battery of seacoast guns had its own string of observation outposts or "base end stations." Sometimes, a base end station served more than one battery, as did Frank Valley.

Dr. Lewis adds that the Frank Valley Military Reservation was also the home site for a third observation unit serving an underwater mine detachment.

AND THAT, just prior to the war, still a fourth base end station was activated at Frank Valley, this one attached to an unnamed two-gun six-inch battery firing from Fort Miley.

The Wallace Battery, Dr. Lewis says, was by far the most powerful gun battery in its sector, its huge guns having a range of 17 miles.

While San Francisco was one of the most heavily fortified cities in the world during World War II, its protecting guns were never called upon to fire at an enemy. The weapons were heard only at test firings and infrequent target practices.

WERE THERE any guns at the Frank Valley reservation itself?

Dr. Lewis says that exact information is missing, but that such installations undoubtedly had some protection against possible enemy infantry assault — "barbed wire or such" — and perhaps a machine gun.

But the role of Frank Valley and similar base end stations along the coast was not to fire at the enemy—but to help direct the fire from other points.

Such observation posts ranged from Drake's Bay on the north to Half Moon Bay on the south.

AFTER WORLD War II, the coastal defense installations were "phased out." Changes in military tactics and equipment brought about the abandonment of the huge coastal artillery guns. And with their demise, the supporting installations such as the Frank Valley Military Reservation were no longer needed.

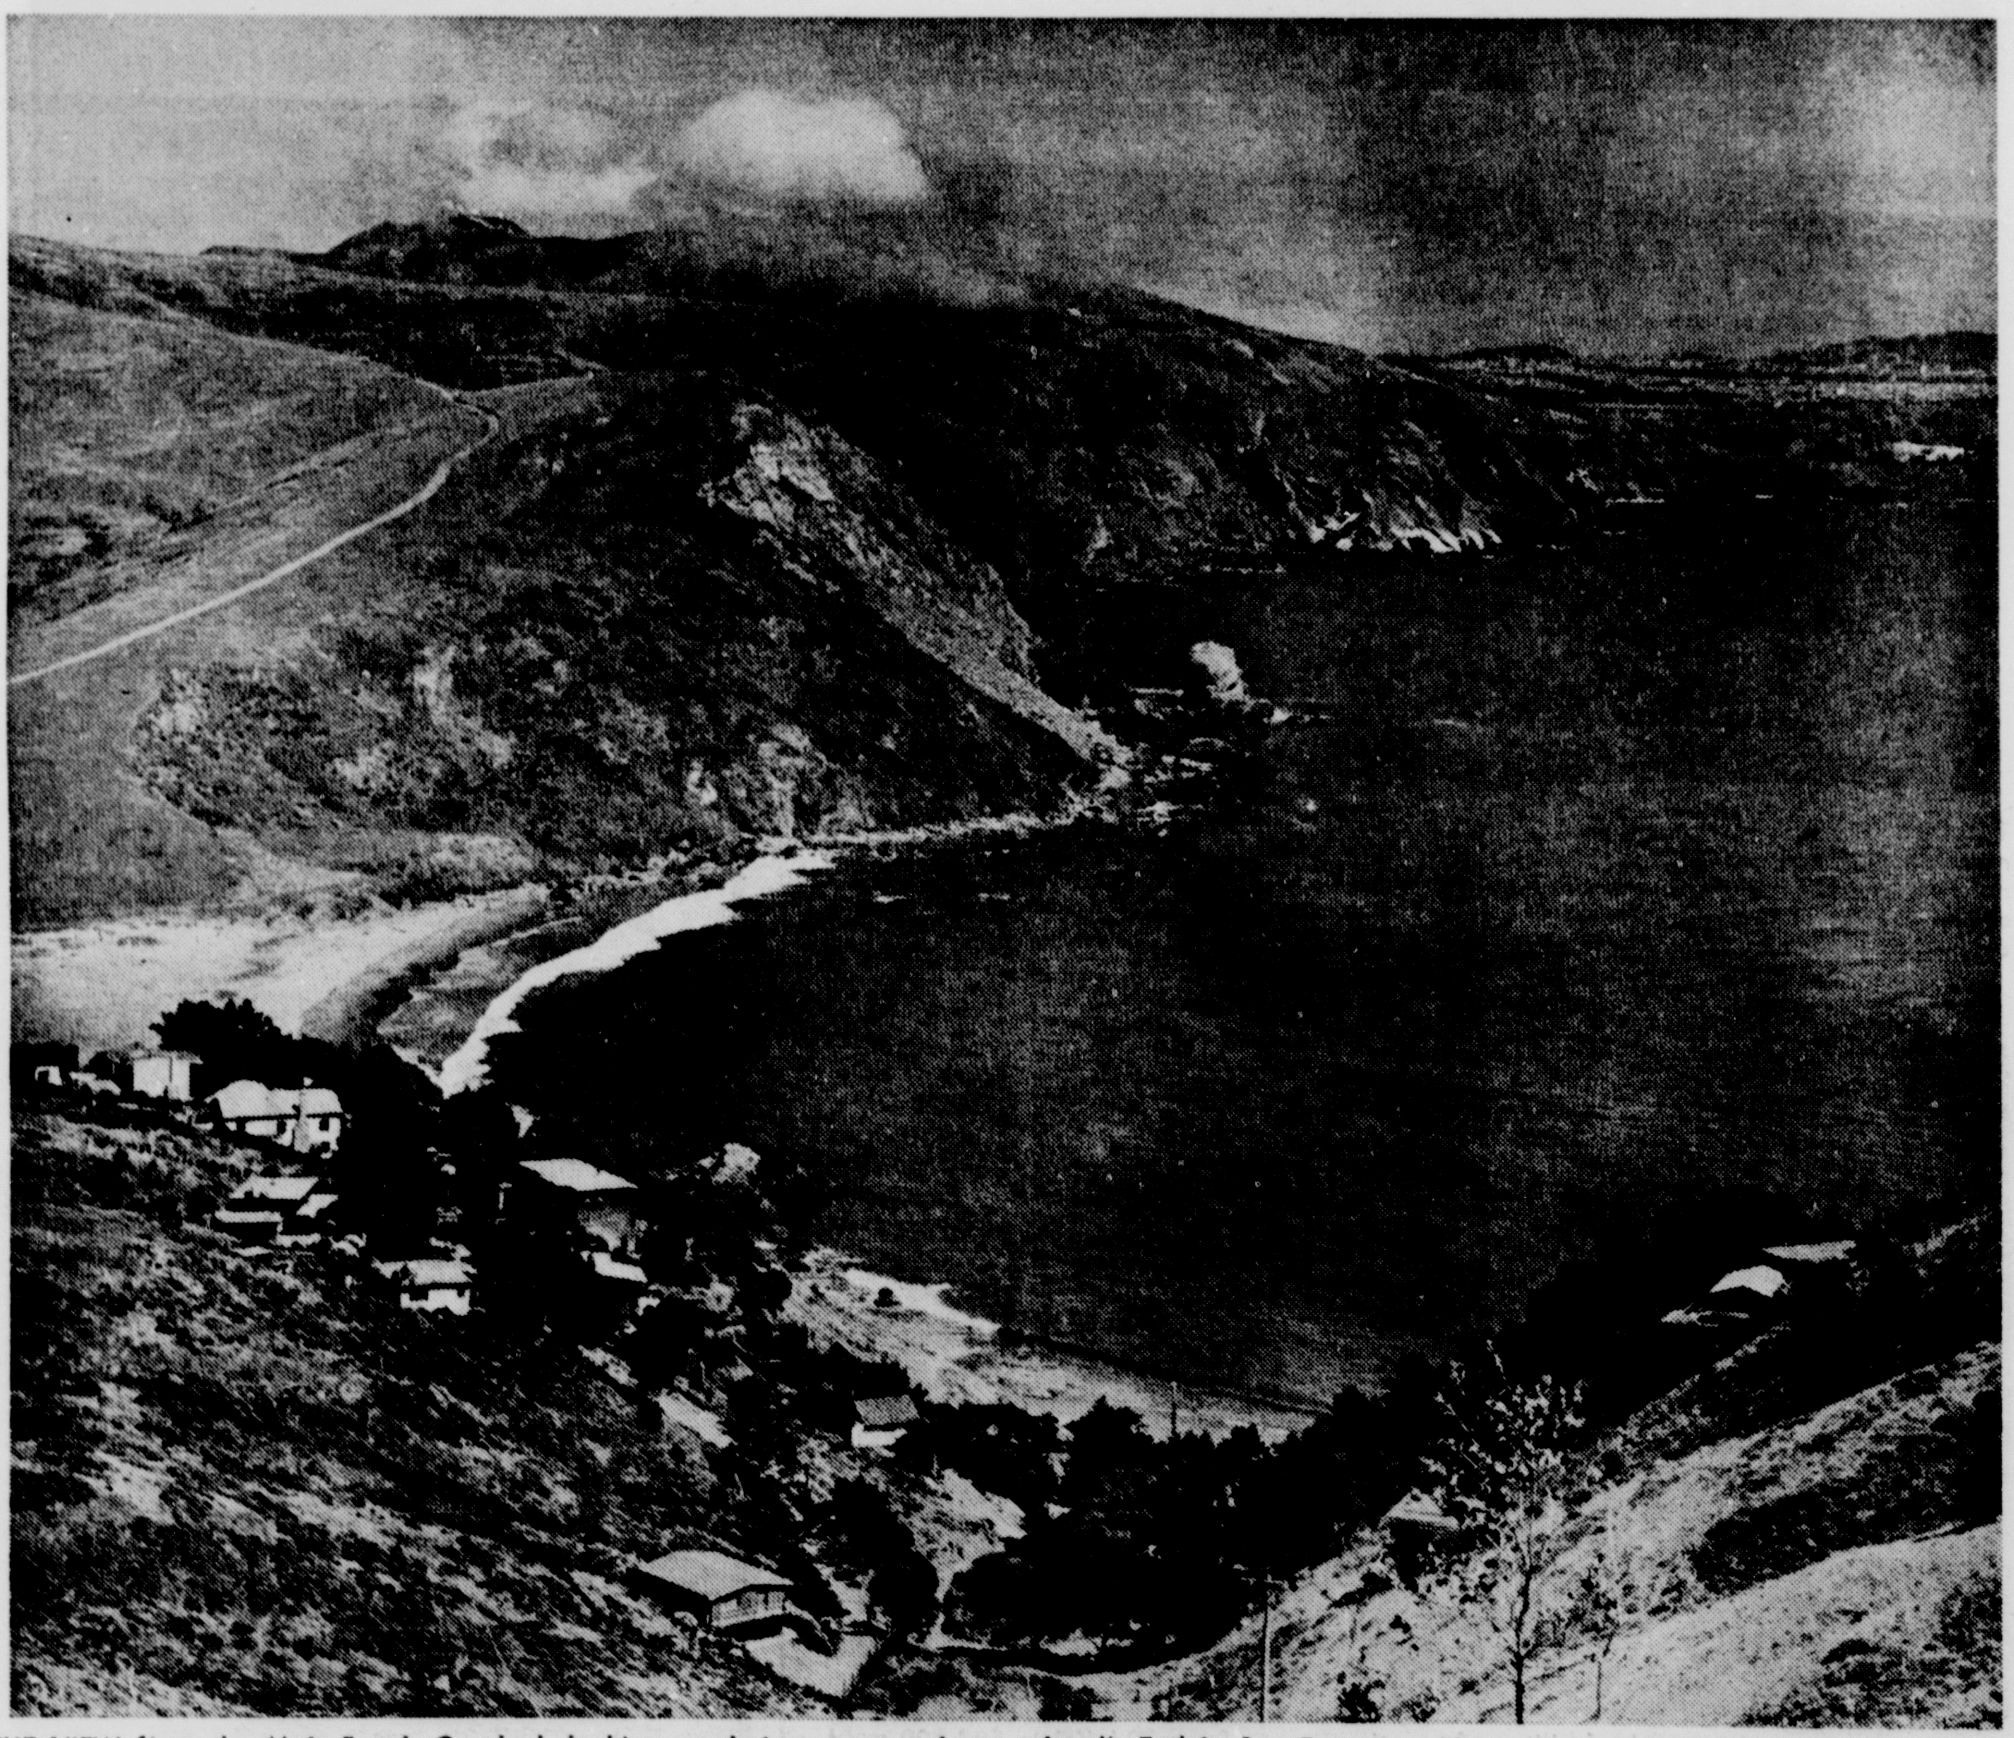
STEEL and concrete relics of the era before new weapons made obsolete coastal defense guns protecting San Francisco harbor are these observation installations at what was once the Frank Valley Military Reservations. From here came data to guide the range and azimuth of big guns located at Fort Barry and Fort Miley. Now the land belongs to Marin County, and plans call for its development as a roadside rest and viewing station and as a historical landmark. (Independent-Journal photo by Jim Kean)



THE VIEW from the Muir Beach Overlook looking south is a spectacular one. Below lies the community of Muir Beach. Stretching into the distance is the Pacific Ocean. And across the water to the southeast can be seen Land's End in San Francisco. The superb vista makes the area a natural for development as a viewing point, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission and Marin County Parks and Recreation Department feel. They lay abandoned and unused.

In November of 1959, Marin County supervisors approved an application to the U.S. General Services Administration for the military reservation as surplus federal land. The GSA awarded the land to the county on May 31, 1960, for $3,750—half the appraised market value.

On Oct. 6, 1960, Marin County received a quitclaim deed to the property.

THEN, IN September of the following year, the county acquired a strip 20-by-540 feet, approximately a quarter acre, from the Muir Beach Co. for $435 that widened the access to the overlook from 20 feet to 40 feet.

Marin County Parks and Recreation Director Kelvin Nelson points out that the area is superbly fitted to its proposed future role of roadside rest and viewing point.

The land consists of a high promontory above the ocean, an acre and three-quarters of which is nearly flat ground suited for development for parking and viewing. There is another half acre with existing small pine trees that is being eyed as a picnic spot. A further promontory seaward of the main flat area could be developed to afford an even more spectacular view. The remainder of the area consists of steep bluffs.

FROM THE overlook, the viewer can enjoy a spectacular vista of the Pacific Ocean, of San Francisco's Land's End across the water, of Muir Beach immediately below, and northward the coastline leading to Stinson Beach, to the southeast Mount Tamalpais with its radar station.

A half dozen steel and concrete shells remain as reminders of the area's military service.

Four are the end base stations that served the three gun batteries at Forts Barry and Miley and the mine detachment. Also still in existence are the conduit box into which the observations from the observation stations were funneled, and a built-in bunker.

REMOVED WAS an underground barrack, preparatory to the development of the proposed picnicking area.

The county has also closed off the bunker and sealed the conduit cable box, improved the access road and "skinned off" the parking area. Plans and specifications are now ready for the completion of the parking facilities. With the nearly $4,000 available, the county also expects to do some fencing.

Should the pending application for historical landmark status be approved, then a proper plaque will be erected to recall the area's colorful history.

And from the heights where soldier sentinels once scanned the seas and skies on the alert for an enemy that never came, visitors will be able to pause in their coastal journey to relax and refresh themselves—and to drink in one of the world's most spectacular views.

Marin Underwriters Tackle A Vital Community Project

By DON KEOWN

The Marin Life Underwriters Assn. became a separate entity in April of this year.

Previously, the Marin insurance men had been branch members of the San Francisco association.

The purposes to which the new organization dedicated its efforts included such professional objectives as advancing public knowledge of life insurance and its uses, and promoting high ethical standards and competence among those engaged in underwriting.

But the members also stated their intention "to render community service."

ONE OF THE first problems then to confront the fledgling organization was the selection of its first community service project.

Nick Dollwet of San Rafael read an article in the National Assn. of Life Underwriters News telling how the underwriters of Boston had taken up the cause of Medic Alert and had chalked up a record of marvelous accomplishment.

This, Dollwet thought, might be just the cause for his own organization. He contacted the international headquarters of the non-profit Medic Alert Foundation in Turlock, Calif., for information on the program.

ONE THING he learned was the vital program had no official sponsoring group in Marin County.

Dollwet had little difficulty convincing the board of directors and the membership of the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. that their organization should become the sponsoring group and fill a serious void in the ranks of Marin's service-rendering agencies and associations.

To help the Marinites in getting started, Marvin Laskey of Terra Linda, a retired colonel and a member of the Medical Alert advisory board, spoke before the life underwriters' group.

Some of the things that the Marin insurance men learned about the program included:

MEDIC ALERT is a non-profit, charitable, tax-exempt foundation dedicated to encouraging the public to wear permanent identification of special medical problems that should be known immediately in times of emergencies — and to educating doctors, nurses and others in the need for their assistance in preaching the importance of wearing such identification.

Goals of the foundation include helping people to identify hidden medical problems, encouraging them to become members of the Medic Alert Foundation, advising them to obtain the universal protection of the Medic Alert emblem issued by the foundation, and to educate doctors, nurses, law officers and emergency personnel in recognizing the emblem on sight and in then rendering appropriate and immediate assistance.

THE JOB OF the Marin life underwriters then is to call to the attention of the public the services rendered by the foundation, and to stress its importance — perhaps to the point of saving lives.

Once convinced, the prospective member sends his application to Medic Alert Foundation, Turlock, Calif. There is a single, one-time-only membership fee of $5 plus 20 cents sales tax, 25 cents handling charge.

Disbursements by the foundation regularly exceed membership income, with contributions making up the difference.

THE UNIVERSAL Medic Alert emblem is available in sterling silver (at $7.50) as well as in stainless steel, and can be purchased either as a bracelet or as a disc to be attached to a charm bracelet or necklace. It cannot be purchased commercially, and is available only through the foundation.

On one side of the bracelet or disc is engraved the Medic Alert symbol. On the other side, is engraved the wearer's spe-

The bracelet denotes that Williams has willed his eyes to the eye bank. The information can be vital, for eyes for the eye bank must be removed soon after death if they are to serve the purpose for which they have been willed. cial medical problem, the Medic Alert emergency telephone number to be called, and the Medic Alert serial number.

The serial number and other pertinent information is also recorded at international Medic Alert headquarters in Turlock.

SOME OF THE categories of special medical problems covered by the Medic Alert emblems include:

Allergic to horse serum (the allergen in tetanus antitoxin), allergic to penicillin, diabetic, epilepsy, glaucoma, scuba driver, hemophilia, taking anti-coagulants, myasthenia gravis, neck breather, allergic to bee stings, wearing contact lenses, multiple sclerosis, other allergies, etc.

Persons who have willed their eyes to eye banks are also advised to wear bracelets stating that fact, since disposition of the eyes must be made within a stated period after death if they are to be beneficial.

IN ALL, there are more than 200 classifications for which Medic Alert warnings are advised.

And it has been estimated that more than 40 million Americans, averaging nearly one to every family, have such hidden medical problems and should be wearing the bracelets or discs. At the close of 1963, but 100,000 were doing so, but the number is now increasing rapidly.

Sponsoring organizations such as the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. have played major roles in this growth.

Equally important is the part these groups play in alerting doctors, nurses, law enforcement officers, firemen, emergency personnel, etc., to the significance of the tags.

This educational program has succeeded to the point where Medic Alert can now claim universal recognition for its emblems.

THE EMBLEM with its vital message — and the recognition of that message — prevents improper or injurious aid or fatal delays by providing physicians and others with essential facts immediately. This is especially helpful when the patient is comatose, unconscious, delirious,, in shock, deaf and dumb, etc. But even the conscious person may be too nervous or excited in an emergency to remember to mention a special medical condition. The tags then speak for them, too.

Diabetics and epileptics sometimes find their Medic Alert emblems mean the difference when they suddenly fall unconscious, between being jailed and put in the "drunk tank" and being taken to a hospital for proper medical treatment.

ALONG with its campaign on behalf of Medic Alert, the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. also conducts a vigorous program for professional improvement and recognition. A key worker in that phase of the association's functions is Russell Troup of San Rafael. Troup instructs and moderates the Life Underwriters Training Course conducted at San Rafael High School, October through May, of each year. (Photo by Francken)

Holdup victims, knocked unconscious and their wallets stolen, have been identified through their Medic Alert tags. So have amnesia victims.

THE MEDIC Alert Foundation was begun in 1956 by a Turlock physician, Dr. Marion C. Collins, after his teen-age daughter had suffered a near tragedy. She had sustained minor injuries in a mishap, and a doctor, unaware of her severe allergy to horse serum, administered tetanus antitoxin. The shock almost killed her, and she spent days in an oxygen tank.

Determined to help prevent such occurances in the future, Dr. Collins had discs made for his patients who had drug idiosyncrasies or other hidden medical problems. On the discs were engraved the patient's record card, the telephone number of Dr. Collins' Lillian Collins Hospital and the name of the medical problem.

In 1956, Dr. Collins outlined his plan as a purely local program before the American College of Surgeons at their convention in San Francisco. It met with an enthusiastic response. Dr. Collins then founded Medic Alert Foundation in Turlock, and within a short time 30,000 persons were registered.

THE FOUNDATION outgrew its original quarters and moved into larger facilities. There with its files indexed and cross-indexed, it maintains a 24-hour-a-day vigil, accepting telephone calls collect at any time from anywhere in the world regarding medical problems of its members.

The foundation now has branches in many overseas countries as well as throughout North America.

Dr. Collins remains the spark-plug of the movement. But more and more, civic and medical organizations are being called upon to lend their support to the program.

THIS IS THE role the Marin life insurance underwriters have undertaken in this county.

To accomplish this, the Marin Life Underwriters Assn. will begin the distribution of 10,000 Medic Alert pamphlets containing application blanks next week. They will be available at drug stores, fire stations and similar places, and can also be obtained by writing Nick Dollwet, Post Office Box 461, San Rafael.

Dollwet is chairman for the

How Marin's Life Underwriters Serve Their Community

project, with Raymond Dallara, Chet Lee, Robert Hinkel, Alan Birch and John Schmitz serving on the committee with him.

One of the first promotional steps in this county was a proclamation of Medic Alert Week in Marin by the board of supervisors.

But at the same time the insurance men have been pushing the Medic Alert cause, they have also been devoting attention to the professional aims of their association.

THE MARIN unit is an affiliate of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters, professional organization of life insurance agents, general agents and managers, and one of the oldest and largest trade associations of its type in the world. There are today more than 890 state and local associations attached to the national federation, giving it a total of more than 83,000 members.

Prior to this year, the Marin underwriters operated as a branch of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Assn., having been organized in that capacity in 1946.

Four life insurance men met by chance in front of the Albert Building on B Street in San Rafael. Their discussion turned to the possibility of organizing a local group of life underwriters to promote fellowship, provide professional stimulation and advance the industry in Marin.

TWO OF THE participants in that discussion, Robert Nelson and David St. Johnson, are still active in the association.

Their investigation disclosed that Marin insurance men were not yet numerous enough to form a fully-independent organization. The solution arrived at was to become a branch of the existing San Francisco association, and an organizational dinner was held in 1947 at the old Marvel Mar Restaurant in Mill Valley.

At its beginning, the branch had 15 underwriters as its membership. Nelson became the first president.

IN JANUARY of this year, the Marin men and women decided that their organization was ready to severe its ties with the San Francisco association "and go it alone."

"We felt we had the membership — and the leadership — to operate independently," Nelson explains.

The charter presentation occurred in April.

Current officers of the Marin association are J. Edmund Williams, president; Richard A. Secrist, first vice president; Donald P. Sands Jr., second vice president, and Bryce Ashton, secretary - treasurer. Directors are Marilyn Miller, Nick Dollwet, Russell Troup and Carroll Walker.

SOME OF the professional programs being conducted or supported through encouragement of participation by the association include:

Life Underwriters Training Course: Once a week, on Friday evenings, a group of dedicated career men have been meeting at San Rafael High School for special instruction in their profession. The total course runs over a period of two years, October to May, with once-a-week two-and-a-half-hour sessions designed to equip the underwriter to continue the self-improvement program begun in his primary company-sponsored training, and to recognize and handle the more complicatel life underwriting problems in a broader market. Discussions in the Marin class, taught by Russ Troup, are lively, sometimes even heated, as diverse philosophies are brought to bear on special problems.

Chartered Life Underwriters: A recognition program for life or health insurance agents, supervisors and executives who have earned the "CLU" designation by passing a series of college-level examinations on insurance and related fields, by having at least three years experience in the industry, and by meeting moral and ethical standards. The designation is formally granted by the American College of Life Insurance and its chapters.

National Quality Awards: An award of the National Assn. of Life Underwriters that goes only to members who have qualified by meeting certain standards in the amounts and numbers of policies written, by keeping in force at least 90 per cent of their policies for two years or longer after being written, and other technical requirements.

Million Dollar Round Table: A select group of underwriters who sell at least a million dollars worth of new life insurance within the calendar year, who are members of the national association and who meet high ethical standards. Membership is on a year-to-year basis, except for those "life" members who have qualified for perpetual membership by meeting the requirements six consecutive years or an aggregate of 10 years. The prestige organization is devoted to improvement of professional standards.

THESE, THEN, are some of the "within the profession" steps being taken by Marin's life underwriters to advance the standards of their trade — and to render greater service to the public.

The association points with pride to the fact that when the new Marin unit was chartered this April, no less than five of its charter members were also members of the select Million Dollar Round Table.

Such professional improvement programs, they feel, are as much a part of their public service objective as their sponsorship of the vital Medic Alert movement in Marin.

The professional aspects of their program, however, they will handle for themselves.

But for their Medic Alert project to click, they need the support of the general public.

"IT CAN work," says Nick Dollwet, chairman for the campaign, "only if commonsense prevails. Each and every person who should be wearing a Medic Alert emblem and is not doing so is unnecessarily risking his life. He is also suffering needless anxieties about the consequences of an unexpected emergency."

Dollwet likes to tell of the Medic Alert bracelet-wearer who said: "Before I got my emblem, I was afraid to go out alone."

Now he wears the bracelet with assurance. And enjoys a normal and active life, despite a medical problem that once handicapped him severely.

AT CHARTERING CEREMONIES for the newly independent Marin Life Underwriters Assn. this spring, members were proud to note that five charter members also belonged to the exclusive Million Dollar Round Table of the industry. Left to right, they were Carroll Walker, Robert Nelson, Steen Schellenberg, Nick Dollwet and Edward Wachsman.

A "CHARTERED LIFE Underwriter" is a title awarded insurance agents and executives who have passed comprehensive examinations, have had three years experience in the field, and have met other rigid standards. Marin association members who have earned the designation include, left to right, Carroll Walker, Dick Secrist, Jack Stickney and Frank Weber.

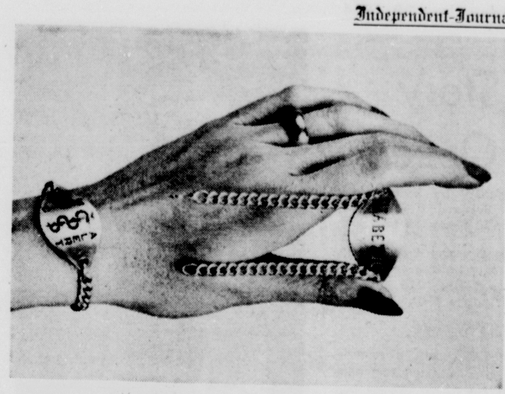
WHEN THE MARIN BRANCH of the San Francisco Life Underwriters Assn. became the independent Marin Life Underwriters Assn. this April, seven active past presidents of the organization were present to pose for a photograph. Left to right, they are Chris Jenkins, David St. Johnson, Robert Nelson, Cliff Lund, Don Anderson, Ed Wachsman and Dick Street. Jack Younger, not present for the picture, still another past president still active in the professional insurance organization.



SHOWN ARE just some of the many categories of special medical problems for which Medic Alert bracelets and discs are issued. Top to bottom are the diabetic, the hemophilia sufferer, the person allergic to tetanus antitoxin and the wearer of contact lenses. One side of the bracelet bears the Medic Alert symbol, the other side denotes the medical category into which the wearer falls and gives the Medic Alert emergency telephone number — which can be called, night or day, collect for full information on the patient — and the identifying Medic Alert registration number.

Irving Shulman's "Harlow" is subtitled "An Intimate Biography" and "intimate" it is. Indeed, it is startlingly so.

No personal detail of the chaotic, colorful and ultimately tragic life of Hollywood blonde bombshell Jean Harlow has been omitted.

Such penetrating biography serves to expose books such as Ruth Waterbury's "Elizabeth Taylor" as the shallow pap that they are, only one notch above the movie fan magazine stuff. But it also gives rise to a troubling question: Is such merciless probing into the most private aspects of individual lives really justified? Is the light it sheds upon one facet of American society of the time really worth its cost in taste?

This is a question each reader will have to decide for himself. And he might at the same time consider two other worrisome aspects of the book:

1. The heavy reliance upon a single source and point-of-view —that of agent Arthur Landau —for much of the most sensational and most controversial material. Landau seems a decent and level-headed sort. But no man is totally free of prejudices and faulty recollections.

2. The realization that those treated most critically, often cruelly, are now dead, unable to reply to the allegations and aspersions made against them.

With these sizable misgivings in mind, let us then admit that Shulman has done a remarkable job of accomplishing what he set out to do. He has laid bare a turbulent career and private life, ripping the glamorous wrappings from the Hollywood of Jean Harlow's time and exposing its tinsel and its tragedy for all to see. Jean Harlow was the very epitome of that mixed-up and slightly-mad era.

Unhappy marriages, parasitic parents, unfulfilled sexual longings, broken health, an absence of real satisfaction from either her work or her personal life— these were some of the penalties Jean Harlow paid for her status of movie queen. All the bewilderment and the contradictions of a whole society were reflected in her. And perhaps that was why Americans admired, even adored, this beautiful though not especially talented woman — even while they gossiped about and sometimes condemned her.

Shulman has dug deeply and has presented his material with verve and drama. Whether his cause was worth his dedication and his talent is a matter for debate.

THE STORY OF platinum-haired Hollywood queen Jean Harlow, right, is told by Irving Shulman in this "Harlow: An Intimate Biography," reviewed on this page. Shulman is the author of "The Amboy Dukes," "The Big Brokers" and other best-sellers.

SAILING FOR THE AMERICA'S CUP by Everett Morris, Harper & Row, 216 10½-by-8-inch pages. $10.

MARIN'S many yachting buffs will be thoroughly delighted with "Sailing For America's Cup."

With text by Everett B. Morris, foreword by Emil Mosbacher Jr. and photographs by Morris Rosenfeld, this is the story of sailboating's most coveted trophy and the battles that have been waged for its possession.

There's history and color. And there is also a great deal of expertise on racing techniques and strategy.

Rosenfeld's illustrations are superb. Sailboats always seem to bring out the best in photographers, and the bigger the boats, the more striking the photos.

You'll eat this one up—or should we say "drink"—, following this colorful competition from the first sea skirmish for the cup's possession 112 years ago through the era of the big yachts—the Vigilante of 1893 measured 124 feet and had a crew of 70—down to the still majestic 69-foot, 11-man 12-Meters of today. And there's some informed and interesting speculation as to what lies ahead in the cup's future beyond this year's competition, what with growing international interest in racing the big boats.

EMIL WHITE'S tenth publication dealing with the Big Sur-Monterey Peninsula country is "Circle of Enchantment," detailing the scenic charms of the countryside along Highway 1 from San Simeon on the south to Monterey on the north, and including a side trip to Carmel and a close look at the Hearst Castle. As a travel guide, it is imperfect. It provides an overabundance of information on some points and leaves other certain-to-be-asked questions unanswered. But as reading material, it is interesting and alluring. The commentary by Henry Miller himself on the Big Sur is especially delightful. And the color photographs, printed on the special heavy paper, are magnificent. In magazine format, the book is available for $1.50 from Emil White, Big Sur, Calif.

AMERICAN Heritage, in its June issue, goes back two generations to take a look at the grandfathers of the men who are today this country's leading aspirants for the presidency. Editor Oliver Jensen has done this most interesting piece. The issue also contains articles by Bruce Catton (on Niagara Falls) and Eric Goldman (on the 1911 lynching at Coatesville, Pa.)

BALLANTINE has reprinted as a 95-cent paperback Elizabeth Byrd's sweeping historical novel, "Immortal Queen." The story of Mary, Queen of Scots, was termed "most admirable" and hailed for its "authenticity of characterization" by Saturday Review after its original publication.

COUNTERSTROKE, by Patrick Wayland, Doubleday & Co., Inc., 179 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

A billion dollars worth of heroin is being shipped from Red China to the U. S. via Mexico. That's how much Counterstroke knows, and it is Lloyd Nicolson's job to find out how it is entering the U. S., and how to stop it.

Nicolson, a one-legged (he lost one in Mexico) agent of Counterstroke, a private organization that does the work the CIA can't do, goes to the Southern California desert to investigate.

There he comes into contact with Guido Orczky, an underworld character, and Thomas Burton Chambers, a disenchanted politician turned successful lawyer, a luscious redhead and a kooky newspaper editor. All these characters and more combine to make a suspenseful story, building to a tense climax.

There is something James Bondian about Nicolson, but there is less violence. There's no torture and little bloodshed.

Author Wayland bothers us a little. It's obvious he's been around the desert. But the trouble is he doesn't fuse this background sufficiently with the story.

Another complaint — he makes out newspapermen covering a murder story as all loud drunks. But what is worse (if you are sensitive about the old Hollywoodian view of reporters) he allows Nicolson to have breakfast alongside the press, after he has become involved in said murder, and not one reporter attempts an interview.

It is only later, at night, they wake up Nicolson and slush up a couple of inane questions.

Counterstroke is a billion-dollar idea. One could say the story of the same name is neither better nor worse than the average chase and adventure novel. It's better than fair, even good. But it could have been excellent.

But one sympathizes with Lloyd Nicolson and would like to keep him in operation.

Yerby's Newest

THE OLD GODS LAUGH by Frank Yerby, Dial Press, 408 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Frank Yerby has stirred up a Castro-like revolution in fictional Costa Verde to keep his readers and his protagonist, correspondent Peter Reynolds, entertained through a rip-snorting 400 pages.

It's rebel guerillas against the "Glorious Leader," Communist against Church, curvaceous American film star against Glorious Leader's strange, Aztec-appearing sister, and finally a giant volcano that spews its fury on rebel and ruler alike.

Through it all suffers Reynolds, a scarred veteran of Korean commando attacks and a survival expert. This adventure he survives with the help of admiring peasants and a white Jaguar convertible.

Yerby says it's a modern romance, not a realistic novel, and he dedicates it to the old-fashioned reader who reads for fun. And it was.

A Proud People

The SIOUX: Life and Customs of a Warrior Society, by Royal B. Hassrick, University of Oklahoma Press, 313 pages, $5.95 Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

They were a proud people, were the Sioux, but humble in their view of man's place in the universe; they were a brave people, and a footloose people. They were a hunting people, and when the white man brought them the horse, they became a people to be feared, the greatest warriors of the great plains.

What made the Sioux what they were? Royal Hassrick, Colorado rancher and writer, seeks the answer in a study of the structure of their society, their religion, folkways, morals and manners. "The Sioux: Life and Customs of a Warrior People" is a book of sociology rather than history: The sociology of a people who spread over the plains like the buffalo that provided their food and shelter and clothing —and that vanished as the buffalo vanished, leaving only legends in the memories of old men.

As such, it is a book for the student of the American Indian, rather than for the casual reader.

In his introduction, Hassrick writes: "To attempt to describe the ways of a people, the patterns of their behavior, or the concepts of their imagination, is only less presumptuous than to try to interpret how their nation functioned." Yet, in the pages that follow, he has done all those things exceedingly well.

Tarzan Is Back

TARZAN AND THE MADMAN by Edgar Rice Burroughs, Canaveral Press, 236 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Edgar Rice Burroughs died in 1950, but his famous creation, Tarzan, comes to life again in this novel, discovered among the author's papers last year.

Appropriately, the publishers decided to release the book this year, the 50th anniversary of Burroughs' first work, "Tarzan of the Apes."

Typically, the story follows the pattern of hectic adventure . . . a lost city, hidden gold mine, a beautiful girl captured by apes and Tarzan triumphing over all.

The plot consists of a series of cliff-hanging episodes, loosely connected in a crazy quilt pattern, centered around the most unlikely circumstances.

Tarzan fans will get their money's worth because they get not only Tarzan, but a man who thinks he is Tarzan. There is nothing to attract those who care not for Tarzan.

A NEED TO LOVE by Martha Buren, Dodd, Mead & Co., 231 pages, $3.75. Reviewed by Ellen Dietschy.

An unusual turn would be welcome in this novel describing the disenchantment of a faithful wife whose husband believes infidelity should be pardoned when accompanied by emotional loyalty.

Anna, an idealistic young girl when she is told by her husband-to-be and first lover, Raoul, of his shortcomings, becomes understandably miserable with her situation.

With no change in the age-old plot, she falls in love with a 19-year-old from whom she receives the attention and selfless adoration her husband is unable to give her.

The author's first four novels have reportedly become best sellers in Sweden. It is doubted that her fifth work will have similar popularity in this country.

POST-NAPOLEONIC ROME is the setting for "Crown of Grass," Charles A. Brady's new biographical novel about Chateaubriand, published by Doubleday and Co. ($5.50). The book takes place toward the close of the French diplomat's career. The jacket painting is by Alice Smith.

THE GARDENER'S YEAR by Karel Capek, Dover Publications, paperback reprint, 110 pages, $1.00. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Anyone who has wielded a trowel as a weekend gardener will smile and say to himself "ain't it the truth," as he turns the pages of Capek's unorthodox calendar.

Aside from his gentle humor, Capek writes with feeling and warmth of the beauty of flowers and the joys of creating a garden.

Several passages of the calendar are not applicable to Marin County because Capek writes of the weather cycle in Czechoslovakia, where the winters are severe and the seasons sharply defined.

Nevertheless, he projects the spirit, philosophy and fun of gardening with a light touch that should please readers, no matter what their climate.

POGO GOES LITERARY

Pogo, a big favorite with Independent-Journal comic strip fans, has gone literary again.

The Walt Kelly character is the hero of "Pogo for President," a 35-cent Crest paperback published by Fawcett World Library.

It marks the first Pogo paperback, but he is a veteran of the hardcover field. Simon & Schuster-published Pogo titles—25 of them in all—have sold more than 2,600,000 copies.

The new paperback is a reprint of some of Pogo's best from the first hardcover book, "I Go Pogo, Volume 1," poking fun at the American political scene.

Familiar Things

POEMS AND EPIGRAMS by Robert Beum, Henry Regnery Co., 87 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Simple and spare, the poetry of Robert Beum has been widely published and well received in this country, Canada and Europe in the past decade. He has recorded a group of his poems for the national archives of the Library of Congress and was included in the Literary Review's anthology of best American poets under 40. A poet of familiar things, Beum writes with vision in a subtle yet tangible way. This little volume includes about 60 of his shorter works.

Reading For The Youngsters

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest readers:

Publisher Henry L. Walck has enriched the lives of small children by bringing back into print "Dorcas Porkus," a charming little book by a lovely lady illustrator, Tasha Tudor. The story of Dorcas Porcus, the pet pig, is available in a well-bound format just the right size for small hands. Illustrations are delicate and dainty in pastel shades that blend well with the whimsical terms used to tell a tale of long-ago times.

A lesson in their nation's heritage is combined with the excitement of a small boy and his little dog on the loose in the White House in Peter Benchley's excellent "Jonathan Visits the White House" (McGraw-Hill, $2.50). The lively visit takes place during the Kennedys' occupancy of the White House, and little Jonathan actually encounters JFK and his family in the midst of his romp. But there is a charmingly-worded foreword by the present First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. Richard Bergere is responsible for the illustrations which, in themselves, represent a conducted tour of this storehouse of national treasures and traditions.

History is mixed with mystery and adventure in "Mystery of the Old Field" by Eric Houghton (McGraw-Hill, $2.95). Boys will enjoy this well-plotted story of a country youngster who is at first dismayed when he has to move to a new home in a factory town, but who finds a new kind of excitement and interest in his new surroundings. It's the kind of "red-blooded" action that has been enthralling young readers for decades.

The use of bright color photographs taken by the author is an unusual and attractive feature of the appealing book, "The Car Named Julia" by Ralph Hermanns (Harcourt, Brace & World, $2.50). Translated from the Swedish by Annabelle MacMillan, it is the lively story of two youngsters who rescue a neglected antique automobile from the junk man — and, with the help of their big sister, enter the big race for vintage vehicles. Older car enthusiasts, along with the children, will find themselves enjoying this tale. The photos are stunning.

For the newest title in its Horizon Caravel Book series, American Heritage Book Co. has selected "The Vikings" ($3.95). Frank R. Donovan has written the story of the daring, and adventurous Norsemen during the era of their supremacy over the European continent, 800 to 1100 A.D. It is a colorful tale, well told. And as always with its Horizon Caravel books, American Heritage has provided a handsome, sturdy format and an impressive array of illustrations.

In her "So Small" (Harcourt, Brace and World), Ann Rand tells of the adventures and misadventures of a mischievous little mouse who ultimately learns the value of good behavior. Feodor Rojankovsky's realistic pictures make the adventures very vivid. There are full-page and double-page pictures with very little print — as a small child's book should be. Jolly and delightful.

"Why Is My Peau de Soie Gown Limp and Lifeless?"

Dear Mrs. T. T. L.:

Peau de Soie may be 100% silk or acetate, rayon or blends of these. Whatever its fiber, Peau de Soie meaning "silk skin," is a luxury fabric. Much heavier than most satins, its smooth, silky, semi-dull appearance makes it extremely popular for late afternooon and evening wearing.

The disadvantage of such a fabric is that it is loom-finished and may lose its sizing or finish simply in normal wear. Its sizing is usually water soluble and after crocking in wear, floats away from the fabric when it is cleaned. Further, spots and stains on Peau de Soie are most difficult to remove.

Satisfaction from this luxury fabric depends upon its construction. It may pucker if combined with fabrics or even threads that shrink. Most Peau de Soie drycleans satisfactorily, but requires special care in wear.

Your gown is limp and lifeless, Mrs. T. T. L., because that is its nature. It is too bad that such beauty is so transient.

HOW TO USE THE TONE CONTROLS ON YOUR COMPONENT STEREO SYSTEM. Most component preamp-amplifiers have an elaborate set of controls. These controls will provide the listener with properly balanced musical quality at all listening levels, soft, medium and loud. They will provide this balanced tone in most acoustical room environments; that is, small, medium and large rooms — hard surfaced walls & draped walls.

To achieve proper balance, the listener must know how to properly adjust the controls. Like an expensive camera, if the lens speed and film speed and focus are not taken into consideration the picture will be blurred. If the bass and treble and loudness contour and low and high filters are not properly adjusted, the sound will be blurred or thin or boomy or squeeky.

First, let's review the facts about our hearing. Two physicists, Fletcher and Munson, made some extensive tests with various groups of listeners and found that at low listening volumes we humans do not hear the bass as strongly as we hear the middle range of tones. This also occurs to a slight degree at the treble or high tone end of the musical spectrum. As the volume becomes louder and louder, our hearing of the bass becomes stronger and stronger. When the volume reaches symphony hall levels, a fairly loud volume, we hear the low bass end and the middle and high ends of the musical range with equal intensities. What does all of this mean? It means that the softer we reproduce our music, the less bass our ears will hear.

How do we counteract this phenomenon? One of the controls on the component music system is called a "loudness" or a "contour" control. When you are listening to music at the lower volume levels, you should switch this control to the "on" position. The loudness contour control will allow the amplifier to reproduce more bass than middle range tones and thus the ear hears the music in balance even at low volumes. Usually the design of this control is such that the degree of bass boost will vary as you turn the volume control from soft to loud. When listening to music at loud volume levels, the loudness contour control should be in the off position since the bass boost is not required.

The bass and treble controls on a quality system have a center normal position; that is, when left in the center position all tones will be amplified in equal amounts. How these controls should be used will be discussed in the next article.

PINK WAVES

I am thinking compassionately tonight
of graying, storm weary hulls trolling embosomed yesterdays hackamore throated beneath blue ferruled clouds that ride
their own silversplayed storms. Weathered figureheads, bravely breasting wave after pink crested wave counterpointing the seaspray's opalescent aria of tears.
Stolidly planked aprons, moss greened
and urchin beaconed, coveting a halcyon
water's pursed lips. Paravanes, rust
reefed to an old fisherman's bend,
deflecting sunken desires. Flaked calking,
deserting aged whales as quietly as derelict shadows adrift in fog becalmed
on a moored sea. Winking navigators,
plotting courses to misty landfalls,
sunstays spliced to threnodic rigging
singing windward of harbors anchored
patiently, winching shelter briefly.
Mast fingers, wet to the luffing stars,
sensing direction of battened windfall,
rudder and tiller of oncoming wave after
white sweeping wave. Creaking hulls,
displacing ebb and flood impartially,
wind and tide turned to the taut chain,
a swivelling sea casually lapping against garboards braced for the definitive storm,
knowing it will come. Timecleated hulls,
windlassing free to surge slowly rising,
falling, yawing and crabwise tacking to rest, gracefully battered on the clean
furled sands of a far fendered shore.

FRONTAGE ROAD BLUES

That old road running parallel to the freeway
Was once a new road
In those exhausted days of ago,
When ingress and egress were thought
By some folks to be birds
That supplied feathers for ladies' hats;
And accelerator was a new word for most,
More often than not, called "auxilerator"
By school boys, goggle-eyed in wonder
At the new models.
She's done now.
Traffic's tempo is surging elsewhere.
Off-ramps penetrate her and cheap stores
Push in along her chuck-hole traversity.
But this macadam mistress is of tougher stuff.
None have caused her to regress
To the status of alley.
Even old roads, perhaps, lead to Rome?

MEDITATIVE THOUGHTS

Beauty grasps the heart in poignant pain,
So much to have and to release again.
Love too cries 'halt' and begs for more,
Afraid of unknown scenes, of unknown lore,
Yet move they must for beauty dims in wasted years,
And love unless it grows in trust, dies in fears.

On The Stereo Scene: New Classical Records

By JOHN SUNIER
KBRG Program Manager

A PERCUSSION SPECTACULAR — GINASTERA: Cantata Para America Magica for 53 Percussion Instruments and Dramatic Soprano plus CHAVEZ: Toccata for Percussion — Raquel Adonaylo, soprano/Henri Temianka conducting Los Angeles Percussion Ensemble — Columbia Stereo MS 6447:

The wild sounds of this 1960 composition match the wild title.

The Argentine composer has based his cantata on ancient pre-Columbian texts and seeks to pay musical homage to America's primitive man. The word "magic" is used here in its primitive sense, indicating the symbolic interpretation of the mysteries of nature by early man.

The work is highly unique in its effort to create primitive mood with the most advanced serial (atonal) musical techniques. Of course the gigantic percussion battery has a great deal to do with the final effect, which is quite shattering.

The Chavez piece is tame by comparison. It explores the great variety of timbres and rhythms possible in even an ordinary percussion section, providing a sort of "Young Person's Guide to the Percussion Department."

Laurels to Columbia's engineers.

MAHLER: Symphony No. 5 in c sharp plus MAHLER: Kindertotenlieder — Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano/New York Philharmonic/Bernstein — Columbia Stereo M2S 698:

Lennie Bernstein appears to be bravely tackling the Mahler symphonies for Columbia that the great Bruno Walter was not able to record before his recent death.

The third, recently released, was a triumph. This one equals it most of the time.

With Bernstein's clear articulation of sections and themes, these almost weekend-long symphonies do not seem too lengthy at all. A very readable essay on "Mahler, The Man and His Music," is included.

Miss Tourel is warm and touching in her performance of the Mahler songs upon the death of children. The idea is never allowed to enter a listener's mind that perhaps the subject is a bit morbid. Her enunciation is excellent and the stereo sound likewise.

A treasureable two-disc package.

ROMANCES AND SERENADES — Vaughan Williams: The Lark Ascending; SIBELIUS: Romance in C for Strings; DELIUS: Serenade from "Hassan"; FRANCAIX: Serenade for Small Orchestra; WARLOCK: Serenade for Strings — Cleveland Sinfoinetta/Louis Lane, conductor/Rafael Druian, violinist—Epic LC 3875:

Usually this sort of theme for a classical lp results in a mediocre collection of warhorses. Not the case here.

All of these short pieces are rarely heard and pure pleasure in their pastoral loveliness. This is fine "mood music" at its very highest level of quality. The performances by members of the Cleveland Orchestra are perfect, and the mono sound good (although why the stereo version wasn't sent for review I will never know).

MOTETS FOR DOUBLE CHORUS, BRASS, AND ORGAN — Works by Praetorius, J.C. Bach, Scheidt, and Schutz — Philippe Caillard Vocal Ensemble/Chorales A Coeur Joie /Brass Ensemble of Paris/ Philippe Caillard, conductor—Westminster Stereo WST 14090.

This eminent offering from the French Erato label won a Grand Prix Du Disque, and certainly deserves it.

The four compositions are from the great century of sacred music in Germany just prior to J. S. Bach. The large choral forces, the brasses and organ add a sizeable measure of excitement to these fine performances.

As is European custom, the recording features a rather distant stereo sound, with some reverberation, as in a large cathedral. The stereo separation is still noticeable, however.

POULENC: Stabat Mater; Four Motets for a Time of Penitence — Regine Craspin, soprano/Choeurs Rene Duclos /Paris Conservatoire Orchestra/Georges Pretre conducting—Angel Stereo S 36121:

The late French composer Poulenc turned in his old age to the composition of highly original and deeply-felt liturgical music. The "Stabat Mater" is a remarkable work deserving of more performance outside of France.

The motets are for choir alone and of less interest.

Both works are sung in Latin by an excellent choir enjoying good stereo recording.

If these selections are your cup of tea, you will also want to try Poulenc's "Gloria," his Organ Concerto, Harpsichord Concerto, and opera "Dialogues of the Carmelites," on the same label.

Borrowed From Japanese

A Different Concept In Landscaping

The European and American approach to gardens is to provide trees and shrubs as a background for flowering plants, and a garden without color would be almost unthinkable.

Not so in the Japanese garden. Trees and shrubs are used as individual specimens and may represent a natural scene remembered by the owner in a trip to the country or some famous shrine.

THE JAPANESE use "props" of gravel, stone and water as foils for trees and shrubs. This leads to an effect that remains stable through every season of the year, although it is unlikely that maintenance time is saved because such a garden must be well groomed.

The water may be a quiet pool, or a trickling stream. It may represent a dried up stream in summer and have no water at all.

Whichever approach you may take to build a Japanese garden there are several trees and shrubs lending themselves naturally to the situation. The main idea is to use restraint. Carefully select a few well-grown specimens that give a "finished" appearance when the garden is planted.

THE JAPANESE maple is a small tree with a variety of uses in your garden. It may be used to shade a bank of azaleas or stand by itself as the principal feature. You have a choice of green or reddish foliage.

The varieties that go under the general term of "threadleaf" are lower-growing shrub types, with g r a c e f u l l y-spreading branches. They cast a lovely reflection on the surface of a quiet pool. Again, you have a choice of green or reddish foliage.

Incidentally, the deep red occurs in spring and gradually turns to green during summer. The leaves fall in winter to reveal eye-appealing silhouettes of slender branches.

PINES ARE almost essential to the Japanese garden.

The Japanese Black Pine is most popular, but you may find something equally or more attractive in our native ponderosa and shore pines or the Austrian Black Pine. Search for trees that have neither lived high nor have ever been staked. Your nurseryman can be a great deal of help to you here, and m a y recommend the dwarf Mugho Pine where you have a space problem.

An airy touch is lent to the garden by clumps of the Japanese "Sacred Bamboo" or Heavenly Bamboo. Your nurseryman calls this Nandina domestica and it is not related to bamboo at all. The slender branches support compound leaves of a light green, bronzy when young. The white flowers in spring are followed by red berry clusters in fall.

BE SURE to plant a clump of three to insure berry production. Although all plants are capable of bearing fruit, flowers are self-sterile and require pollen from other plants around them.

A DOUBLE DUTY pine is the Mugho Pine, delightful indoors or out. The clear green of the foliage blends well with interior decor as a cut arrangement. The handsome shape of the tree adds an exciting touch to any area around your home. It only grows to four feet, so you know it is easy to care for. For an interesting conversation piece, put Mugho Pine in a tub and place it in a special corner of your patio. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

In fall, cut out the old stems clear to the ground and u s e them for holiday table decorations. This leaves space for the new shoots to develop and keeps the plants looking youthful through the years.

The Oriental magnolias l e n d themselves admirably to your garden, particularly the soulangeana forms (Saucer Magnolia), which may be kept to a modest height and spread with a little judicious pruning. Their wonderfully fragrant saucer-shaped flowers appear just ahead of the foliage and produce a remarkable show in February through May.

COLORFUL Japanese Iris are available at your nursery from October through December. The foliage is neat and the l a r g e flowers in blue and p u r p l e shades, often with white, will give you some late spring color. Clumps of Japanese Anemone, in white or pink, may be tucked into shady spots. But be sure to contain them with a wooden or metal "header" or the roots will encroach into other parts of the garden.

Most popular groundcover to use in non-rock and gravelled area is the Japanese Spurge. It may be purchased in flats, pots or one-gallon containers at your nursery. Give Japanese Spurge shade and plenty of peat moss, and it will look well every day in the year.

Here's A Colorful Combo—

The happiest and brightest combination for your garden and patio area is petunias, begonias and zinnias.

Sound like a lot of color? It sure is.

They are all available now in flats for mass planting.

THE BEDDING Plant Growers Assn. assures you a long-lasting enjoyment when you grow petunias, for this prolific annual requires a minimum of care and produces a steady array of brilliantly colored blooms in single, ruffled, double, dwarf and giant forms.

Fire Dance, an F1 Hybrid, is an interesting type of grandiflora petunia. Rich in color, this scarlet has a yellow throat and fringed petals. The blooms are over three inches across.

Also among the F1 Hybrids, Comanche and Tango have single red flowers, Crusader is striped pink and white and Ballerina is frilly and feminine in soft salmon pink.

All these and the new introductions are available in flats for ready planting. Give your plants plenty of sun in a bed of well-prepared soil.

WHILE THE petunia will give you endless enjoyment, fibrous begonia will also add its contribution of color and originality to your garden. Fibrous begonias are available in dwarf and extra dwarf forms ranging from four to 10 inches in height. Perfect for beds, borders, boxes, fibrous begonia comes in pink, white, red, and bi-colors showing white with pink edges. Bright green foliage or bronze leaves (as you wish) set off the dainty blooms to the delight of every viewer.

Zinnias will be another treat for you if you get them in the ground as soon as possible. Decide whether you want the tall, medium, pompon or Dwarf Thumbelina variety and buy them in flats now. Zinnias will not only make color accents for your every garden member but will give extra dividends as cut arrangements in your home.

SUMMER weather encourages barbecues and buffets. You already have your begonias and petunias around the patio, so no dearth of color there. Now you need some fresh zinnias for that buffet table . . . and also for small table decorations.

Like all bedding plants, petunias, begonias and zinnias have the best effect when massed in large numbers. They will respond with color galore for little care or expense.

FOR DOUBLE beauty in your garden, plant the Plum Double Petunia and get massed plum-colored flowers. (Photo by Pan American Seed Co.)

Prepare Your Garden For Vacation

Worried about your garden while away on vacation?

Here are a few suggestions that will relieve your concern:

Our rainless summers guarantee us good weather for our vacations but solve no watering problems during our absence, so it is a good idea to irrigate thoroughly beforehand and avoid moisture loss by mulching plants and shrubs.

Several good mulching materials are available from your nurserymen and garden supply dealers. The list includes peat moss, shredded bark, shavings and steer manure.

LET HIM provide the one he thinks best for your garden. It sometimes depends upon your particular soil and plantings.

The strategy against vacation moisture loss is to first build a shallow basin around the plants you irrigate once a week or oftener, then fill with a slow stream of water. Pour or shovel in the mulch from the bag until the basins are full, then irrigate again to moisten the mulch.

Be sure to check the mulch for thorough wetting. Dampening is not enough.

Flower beds that have just been planted should be mulched between plants.

FIRST, cultivate lightly, then spread the mulch to a depth of one-half to one inch, then irrigate with a stationary sprinkler. Test the soil with a stick to assure yourself that moisture has penetrated to a depth of three or four inches.

Well-fed lawns do not require as much water, so give the grass in your garden a light feeding with a well-balanced lawn food, liquid or dry, before you leave. Soak the food in thoroughly.

And don't forget to mow before you go!

Bugs don't take vacations in summer—only in winter. Use a good general-purpose insecticide recommended by your nurseryman, applied with an efficient hose-end or pressure-tank sprayer.

SCATTER snail pellets in flower beds and under shrubs.

Large house plants may be thoroughly soaked before going away. Small indoor plants likely to dry out quickly may be enclosed in freezer bags slipped over the top and tied under the pot. Set them in a place shaded from direct sunlight.

Your nurseryman or garden supply dealer can also supply you with repellants to protect your prized plantings against marauding dogs while you are absent.

BEFORE YOU depart upon your trip, make one last check to be certain that you have taken care of all these matters. Check them off one by one.

Then, if they have all been done, you can depart, free of nagging yard and garden worries.

And when you return, you will find the reception a pleasant one—not the disaster which results from failure to plan in advance.

GROW YOUR favorite plants in containers and you can enjoy them when the mood strikes you. Succulents are ideal for this kind of treatment, and you can work their different forms and shapes in with larger plants. This is the Jade Plant. It presents no "vacation time" problem, since it stores water in its leaves. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔ You can still set out new hydrangeas if you keep them in shady areas. Remember to water them often.
- ✔ Sweet fragrances can greet you in your garden during those summer evenings if you plant Star Jasmine, bouvardia and osmanthus now.
- ✔ Stake and tie tomato plants now to avoid the unkempt look of sprawling branches.
- ✔ For your vacation checklist include a list of specific instructions for your garden care while you're away. This will save time and effort. When you return your garden and lawn will be just as you want it.
- ✔ Hurry and plant annuals for dashes of color in fall and winter. Check your nursery for a complete selection.

Handyman's Page

The Privacy Fence Can Be Both Esthetic And Utilitarian

Probably the biggest cost of a home, proportionately, is the land itself.

And with land costs and taxes still rising everywhere, home owners are smart to see that every inch of ground around the house is put to full use.

For that very reason, the tall back yard fence is fast becoming an accepted institution. Privacy must be assured if the yard is to become a livable part of the home, and the tall fence is the way to do it.

CRISP, CLEAN lines and a dimensional look are needed for the high fence.

One excellent pattern is the board-on-board. It is easily built and rates high in appearance. It is also a pattern which complements a home of either traditional or contemporary styling.

To build the board-on-board fence, one-by-four, or one-by-six inch boards are nailed vertically on alternating sides of the framework so the edges overlap about one inch. The result is three-dimensional and solid in appearance, but allows good air circulation — an important factor.

Framing for the fence calls for four-by-four inch posts and two-by-four rails. A cap board of two-by-six inch material gives a trim finish.

WESTERN red cedar lumber or Douglas fir would be excellent for such outdoor use as fencing, and both take paint and stain finishes well. The tall fence needs a delicate touch color-wise.

A natural wood shade, a soft desert sand color, and the silvery shade of weathered wood are the best bets. Clean white is also attractive, but does produce glare.

Choice of resawn or smooth surfaced wood for the fence depends on the house siding. A house sided in textured resawn wood demands fencing of the same texture. Painted, smooth surfaced siding looks best teamed with smooth fencing, though colors need not match.

Along the base of the fence, a strip of land should be reserved for a planting bed, no matter what structures and plant materials are used in the rest of the yard layout. A variety of shrubs will soften the junction between fence base and land and serve to blend the fence into the general landscaping plan.

Use of a few tall plants and perhaps a climber or two also effectively reduces the height of the fence.

The TV Stars On Vacation

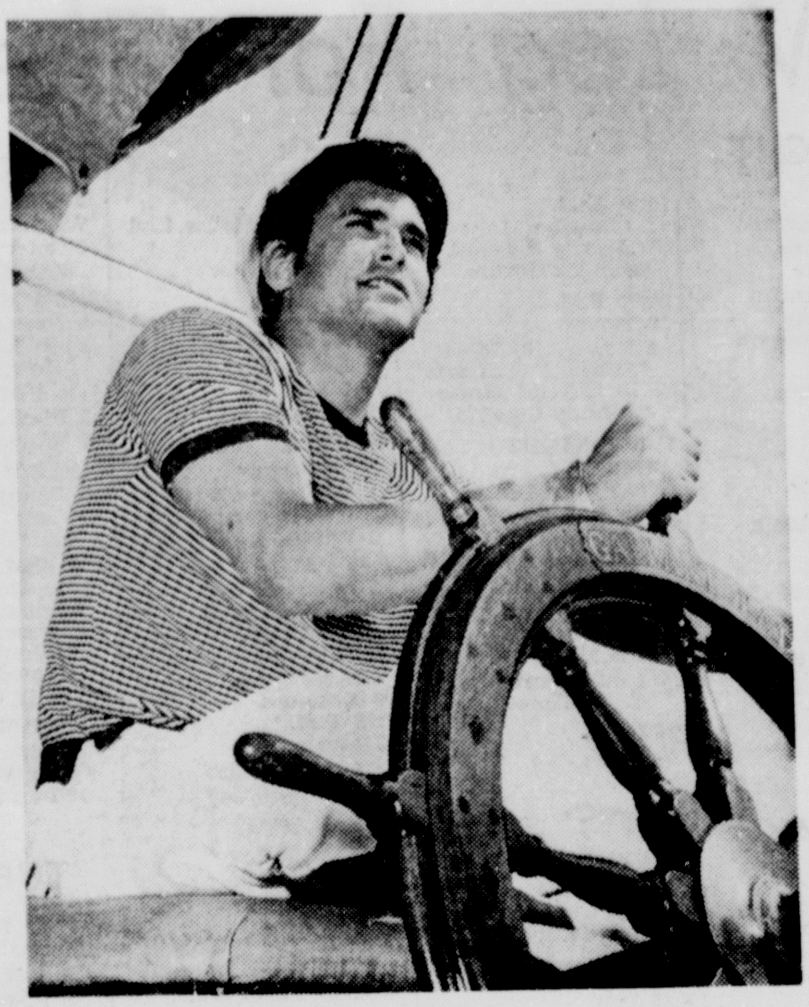
Yes, you're right. There are an awful lot of repeat shows on television these days.

That's partially because the summer is vacation time for TV stars, like anybody else.

What do the television actors and actresses do in their free time from their work before the cameras? Well, for one thing, they apparently do not watch TV.

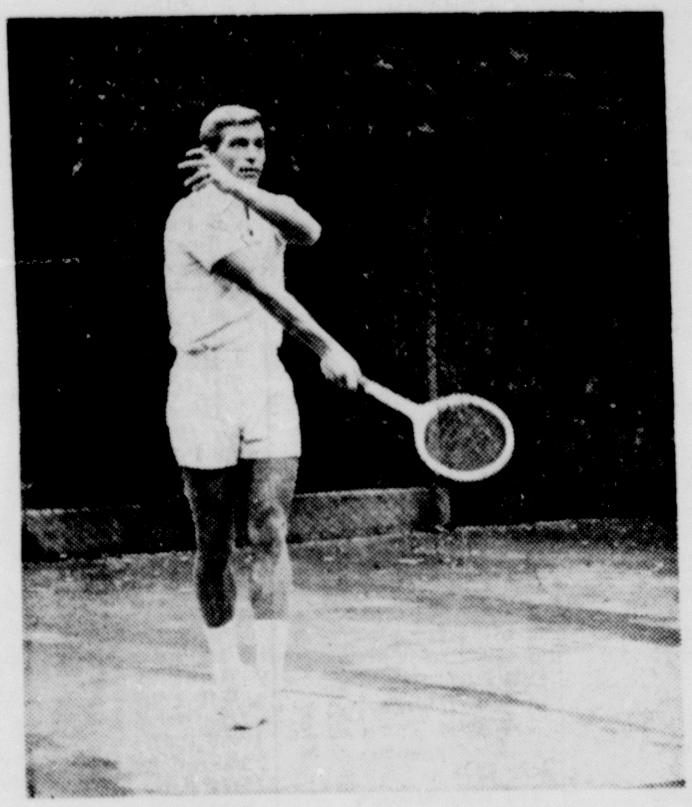
The National Broadcasting Co. put together this collection of photos showing some of the NBC stars at the hobbies and interests to which they devote their summer months.

And now you know why things are so quiet on the Ponderosa and in Blair General Hospital right now. Hoss Cartwright and Dr. Kildare have other things on their minds, and you'll just have to wait until fall for fresh adventures and new drama.



MICHAEL LANDON will leave The Ponderosa where he portrays Little Joe Cartwright in the popular "Bonanza" western series to spend his summer vacation skippering his sailboat, the Gallant Lady.

FOR JAMES DRURY of "The Virginian", what used to be his work is now his hobby. An ex-auto mechanic, he still enjoys rebuilding old motors. And he'll do a good deal of it this summer.



JAMES FRANCISCUS, title star of the "Mr. Novak" series, is a sports enthusiast. And tennis, one of his favorite games, also helps him stay in trim during the summer months.

WHITNEY BLAKE, seen as Dorothy Baxter on the "Hazel" comedy show, plans to enjoy to the fullest the swimming pool at her home in the Hollywood hills during her lull in her TV chores.

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN, TV's "Dr. Kildare,' 'is an expert swimmer and a surfboard enthusiast. So he will be spending a lot of his time the next few weeks enjoying the warm Pacific waters.

IT WILL BE a summer vacation at home with his family on their two-acre estate in West Los Angeles for Don DeFore of the "Hazel" cast. He mans the pump while wife Marion and 5-year-old daughter Amy wait for the water to start.

THE DOMESTIC type is Roberta Shore of "The Virginian" show, and she'll spend her vacation at her parents' home brushing up on cooking and housekeeping. Next fall she plans to go to college—and to marry.

SPORTS CAR buff Dan Blocker, the "Hoss" Cartwright of "Bonanza" fame, shuns the horse, once filming of the show ends. Away from work, he will devote much of his time to racing cars and his sports car garage in Inglewood.

A Tough Year On TV Shows

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television wheezes to the end of another season this month, leaving the whitening bones of dead shows in its wake and the promise of deadlier reruns this summer.

IT WAS A tough year for drama.

Intellectuals, both real and presuming, wept over the demise of "East Side/West Side" and "The Richard Boone Show." Both were heavy on the seamy sort of message epics dear to the hearts of critics.

Killed in action, too, was "The Lieutenant."

"Arrest and Trial," the 90-minute cops and lawyers jazz with Chuck Connors and Ben Gazzara, was thrown out of court. "Channing" and "Du Pont Show of the Week" were canceled, too.

IT WAS A tough year for personalities.

Longtime star Garry Moore was canceled.

Jerry Lewis and Judy Garland, two enormously talented performers, saw their shows sink without a trace. Danny Thomas quit.

Comedian Sid Caesar bombed once again, and Edie Adams swooned as well.

Bearded Mitch Miller got too close a shave and was uncoupled.

IT WAS A tough year for comedy.

Phil Silvers watched his series suffer by comparison with his old army show, and off it went. Imogene Coca saw her "Grindl" fall, kicking.

And Glynis Johns, making her series debut in "Glynis," was shot down early in the going.

IT WAS A tough year for adventure.

"The Great Adventure" and "The Adventures of Jamie McPheeters" proved too unadventurous and were drummed into limbo, followed by "The Greatest Show on Earth," which also failed to live up to its title.

"Route 66," a roaring success for four years, came to a screeching dead end. And "77 Sunset Strip" died of old age.

IT WAS A tough year for psychiatric programs.

The headshrinkers of "Breaking Point" and "The Eleventh Hour" hit the couch with a resounding thud and were turned out to pasture.
